Peace Parley to Quit

PARIS—French foreign minister reveals nine power treaty conference on far eastern war will end Monday with a rejection of China's appeal for direct help and its demand for economic penalties against Japan. Conference will apply "moral quarantine" to Japan, refusing to recognize its conquests. Page 8.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Denouncing the conference of the 9-power treaty signatories in Brussels, which has undertaken to condemn Japan's activities in China, Senator James Hamilton Lewis [D., Ill.] today suggested that President Roosevelt order Ambassador Norman H. Davis to come home.

Senator Lewis, a member of the foreign relations committee, said that England and France had maneuvered the United States into a position of leadership in the anti-Japanese movement and that we could expect retaliation.

Joins with Vandenberg.

In an earlier senate speech, Senator Lewis joined Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], another member of the foreign relations committee, in demanding that the state department look into the "mysterious" activities of William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France. They based their protests on reports from Paris saying that Bullitt had gone to Poland, on instructions from President Roosevelt, to urge that government not to align itself with the German-Italian-Japanese "anti-communist" front.

Senator Vandenberg referred to the report of the Polish mission as "amazing" and Senator Lewis said it was "inconceivable" that Bullitt, who formerly represented the United States in Moscow, should have "blundered into such action."

Finds "Efficacy Destroyed."

The Brussels conference, said Senator Lewis, proceeded along the same lines which "destroyed the efficacy" of the Washington disarmament conference in 1922 and the London economic conference in 1933. First, he said, the European powers, meaning England and France, refused to invite Germany and Japan and "proceeded to cast a slight upon Italy."

Finally, he added, the conference issued a "tardy" invitation to Japan, an "offensive" one to Germany and invited Italy to come "as one of those who also ran."

"It was assumed," the senator continued, "that when America went into the conference we would invite them all on an impartial basis and not assume to condemn one and call it a criminal and call it to the bar for punishment before it had a trial.

Attacks Stand of Davis.

"An eminent gentleman [Ambassador Davis], one of the delegates of this country, designated by the President and present in behalf of the United States, is stated to have joined in this reprimand to Japan, and apparently fulminates in writing a suggestion of his views, carrying with it the approval of the condemnation which two great nations of Europe have uttered to two of these nations not invited or not having come."

"Now," Lewis declared, "the European nations are attempting to hold the United States up as being responsible for what happened, so that they will not incur the antagonism of Japan."

Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.], also a member of the foreign relations committee, asked Senator Lewis whether the European powers, "before expecting us to pull their chestnuts out of the fire, hadn't better pay their debts to us." Lewis agreed.

3 U. S. HOUSING PROJECTS ARE LEASED BY CITY

Competition to Hit Private Landlords.

The city of Chicago yesterday became the lessee of $13,847,000 worth of flat buildings. Henceforth the city is in competition with the real estate industry, since by this lease it will be the landlord to 2,400 families and it can use any profits to construct more such buildings.

The lease was made by Nathan Straus, United States housing administrator. The lessee technically is the Chicago Housing Authority, which was appointed by Mayor Kelly last January. The deal was completed in Cleveland, where Straus is attending a meeting of the National Association of Housing Officials.

Private Rentals Undercut.

The apartments will rent for $20 to $33.50 a month, competing with similar privately owned properties whose landlords are forced to charge from $50 to $75 a month to break even on their investments.

During the lease, which runs from Dec. 1 of this year to June 30, 1939, the local housing authority will pay the government an annual rental of $107,000, about .7 of one per cent on the government's $13,847,000 investment in land and buildings. The $107,000 represents the estimated annual depreciation of the property. Nothing is charged for interest.

If all the 2,400 apartments were rented for an average of $25 a month, the housing authority's total annual income would be $720,000. Out of that must be paid maintenance costs, fuel and a service charge to the city of $39,731 a year in lieu of taxes.

Surplus Is Expected.

From the figures available, it is believed that the housing authority will have a surplus, which, as stated, may be used for more housing projects.

Representing the authority in the leasing negotiations were John R. Fugard, T. J. Carney, and Coleman Woodbury, members of the five man group, and Arthur Bohnen, consultant. Mr. Fugard, chairman of the authority, said selection of the 304 families who will occupy the Jane Addams houses on the west side will start Monday and is expected to be completed during December.

He announced the rent schedule as follows: Two room apartments, $20 to $22.50; three room, $22 to $25; four room, $24.50 to $29; five room, $28.50 to $33.50. These figures include rent, heat, gas, refrigeration, electricity, and hot water.

Tenants Swamp Project.

No family will be admitted, Mr. Fugard said, whose income is more than five times the amount of the rent. Three or four times as many families as can be accommodated have applied for the apartments now ready for occupancy.

Besides the Jane Addams houses at Gilpin place and Sibley street, which cost $6,011,310, the government also has erected the Trumbull Park project at Cottage Grove avenue and 38th street, costing $2,650,161, and the Julia Lathrop Homes at Diversey parkway and the river, costing $5,185,740.

A week ago, after considerable debate, the city council accepted the government's offer to pay a $39,731 service charge annually instead of taxes on the $13,847,000 properties. If they were privately owned the city would collect almost $500,000 a year in taxes.

Permanent Deal in Offing.

Administrator Straus, in announcing the lease, said that if the arrangement is a success, the government will enter into a permanent agreement either for sale or long term lease to the Chicago authority.

"This is an example of bona fide slum construction," Straus said. "The Chicago projects are the first to be set up under the provisions of the Wagner-Steagall housing act, and the low rents are possible because of the provisions of that act."

The Wagner-Steagall act, passed by congress last summer, provided for an appropriation of 26 million dollars and a bond issue of 700 million dollars. The act not only authorizes the lending of money for construction of housing projects, but also directs subsidies to assist in maintaining low rents.

BETWEEN THE DEVIL AND THE DEEP SEA

Carry Link to Prison; Echo of Whoopee Era

In a convertible police ambulance Frank J. Link, former sanitary district trustee, was taken to Joliet penitentiary on a stretcher last evening to begin serving a sentence of 1 to 5 years imposed in 1932 when he was convicted of graft during the sanitary district's whoopee era of 1928-'29.

Link, who is 67 years old and critically ill, was taken to prison after dramatic scenes in his home at 4162 Lake Shore drive and at the county jail where he was finger printed.

Fight Vainly to Stay Order.

Earlier in the day his lawyer, Robert Turney, made a final effort to stay a United States Supreme court mandate ordering Link and John T. Miller, former minor sanitary district official, to serve their terms. Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court, before whom the petition for a stay was filed, ruled that he had no jurisdiction in the case.

Miller, who was sentenced to six months in the Bridewell and fined $2,000 in the graft case, is in Springfield on a business trip. He telephoned the sherif's office Thursday and said he will surrender on Monday. Miller lives at 1215 Madison Park.

Police Go to Get Link.

After Turney's fight to stay the mandate failed, Dr. Meyer H. Levy, county jail physician, and two highway policemen went to the Link home. Link and his wife, Betty, wept when the police arrived and at first Link said he would not go with them. The policemen informed him they would have to take him forcibly if he would not go voluntarily.

Link, who is suffering from palsy, finally allowed himself to be bundled into an overcoat and a heavy blanket, which covered most of his face. The police brought up a stretcher and, at Link's request, he was carried down a rear stairway so that his neighbors would not see him. He was then placed in the police ambulance.

Wife Follows to Prison.

With Mrs. Link following in another automobile, her husband was taken to the county jail. William Lenz, chief clerk at the jail, came down to the garage to take Link's finger prints, a necessary formality.

With Dr. Levy beside him in the ambulance, Link began the trip to Joliet. Mrs. Link followed.

The ambulance outdistanced Mrs. Link's car, however, entering Stateville prison at 7 o'clock. When the gates were closed behind it the other machine was nowhere in sight.

The prisoner was taken at once to the infirmary, the prison receiving rules being temporarily waived. Ordinarily, Link would have been finger printed and put in a detention cell. He was described as very feeble by Warden Joseph E. Ragen.

Link's Rise and Fall.

Once an alderman from the 48th ward, Link served as a sanitary district trustee from 1924 to 1930, then retired. He and Miller were two of the nine persons indicted in the so-called whoopee era graft case. Two of the defendants died before the trial ended and three others were acquitted. Besides Link and Miller, those convicted were Timothy J. Crowe, president of the sanitary board, and Martin Edelstein, a minor official. Crowe died while his case was being appealed and Edelstein was freed after a second trial.

The Illinois Supreme court affirmed the sentences of Link and Miller, and on Oct. 11 the United States Supreme court refused to review their cases.

JUSTICE DEFINES A HOSIERY TERM FOR COLLEAGUE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice McReynolds craved some enlightenment about hosiery today—and got it from Justice Roberts.

"What does full fashioned mean?"

When a lawyer began a technical description of the machinery involved, Roberts interrupted to say:

"It means that a stocking is made to fit the contours of the leg."

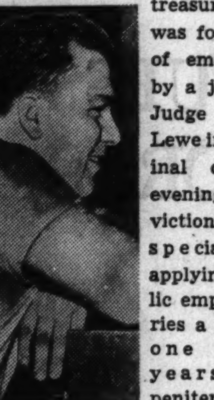
FormerCounty Teller Guilty of $3,200 Theft

Jack D. Chisholm, 27 years old, former receiving teller in the county treasurer's office, was found guilty of embezzlement by a jury before Judge John C. Lewe in the Criminal court last evening. The conviction, under a special statute applying to public employés, carries a penalty of one to fifteen years in the penitentiary. The jury was out less than an hour.



Jack Chisholm.

Chisholm's embezzlement was one of a series of scandals affecting county office holders. The most notable cases were those of Robert M. Sweitzer, ousted as county treasurer after an audit revealed a $414,000 shortage in his accounts as county clerk, and Frank V. Zintak, who was removed as clerk of the Superior court when a shortage of $26,500 was found in his accounts. Both Sweitzer and Zintak were acquitted of criminal charges.

$3,200 Loss Discovered.

Chisholm failed to report for work at the county building on Aug. 16, 1936, and a few days later a loss of $3,200 was discovered in his accounts. He was not found until last May 12, when police seized him in a cabin at Gray's Lake. He explained that he had gone there to recuperate from illness and to train prize fighters.

At the time of his arrest, Chisholm was reported to have confessed taking the money to use in financing his fighters.

Surprised at Loss.

During his trial, however, the former teller testified that on Aug. 15, 1936, he put his money in a cash box without counting it and left his cashier's cage to attend an employés' meeting. When he returned, he said, he put the cash box in the vault.

"It was a surprise to me to find the money missing," Chisholm said on the stand. "I didn't take it."

Dixie Graves Talks Against Lynching Bill

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Dixie Graves, who is a United States senator because Hugo L. Black is a Supreme court justice, made her maiden speech today—a speech against the anti-lynching bill.

Mrs. Graves is the wife of Gov. Bibb Graves of Alabama, an acknowledged member of the Ku Klux Klan. Mr. Justice Black, whose place in the senate she took, is an ex-klansman. And Mrs. Graves is a southern lady. The senators have been squabbling in a filibuster over the lynch bill since the opening of the special session.

[The Wagner-Van Nuys anti-lynch bill provides that any state officer who surrenders a prisoner to a mob shall be guilty of a felony and subject to prosecution in federal court. Penalties of a $5,000 fine or a five year prison sentence, or both, are provided. The county in which the lynching takes place shall be liable for damages from $2,000 to $10,000, to be paid to the family of the victim.]

Would Penalize Taxpayer.

"When I first walked into the senate chamber, I was filled with a feeling of mutual understanding—a feeling that we, as ambassadors of great, sovereign, indestructible states were meeting here to study, consider and pass on legislation for the general welfare," Mrs. Graves said.

"And then I found the anti-lynching bill."

The bill, she argued, would penalize every taxpayer on the ground that some law enforcement officers fail to attend their duties.

"A general wrong avenging a particular wrong," she declared, "is all wrong. There is no justice in this plea."

"I abhor lynching," said Mrs. Graves. "But we know that lynch law, not the law of the law books, cleared the forests and valleys of the west of cattle thieves and horse thieves. The ranchers who banded together and executed punishment committed a crime. I know that. And I abhor lynching."

Apologizes for Talking.

"I know," she continued, "that a new senator should be seen and not heard. But I feel that this is legislation of such import as to demand an expression of my convictions. I shall not speak to consume time.

"In the south, lynching was born when helpless women and children in isolated sections began to be the victims of the most vicious of all crimes. Incensed by these outrages, the men banded themselves together and sometimes meted out punishment. The south, strengthened by public opinion and the firm resolve of her peace officers, is abolishing the crime of lynching.

Asks 5 Years' Time.

"And at the rate we are going, in about five years there will not be a single lynching in the south. I do not know what the record of the machine gunners of the great northern cities is, and if I did, I would not mention it in this chamber, but surely it is more terrible than the lynchings that have taken place in the southland."

HIS CONFESSION OF KILLING GOES INTO EVIDENCE

Newton Laughs at Own Admissions.

BY MARCIA WINN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsfield, Ill., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The Rev. C. Ellsworth Newton will take the witness stand in Circuit court here tomorrow in his trial for the murder of Mrs. Maybelle Kelly.

The Missouri preacher's leading attorney, Daniel L. Johnson, from Kansas City, announced tonight, as the state's case came near its close, that the Rev. Newton will be the first witness in his own behalf.

Although the defense received a startling setback today when a confession made by Mr. Newton last July 15 was admitted into the evidence and read to the jury, the defense counsel remained hearty and confident; in fact, disdaining.

Will "Give Them a Run."

"Why, we'll have twenty-five or thirty witnesses," Attorney Johnson said with an airy wave of his long arm. "We'll give them a run, a good run. We've just let them go along this far to see what kind of ball they were playing."

The minister, who guided the spiritual destinies of Missouri Baptists for thirty years—boasting that he called 5,000 persons from the Ozarks to the Ohio by their first names—before allegedly battering Mrs. Kelly, his admiring and faithful parishioner, into the Mississippi river, also seems confident.

He refuses to talk, but, pale and unmoved, he sits alert at the counsel table briskly taking innumerable notes. He is a little thinner, if possible, than when the trial opened Monday, a little more nervous, but his calm is phenomenal.

Laughs at Confession.

Even when his twelve page sworn confession was read, with its unhurried recital of "I hit her with a hammer or something," he seemed a disinterested spectator as he dangled a languid white hand over the arm of his chair. At its conclusion he displayed his only animation: He turned laughingly to Attorney Johnson.

Wendell Johnson, sherif of Pike county, was the final witness of the day and for the state. His testimony, which consisted principally the identifying the many relics of Mrs. Kelly, was interrupted when court adjourned for the day.

The defense sought desperately to keep the confession from being read to the jury. What effect its admission will have on the minister's defense, in which he seeks to shift blame to Myra Hanan, his foster daughter, cannot be predicted.

The only witness of the day whom the minister seemed to regard with any particular interest was T. V. Proctor, prosecuting attorney of Monroe county, Mo., in which Paris [Mr. Newton's home] is located.

He Sums It All Up.

Proctor, a big slow-spoken man with a penchant for many details in many words, took the stand to give a final rehash—for the state—of events pointing to the preacher's implication in the murder.

Six minutes after learning that Mrs. Kelly's body had been found floating in the Mississippi river, he testified, he was at the Baptist parsonage, asking Newton if he had heard of her disappearance.

"He said to me: 'No, what dope have you got on it?'" Mr. Proctor began.

"And I said to him, 'I knew she was a good friend of yours and an adviser, and I thought maybe you knew where she had gone.'

"And he said again, 'What dope have you got on it?'"

Believed Him Drinking.

Q. [by State's Attorney Merrill Johnston]—What was his appearance? A.—I would say that he was partially under the influence of alcohol, and so I nudged Sherif Russell Wilkes, who was with me, and we departed.

Later in the day they approached the minister again, Proctor said. This time Newton demanded, "Why are you questioning me? She went away with some one from here."

The remainder of his testimony was corroboration of other witnesses.

CONFESSION A BLOW

The admission of the confession came as a palpable blow to the defense and as a distinct triumph for the state. Without it the state's case, although it contained a mountain of circumstantial evidence, was nearly worthless, for in none of it had the state connected the Rev. Mr. Newton with the murder.

The murder was there; the battered body found midstream in the Mississippi; the two scuffed navy blue slippers found beside a pool of blood on an Illinois highway; the purse found open on the sands of the Mississippi, obviously intended, too, for the river waters, but landing, by a slight nocturnal misjudging of distance, on its banks instead; a hammer with reddish hair in its claws.

But there was no one who had seen the minister with his parishioner that dark night of July 12; no witnesses to her death. Her luggage had been found in his car, but no one had seen it placed there.

Takes Blame on Himself.

There was only his confession, taking sole blame for the crime and absolving all members of his family. The defense asked it be withheld from the jury on the grounds that [1] it was obtained under duress, [2] it was "dictated by the prosecuting attorney," who suggested certain deletions, that [3] the pastor had been deprived of his sleep and threatened into signing it.

All this state's witnesses denied today in the presence of the jury of eleven farmers and one barber whom the judge yesterday ordered excluded while arguments as to admissibility were heard. And again today Walter G. Stillwell, prosecuting attorney of Marion county, Mo., repeated the oral version of the crime as the minister had told it to him the afternoon of July 15.

The minister, his alertness of yesterday gone, listened intently, his arms folded across his chest, his pallid face furrowed. He chewed nervously at the stubby yellow pencil he has flourished since the trial began, and resumed his interminable chair tilting.

Judge Rules It's Admissible.

Judge Williams then began to speak.

"From the evidence heard by the court in the absence of the jury," he said, "the court finds that exhibit 26 now offered in evidence was a voluntary confession by the defendant without the meaning of the law. The evidence may be read to the jury."

The minister, his face ashen, turned listlessly toward the jury. Meeting the wide-eyed gaze of Juror 4 on the first row, he turned hurriedly away.

"My name is Colonel Ellsworth Newton," Johnston began to read. "I came to Paris as pastor of the First Baptist church on Aug. 19, 1923. Early in my pastorate I met Mrs. Maybelle Kelly."

Tells of Mutual Loans.

For 45 minutes the prosecutor's firm voice continued, as he read the minister's words. "I came to know Mrs. Kelly very intimately and to regard her highly. She was a teacher in our Sunday school, president of the Missionary society and a very helpful, devoted, Christian woman who, in various ways, showed her interest in and her love for us all."

"There were times when she loaned me sums of money. And there were times when I had money and she had none that I loaned her small sums."

The voice then went on to read how on the night of July 12 he put a pint of whisky and a revolver in the dashboard of his car and went to chauffeur Mrs. Kelly out of town; how, on the way, she insisted he go on with her and how she became hysterical, "and in order to break the spell and give her a chance to quiet down and also to recover myself, for I was tired and nervous," he got out of the car.

The minister stirred as the prosecutor continued, "she was making some sort of a nervous sound. I don't know if she was crying or not."

Injured First in Fall.

"She half way screamed that she would never get back in the car unless we were going together. I tried to pick her up to put her in the car. I lost my balance and staggered. I think her head struck the pavement. Blood was spurting in a stream. She was limp and unconscious. I staggered under her weight, falling again. I took two or three swallows of whisky and tried to get some down her throat. I heard a rattle in her throat as though she was dying.

"I don't know whether that car passed or not, but I know this would be evidence of a crime. I don't recall all that happened. I think I struck her with something. I think it was a hammer.

"I don't know why, but I stopped on the bridge and somehow got the body out of the car and over the rail. It struck something before striking the water. I don't know whether she was dead when her body was thrown over the side."

Goes on to Preach Funeral.

The remainder of the confession dealt with the $1,950 which she had placed in the dashboard of his car, how he cleaned his blood drenched car, disposed of his blood soaked clothes, burned two letters that Mrs. Kelly had asked him to mail, and went on to conduct a funeral.

It was now past noon. The prosecutor read out the long list of witnesses to the confession. The uniformed highway policemen, who had deserted their posts by the door to listen, hurriedly retreated. Farmers thrust hunting caps back on their heads and buttoned their sheepskins, and the jury solemnly filed out. The minister, his face showing an animation that was almost gay, leaned over the shoulder of Defense Attorney Martin S. Turner in swift conversation.

LIGHTER IRON LUNG, WITH SPECIAL BASE, FLOWN TO SNITE JR.

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 19.—(AP)—A lightweight respirator with a custom-made rubber base was brought here tonight in the hope it could deliver Fred B. Snite Jr. from his big iron lung.

The device was returned by plane from Akron, where experts moulded a sponge rubber base expected to do away with leakage which in a trial two weeks ago prevented formation of the slight vacuum needed for successful mechanical manipulation of Snite's lungs.

The new base, so soft it adheres to the skin and thus seals the contact between respirator and body, was built from a plaster cast of the young Chicagoan who has spent more than 19 months in a 900 pound barrel which incloses all but his head. Attendants said the rebuilt lung would be tested tomorrow on some person other than young Snite, and if successful then would be tried by the infantile paralysis sufferer inside his present respirator.

DOINGS OF BLACK AND GRAVES ARE BASIS FOR POEM

Of Gov. Bibb Graves and Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black, Patrick wrote:

An' starts into politics exactly where he'll land.
In the state of Alabama away down yan,
Two politicians joined the Ku Klux Klan.

Each wanted an office, Patrick wrote, and klan members knew they did, but the office seekers were taken into the organization with a "kluck-a-doodle-doo."

An' one is now governor and the other is a judge,

The poem, which Patrick read to the Women's National Democratic club last night, concluded:

A lot o' folks think it's a mighty bad sign
If a man ever marched in the bed sheet line.
I've never been a member, so I can't tell,
But these two brethren have done pretty well.

So fill 'er up boys, a sody pop'll do,
It may have been tricky, BUT THE BOYS GOT BY.

HUMBLE FRIENDS ASK FOR HIM, AILING AND ALONE WITH MILLIONS

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 19.—(AP)—White haired Negroes, second hand shopkeepers, and neighborhood tenants inquired today of the serious illness of their philanthropist benefactor, William P. Devou, who lives alone with his millions and aversion to women.

Police broke in the door of his tiny quarters in the rear of a storeroom and found the wiry little man, who is 82 years old, suffering alone with pneumonia. Solicitous neighbors had missed him.

Friends estimate his wealth at $6,000,000 to $18,000,000. Tenants said he discarded a ledger a year ago containing accounts for back rent estimated at $200,000 to $500,000.

He protested being taken to the hospital, but his physician, Dr. J. T. Clear, reported today that his condition is "improved."

DECIDE TO STOP PLAY BASED ON ROCKEFELLERS

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Cancellation of a play about the Rockefeller family called "The Dynasty," which had been scheduled for presentation at the Lenox Little theater during the coming week-end, was announced today.

Miss Frances Pole, head of the drama department of the Finch school, which operates the theater as an educational institution, said the play was withdrawn because "we did not feel it met with our requirements."

She denied that anyone at the Rockefellers' public relations firm had requested that the play be suppressed. A spokesman for the firm also denied the report, which was attributed to Arthur Goodman, author of the play.

HUNTSMEN BAG SOME BUNNIES—AND GET BAGGED

Police Join Hunt as Shot Pocks City Houses.

With the countryside crowded with corduroy clad hunters elbowing each other for a chance to fire at small game, the more intelligent rabbits, it developed yesterday, have been moving to Chicago. While they must look up and down before crossing streets, the air is comparatively free of shotgun slugs.

Until yesterday, all went well for the bunnies who had left the farm and settled in the quiet of Edgebrook, on the far northwest side. While there are numerous comfortable homes in this section there are also stretches of prairie, although it is within the corporate limits, and the rabbits thrived.

The Dreaded Ones Appear.

Yesterday, however, four men wearing the dreaded shooting costumes, complete with Sherlock Holmes caps and double barreled fowling pieces appeared in Edgebrook. In the time it takes to eat a leaf of lettuce, a dozen bunnies were dead. The survivors ran hither and thither, never thinking to call the police, but a man named Nelson, living at Tonti and Caldwell avenues, took care of that.

"Somebody," he complained, "is shooting at rabbits out here, and hitting our house. We don't dare go outside."

Capt. Herbert Burns of the Jefferson Park station immediately dispatched the rabbit squad to the scene. He made sure that Irving Strandberg, one of the fleetest runners of the force, was in the party. They found a lone sportsman popping away in the rear of the Nelson home.

Mr. Strandberg Functions.

"Hay, you!" yelled Strandberg. The hunter said nothing, but took to his heals with Strandberg close behind. The other three policemen followed in the squad car. Strandberg's quarry was a rabbit, although h could not hit any; and was gaining ground at the end of 2½ miles [correct] of cross country racing when the squad car headed him off at Touhy and Tahoma avenues. Strandberg explained he had fallen in a ditch and this lost a lap.

No sooner had the prisoner identified himself as Ernest Schuett, 46 years old, 7040 Tahoma avenue, than the policemen heard more shooting, to the right and left and also straight ahead. In a couple of hours of hunter hunting, they rounded up three more in the neighborhood. They are Henry Meinke, 48 years old, and Charles Rolla, 31, both of Niles, and Edward Schieman, 33, of 6365 Haft street, a milkman.

3 Charges for Hunter.

Schieman had twelve rabbits in his bag; Rolla had two hen pheasants and therefore was charged with three offenses: Shooting a hen pheasant, which is always illegal; shooting pheasants, which is out of season, and shooting firearms inside the city limits, also barred by law.

Schuett, Sc:ieman, and Meinke were booked only on the latter charge and were freed on $50 bonds. Rolla was held when he could not provide $175 bonds. The game was stored safely away in the ice box at the Jefferson Park station, and the hunters will appear this morning in the Racine avenue court.

"Come around tomorrow night for a nice rabbit and pheasant dinner," said Capt. Burns to his men. "It'll be all ready, unless—

"Unless what?" asked the rabbit squad.

ASK SUSPENSION OF SHAKEUP IN BRAZIL'S COURTS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The supreme federal tribunal today voted unanimously to request President Getulio Vargas to suspend or change his decree of yesterday for rationalizing the Brazilian judiciary.

Vargas yesterday abolished federal courts in Brazil's 20 states, Acre territory and the federal district of Rio de Janeiro. The decree pyramided the judiciary, with the supreme federal tribunal at the apex and elective justices of the peace at the base.

In addition to interpreting the new constitution, the tribunal may try cases involving the federal government, those in which state jurisdictions conflict and those involving extradition of aliens. The decree provided an Appellate court in each state which would have the last word in all civil or criminal law cases except those reserved for the supreme tribunal.

Today's action by the tribunal was taken at its first meeting since the decree was handed down. It voted to request the president to suspend the decree or change the sections applicable to the supreme tribunal.

WIDOW FIGHTS MATE'S 43 YEAR SECRET DIVORCE

Husband's Death Reveals Old Action.

In 1887 Maggie King became the bride of William A. King, then a young conductor on the Milwaukee railroad.

His runs brought him to Chicago twice a week. Their domestic life continued for fifty years. King died last March 28 in Milwaukee at the age of 74. Then Mrs. King learned that her husband had obtained a secret divorce forty-three years ago.

This tale was told yesterday to Judge John J. Lupe by Mrs. King, now 70 years old, a kindly faced woman with a firm voice, and gray curls peeping from her hat brim.

Files Tell of Divorce.

It also was told in the crumbling and musty files of the old divorce case, found in vaults of the county building.

Mrs. King, who lives at 1927 Warren boulevard, testified in her suit to set aside the old divorce and establish herself as King's widow. Thereby she would share in his $50,000 estate, now sought by several relatives, including Mrs. Ida Martin Brunner of Kansas City, Mo., a cousin, who is contesting the suit.

Accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Winnie Grover, 72 years old, and her attorneys, Albert J. Sabath, I. Harvey Levinson, and Emmanuel Goldstritch, Mrs. King wedged herself firmly in the witness chair and began her testimony.

"William King and I were married Nov. 30, 1887, while he was a conductor," she began, "and we went to live in Evanston."

Is She Sure? Yes, Indeed!

"I ought to be," snapped Mrs. King, her eyes flashing. "It was my wedding day."

They lived in Evanston three years, she continued, until she became ill and her husband took her to live with her mother in Chicago. There she lived until her mother's death in 1910. And there her husband came at the end of his runs, she said.

That was their married life until two weeks before his death, when she saw him for the last time in the Union station, Mrs. King continued. Whenever they went to the movies or visited friends, Mrs. King said her husband always introduced her as his wife.

Reveal Desertion Charge.

A transcript of the 1894 divorce obtained by King was introduced. It revealed that King charged that his wife deserted him in 1891, going to live in Joliet. There was no record that Mrs. King ever had been notified of the suit, and so she testified.

Attorney Slavitt objected to Mrs. King's testimony on the ground that a wife cannot testify against her husband, be he living or dead.

Attorney Levinson maintained she had a right to answer the divorce suit, a right denied her nearly half a century ago. Judge Lupe ordered the attorneys to submit briefs at the next hearing, for which no date was set.

FORT SHERIDAN PUT UNDER QUARANTINE DUE TO DYSENTERY

Fort Sheridan was placed under quarantine yesterday by Col. A. G. Campbell, acting commandant, because of prevalence of bacillary dysentery. There are nine definite and nineteen suspected cases in the hospital there, and every precaution is being taken by Col. Edgar King, M.D., medical officer in charge, to prevent further contagion.

"The situation is not really alarming, but because the dysentery is highly contagious we are taking no chances of a further spread," said Col. Campbell.

EX-CONVICT WINS PROBATION AFTER AUTO KILLS BOY, 9

Judge Orders Payment of $500 to Family.

Over the objections of State's Attorney James E. Burke of Will county, Judge William R. Hunter in the Will county Circuit court yesterday granted probation to Peter N. Sefcik of Joliet, a former convict, who was found guilty of manslaughter recently.

Sefcik was indicted for manslaughter after his car struck and killed Reno Baldazzi, 9 years old, in front of the boy's home at 2411 North Broadway, Joliet, on Sept. 9. Sefcik was convicted by a jury two weeks ago after testimony showed that he fled the scene of the accident and that he was traveling at an excessive rate of speed.

Good Record Sways Judge.

Judge Hunter placed him on a year's probation on the plea that he had had a good record since leaving prison, and that he has worked steadily at his job in the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company plant at South Chicago. Officials of the company said he could keep his job.

"This man did not premeditate the crime of which he has been convicted," Judge Hunter said. "Under similar circumstances another citizen would be freed. I want to give him another chance. He must pay $500 to the family of the boy and remain on good behavior for the next year."

If Sefcik violates his probation, he will face a sentence of 1 to 14 years in prison. He was sentenced from Will county in 192[illegible] for larceny. He served three years of a 1 to 10 year sentence and was paroled in 1931.

Six Lose Right to Drive.

Six defendants were barred from driving their cars after they were found guilty of trafic law violations yesterday by Judge J. M. Braude in the Safety court.

On charges of reckless driving, Sam Harris, colored, 2625 Dearborn street, was sentenced to thirty days in the Bridewell and barred from driving for one year, and Vestor Baker, 5719 64th street, was sentenced to five days in jail and barred for six months.

Joseph Palmer, 2321 Dickens street, was placed on probation for one year and barred for a year for driving while intoxicated. Fines were assessed against Norman Strong, 343 East 43d street; Thomas E. Flynn, 2812 Forrest avenue, River Forest, and Richard Wilson, 6543 Irving Park boulevard. They also were ordered not to drive for varying periods.

MUNDELEIN ALUMNAE TO MEET.

The Rev. Ralph A. Gallagher, S. J., professor of sociology at Loyola university, will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the alumnae of Mundelein college tomorrow afternoon at the Mundelein chapel.

GOV. LA FOLLETTE WILL RUN AGAIN, MADISON HEARS

Madison, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—It was disclosed today that Gov. Phil La Follette has decided to run for an unprecedented fourth term as Wisconsin's chief executive. There have been rumors of that about the capitol for weeks, but not until now has a close political associate been willing to say anything about the governor's plans for 1938.

The radicals showed an unprecedented disposition to fight among themselves during the latter part of the regular 1937 session and in the special session. It is believed the radical political alliance would fall apart if Gov. La Follette were in the United States senate or out of office.

Gov. La Follette's decision to seek a fourth term as governor eliminates the prospect of his becoming a candidate for the United States senate against the Democratic incumbent, F. Ryan Duffy, who recently announced that he will seek reëlection next year. That also would help President Roosevelt, who would not have to choose between Duffy and La Follette.

AUTO SKIDS ON ICY PAVEMENT; THREE KILLED, TWO HURT

5 Dead and 5 Injured in Other Accidents.

Three Chicagoans were killed and two seriously injured last night when their automobile went out of control on the icy pavement near Concord, Mich., and crashed into a tree with such force that a door of the machine was driven half way through the tree trunk.

Michigan state police identified the dead from cards in their pockets as Mike Paladin, 4456 South Wallace street, Alex Tucci, 8101 Ellis avenue, and Pietro Carelli, 7626 Ingleside avenue. The driver of the car, Albin Newman, 8410 Luella avenue, and the fifth passenger, Carl Carlson, whose address was not obtained, were taken to the Mercy hospital in Jackson, Mich. The police found papers indicating the men were homeward bound from Detroit after engaging in some contracting work there.

Five Others Killed.

Three other persons were killed and three were injured in Chicagoland yesterday in trafic accidents attributed to icy pavements. Two other Chicagoans died and two were injured in accidents caused by the weather in other parts of the country.

Mrs. Maria Moore, 63 years old, 5529 South Paulina street, and Mrs. Julia Sobierajski, 42 years old, 5612 South Ashland avenue, were fatally injured when the car in which they were riding collided with a machine driven by John De Long, 167th street and Torrence avenue, Lansing. The crash occurred near De Long's home.

Mrs. Sobierajski's son, Lester, 23 years old, and Mrs. Moore's husband, Joseph, 75 years old, were seriously injured. De Long was not hurt. All the victims were taken to St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, Ind., where the two women died a short time later.

Auto Skids Into Street Car.

Morgan O'Brien, 42 years old, 1834 East 79th street, was killed, and John Conway, 32 years old, 7311 Princeton avenue, was injured, when their car skidded on the icy pavement and crashed into a street car at Damen avenue and 69th street. A dozen passengers on the car were shaken up.

Kurt Williams, 39 years old, a driver for the American Car Loading corporation of Chicago, was burned to death near Sturgis, Mich., Thursday night when his truck collided with a truck driven by Zollie Angel of Benton Harbor. Angel was also killed.

A woman who was killed in the collision of a truck and an automobile near Indiana, Pa., Thursday night, was identified yesterday as Mrs. Stella Ziulek, 40 years old, 1646 Chicago avenue. Two other Chicagoans, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Rakowski, 1614 North Honore street, were injured in the accident.

Dies of Injuries.

Injuries incurred last Saturday when his automobile went into a ditch and caught fire proved fatal yesterday to Adelbert G. Davenport, 68 years old, of Franklin Park, who died in a hospital at Woodstock, Ill. Robert Bell, a hitch-hiker of Washington, D. C., who was riding with him, pulled Davenport from the burning wreckage.

Warren Borden, 26 years old, of West 27th street, Zion, escaped serious injury yesterday when his car skidded into the second car of a North Shore Line train at 26th street in Zion. Borden attempted to stop his car at the crossing but was unable to do so because of ice. The car was demolished but Borden was unhurt.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 956 persons had been killed in trafic accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 724 were killed in Chicago, where 20,384 were injured in the same period.

BURNS TO DEATH IN SHACK.

Vincennes, Ind., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—An unidentified transient, about 55 years old, who has been occupying a small shack on the river bank north of Lawrenceville, Ill., was burned to death this afternoon when fire destroyed the shack.

CITY AMBULANCE FLEET URGED FOR EMERGENCY DUTY

Chicago was criticized for being the only large city in the country without a public emergency ambulance service by Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern yesterday at a meeting of the Chicago Hospital council's public safety committee in the Palmer house. Dr. MacEachern is an associate director of the American College of Surgeons.

Police department records for 1935 show that 90 per cent of street accident victims were removed by passing motorists, 9 per cent were taken to hospitals in police patrol wagons and accident prevention cars, and 1 per cent were taken in private ambulances.

"New York has 150 public ambulances, and on a strictly comparative population basis, Chicago requires about 68," said Dr. MacEachern. "However, skeleton service could be furnished by a smaller number for the city and as conditions permit this fleet can be expanded."

SHOT IN CARD GAME QUARREL.

Harry Williams, 34 years old, colored, 1827 Lake street, was shot three times last night by William English, 38 years old, also colored, in English's restaurant at 1729 Fulton street, during a card game quarrel.

ASK FEINBERG TO RULE ON SHANAHAN'S WILL WITHOUT SECOND JURY

Judge Michael Feinberg was asked yesterday to determine the validity of the deathbed marriage and will of the late David E. Shanahan, veteran Illinois legislator, disposing of an $850,000 estate, instead of submitting the questions again to a long and bitter jury trial.

The first trial ended in a jury deadlock Nov. 9. Shanahan's last will, executed Oct. 5, 1936, thirteen days before his death, left his estate to his widow, Mrs. Helen Troesch Shanahan. Two cousins, the Misses Mary and Margaret Flynn, sued to invalidate the marriage and will on the ground he was incompetent, hoping thereby to set up an earlier will leaving them the bulk of the estate.

Attorney Irwin N. Walker, representing Mrs. Shanahan, and Attorney William McGah, for the sisters, urged Judge Feinberg to decide the marriage question himself, as he is permitted to do under the law. Attorney McGah also asked that he rule on the validity of the will. Judge Feinberg said he would decide next Friday if he should do this.

UNITED TRANSFER SYSTEM ASSURED BY MAYOR'S PLAN

Detailed Report on Transit Reorganization Drawn.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

A universal transfer system which will permit a passenger to ride from one part of the city to another over the speediest and most practical route for a single fare is one of the main objectives of Mayor Kelly's transit improvement program, city engineers said yesterday.

The engineers will have a detailed report on the plan completed by Monday to place before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson at a hearing on the Abbot plan of reorganization for the Chicago Surface Lines. The plan contemplates a unified transit system, with all facilities, elevated, bus and street car, under a single management.

Broad Transfer Arrangements.

The plan provides for a comprehensive transfer arrangement similar to that now maintained by the surface lines within its own system. Interline transfers would be granted wherever public convenience would be served and where practical from an operating standpoint. Such an arrangement would be no limitation except to require that the passenger travel in one general direction within a specified time limit.

In combination with fast modern surface and elevated carriers, a universal transfer system would result in great time savings, the engineers assert. The city has been fighting for several months to obtain a breader transfer system than the one now in effect between the elevated and surface lines.

List Present Limitations.

Although the present interline transfer privileges are used by about 35 million riders a year, restrictions prevent millions more passengers from making use of the system, the city engineers contend. The arrangement was inaugurated in September, 1935, under the sponsorship of Mayor Kelly.

Maj. R. F. Kelker, city transit engineer, in hearings before the Illinois commerce commission has contended that a real universal transfer system should provide that a rider be allowed to select his own transfer point provided he does not reverse the direction of his journey and respects time limitations.

The present system, in most cases, requires a rider transferring from the surface lines to the elevated to make the change at the first intersecting rapid transit line even though it would be more convenient and faster to transfer at some other point.

Forecast 50 Per Cent Increase.

City experts have contended that the present volume of interline transfer riding would be increased at least 50 per cent if restrictions should be removed. Under the present arrangement interline transferring is not permitted in the central business district. The Kelly plan would make provisions for loop transfers.

For instance, a passenger coming into the loop on the elevated would be permitted to transfer where the proposed State street subway for the north and south elevated lines passes the Jackson and Washington streets subways for east-west street car lines. No transfer ticket would be required at these points as the passenger simply would walk down from the elevated station to the lower level street car station, through a designated passageway.

Boston's System Best.

Of the four cities in the country which have rapid transit facilities, Boston is the only one that has a truly universal transfer system. A rider using the rapid transit lines in Boston pays a 10 cent fare and is entitled to transfer to any other part of the system, rapid transit, street car or bus.

Much of the transferring in Boston is done without issuance of a paper transfer. On many surface lines the rider travels to a rapid transit terminal and does not pay his fare until he reaches it.

In New York there are three rapid transit systems without transfer privileges from one to the other or to the numerous street car and bus systems. Philadelphia has a complicated fare and transfer arrangements with restrictions on transfers in the central business district.

Milwaukee Attorney Gets 3 Years in Eye Swindle

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Federal District Judge Luther B. Way today sentenced Frank Mackett, Milwaukee attorney, to three years in the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, O., on a conviction of participation in swindling Miss Roberta M. Ridley of Southampton county, Va., of $2,500 for a fake eye treatment. In imposing sentence, together with five years' probation on a second count in the indictment, Judge Way declared the term would be as much punishment for the attorney as 20 years for a hardened criminal.

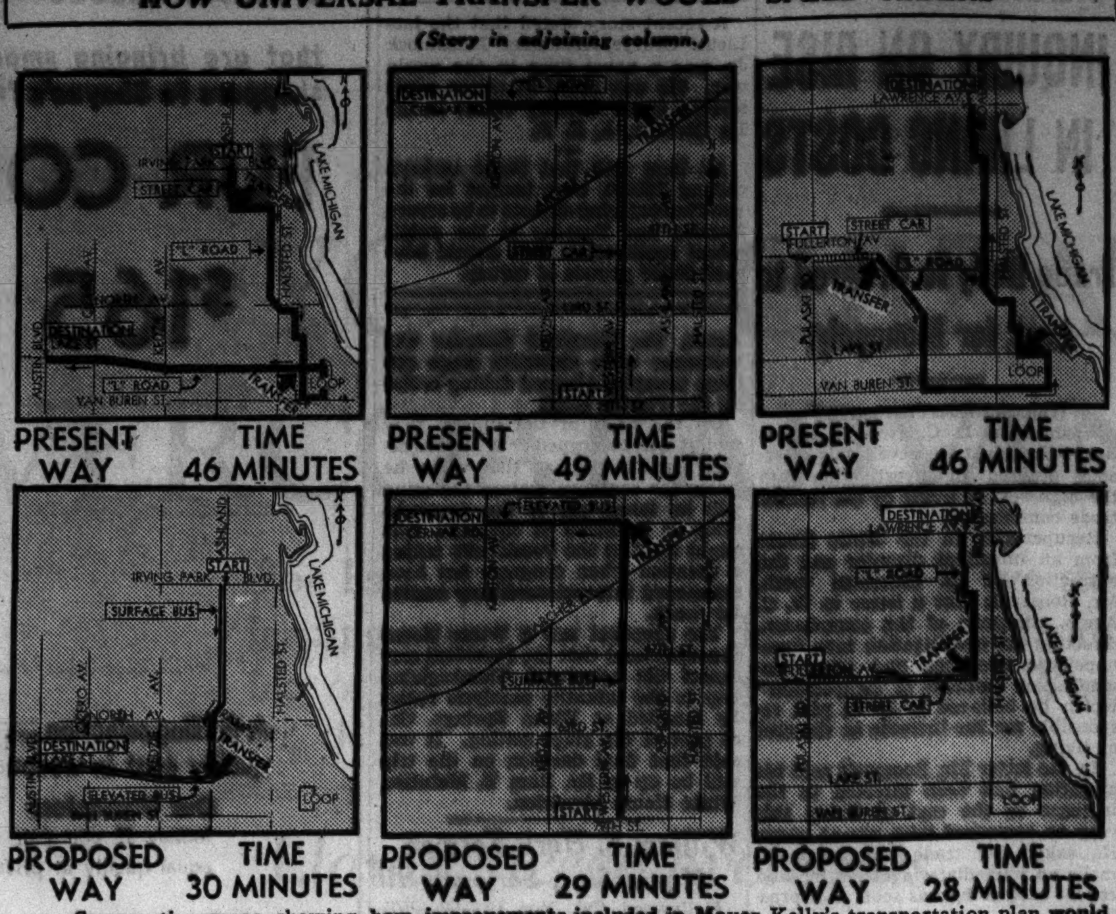
HOW UNIVERSAL TRANSFER WOULD SPEED RIDERS

(Story in adjoining column.)



Comparative maps showing how improvements included in Mayor Kelly's transportation plan would effect substantial time savings for interline riders in all sections of Chicago. Left—A rider would save 16 minutes by using universal transfer system compared with the present limited transfer privileges between surface and elevated lines. Center—Twenty minutes would be saved by riding express buses compared with present long street car ride and transfer to elevated. Right—Eighteen minutes would be saved by universal transfer arrangement with the present authorized route for an interline transfer passenger.

BODY OF YOUTH SLAIN IN POLICE CHASE IS FOUND

The body of a young man found shot to death in a shed in the rear of 1919 Maypole avenue yesterday was identified as that of Emil Sanek, 21 years old, who was fatally wounded as a burglar suspect by Policeman Joseph McMahon of the Racine avenue station early Wednesday.

Sanek, a ward of the Juvenile court since he was 13 years old, was seen fleeing from the Goldblatt Brothers store at 1629 Chicago avenue with two radios under his arms. McMahon shot at him, hitting him in the back. Sanek escaped in a car driven by companions.

He was carried into the Maypole avenue shed a few hours before his body was found by police. Coroner's Physician Jerry Kearns said he may have been alive when placed in the shed. Sanek was first arrested in 1929 for shoplifting. He was sent to St. Charles school and in later years was committed twice to the bridewell.

Dissolution Is Decreed for Lebanese Fascists

BEIRUT, Syria, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The Lebanese government [part of the Syrian mandate] today decreed dissolution of all unofficial military and semi-military organizations "to safeguard the national union." The decree was aimed at the Fascist Lebanese phalanx, an organization of 10,000 persons; the smaller semi-Fascist White Shirts, and the Najaddi organizations, which, government spokesmen said, threatened to divide the country or "create an atmosphere of agitation and anarchy."

BERWYN MAN INDICTED IN INSURANCE FRAUD; USE OF MAILS CHARGED

An indictment was returned by the federal grand jury yesterday against John M. Minnec, 2721 South Wesley avenue, Berwyn, who is accused of using the mails to defraud 30,000 clients in a fake insurance scheme over a period of three years. Minnec was locked up in the county jail when he was unable to provide a $15,000 bond.

According to Warren Canaday, first assistant United States district attorney, Minnec collected from $1 to $6 a month from each client of his two companies, the Lincoln Mutual Aid association at 6800 Windsor avenue, Berwyn, and the Cosmopolitan Mutual Benefit association, Hammond. Death benefits as high as $3,000 were promised and persons up to 80 years old were accepted as members. Policies were known as certificates of membership, and premiums were called contributions.

Canaday said Minnec had an income of $2,700 a month. He said Minnec evaded payment of death benefits through technicalities, but sometimes returned the amount of premiums paid. Neither company was licensed to engage in the insurance business.

Gets 6 Months for Sending Extortion Letter to Co-ed

Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday sentenced Raymond C. Hays, 33 years old, 549 West Madison street, to serve six months in the county jail on a charge of sending an extortion letter to Miss Betty Ann Evans, a student at the University of Chicago. Hays pleaded guilty.

3 YOUTHS ADMIT THEFT; WOUNDED DETECTIVE GAINS

Three young burglar suspects, seized early yesterday after a chase in which one policeman shot another policeman by accident, admitted that they had stolen $110 from a home on Nov. 6. The three are Richard Schaefer, 17 years old, 2032 Wilson avenue; Chester Kepley, 20 years old, 1718 Cornelia avenue, and Rudolf Hennig, 15 years old, 2201 Winona avenue. They confessed stealing the $110 from the home of Mrs. Della Manning, 5011 North Western avenoe.

Detective Wilbur Davis, 4457 North Lamon avenue, attached to the Summerdale station, saw the boys trying to break into a grocery at 4906 North Seeley avenue. Davis was shot by Policeman Frank Ptack, who mistook him for one of the suspects. The bullet was deflected by one of Davis' ribs. At Swedish Covenant hospital his condition was called satisfactory.

FEARS HE WILL GO BLIND; BURNS SELF TO DEATH

Albert Gadow, 83 years old, had a fear of going blind, but last night he exhibited the toughest sort of courage.

He went into the basement where he lives at 637 South 17th avenue, Maywood. He saturated his clothes with turpentine. Then he lighted some paper and held the flame against his turpentine soaked clothes. He was almost immediately enveloped in flames.

Almost the entire act was witnessed, police said, by Barbara Lighthart, 8 years old, a relative. Her cries brought other relatives who beat out the flames. Gadow died of his burns a few hours later.

JUDGE IS COLD TO SPOOKS; SETS PARTY GIRL FREE

Park Slaying Figure Is Released in Ring Theft.

Despite an array of spirits he brought with him as witnesses, Samuel Austin Wilvert, a photographer and lecturer on spooks, was unable yesterday to convince Judge Francis Borrelli in the Felony court that Lucille Buehler, blonde party girl and a central figure in the Grant park murder of Herbert W. Lee, had stolen a $175 diamond ring from him.

Wilvert testified that he knew Miss Buehler took his ring after administering knock out drops to him, because the spirits gave him advance notice of what she was going to do. They warned him, he said, that he'd better take a picture of her, because she might rob him.

Spirits Predict Bad Luck.

The spirits also told him bad luck would come to who ever took the ring. He took the picture, he said, and the bad luck came when the young woman was involved in the murder case.

Wilvert also testified that he is on speaking terms with such eminent spirits as those of Cleopatra, Thomas A. Edison, and many United States senators.

Miss Buehler, who is 22 years old, testified that she visited Wilvert's apartment, then at 837 South Wabash avenue, on July 27, to have her picture taken. She said Wilvert wanted her to pose in the nude, and declared that she fled when he began to undress.

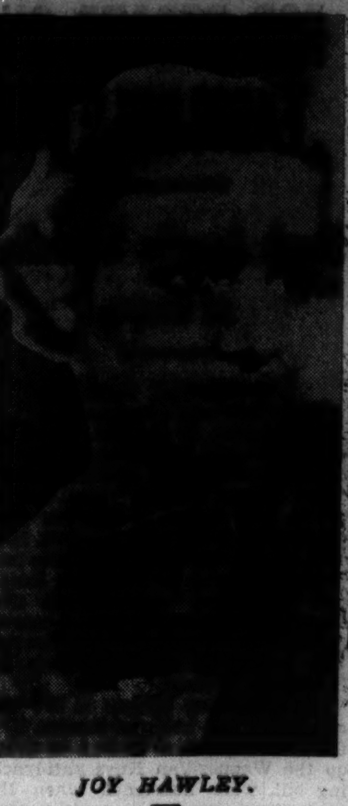
Drop Charges Against Six.

Judge Borrelli held that since the girl had her picture taken, she apparently did not intend to steal.

Another tag end of the Grant park murder case was taken up yesterday when charges of accessory after the fact against three men and three women were nolle prossed in the Felony court.

The six were arrested as friends of Anthony Sapienza, Albert Minella, and Leonard Doxey, who have been sentenced to prison terms for the killing of Lee, Evanston market owner, in the park on Aug. 22. Miss Buehler was with Lee at the time of the slaying.

Chosen 'Empress'



JOY HAWLEY.

Miss Joy Hawley, willowy young blonde, was chosen empress of the Northwestern university navy ball at the Stevens hotel last night. She won the vote of the judges over a number of other beautiful young contestants from Northwestern sorority houses. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

Second and third places went to Miss Ruth Marcus and Miss Eugenia Hawkins, brunettes. Willis Roberts presented Miss Hawley with a plaque and the two other girls with medals. More than 2,000 students attended the dance.

HAVANA, Nov. 19.—Count Covadonga, son of the exiled Spanish king, who arrived in Havana by plane from Miami this morning, expects to fight the divorce action brought by his Cuban commoner wife, Marta Rocafort, unless agreement can be reached to obtain the divorce under different circumstances. Jack Fleming, his secretary, said the count considered the charges made by his wife "undignified," but he was willing to allow the divorce on grounds of mutual dissent.

Borah Assails Reduction of Crops.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The way was cleared today for consideration of the administration's "ever normal granary" crop control bill in both houses of congress next week. This is the only measure, however, on the four point legislative program demanded by President Roosevelt to meet an "extraordinary situation" that appears to have a reasonable chance of passage before the special session is adjourned for the Christmas holidays.

Administration leaders in the senate, which has been deadlocked by a filibuster against a motion to bring up the Wagner-Van Nuys anti-lynching bill, were heartened when the agriculture committee agreed to stay in session until it reports a farm bill, so it can be taken up Monday. By a joint resolution adopted at the previous session, this will displace the anti-lynching bill filibuster.

Administration Defied.

The agriculture committee of the house, which also plans to report a farm bill for consideration before the end of next week, defied the administration today by rejecting proposals for a processing tax on wheat and corn but agreed to write in compulsory control marketing quotas for corn. No decision was reached on the question of voluntary or compulsory production control for wheat.

A week ago, however, the committee informally decided against compulsory marketing quotas for wheat, cotton and rice.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace has urged both compulsory crop control and processing taxes to effectuate and finance his program of loans and benefit payments to store surpluses in big crop years to be used in lean years and restrict production to keep the surpluses down. The senate agriculture committee, which is leaving the financing provisions for a separate measure, is working on the basis of compulsory marketing quotas provided two thirds of the farmers approve in a referendum.

Opposition Widespread.

There is widespread opposition in the senate, however, to the principle of compulsory control, which Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho] assailed today on the ground that the restrictive policies of the administration were reducing the American farmer "to the level of a Chinese gardener."

"It is a notorious fact," said Senator Borah, "that immediately upon our program of reduction being announced foreign countries did, by reason of that fact, encourage the production of cotton in their countries. I think it is pretty conclusively shown that increased production abroad is due to our decreased production at home.

"We will never restore the American farmer until we restore the American market and we will never restore the American market so long as there is an increasing number of people in the United State who cannot buy what they need.

Assails Food Destruction.

"I cannot reconcile myself to the thought that the proper solution of the farm problem lies in the reduction of production in this country when we really have not sufficient food to take care of our people upon any reasonable standard of living. There must be some way more practicable and certainly more humane to distribute this food than that of destroying the food.

"So long as we have, as the President has said, one-third of the population of the United States in a state of need and want, we certainly are not on the right road when we are reducing that which they are nightly praying for and which they need in order that they may take care of their children and their families."

In response to a question by Senator James Hamilton Lewis [D., Ill.], Senator Borah expressed the opinion that it would cost the tax payers less "to distribute this surplus food after it is raised than it will to buy the nonproduction of the food by buying off acreage from production. We are proposing to spend a billion dollars for that purpose, for the purpose of not producing. I am not in favor of reducing by a single acre the production of the United States so long as there are hungry men and women in the United States."

Besides the farm bill, the only other measure on the President's four point program which is given any chance of passage at the special session is the wages and hours bill.

Favor Different Form.

Even if the bill should pass the house, it would be in a drastically different form than the senate measure passed at the last session.

Despite the overwhelming demand in both houses of congress for immediate action to relieve business from the oppressive undistributed surplus and capital gains taxes, as a means of curtailing the slump, administration leaders continued to insist that business ought to be patient and wait for action at the regular session in January.

Senator H. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] introduced an amendment repealing the undistributed corporation surplus tax to a house revenue title pending on the senate calendar.

MARINELLI PLANS SAINTLY DEFENSE IN LEHMAN REPLY

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Albert Marinelli's reply to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's order to explain his suspected alliance with the underworld will portray him as the "patron saint" of the lower east side who is being "nailed to the political cross by his enemies."

This was revealed today as two Tammany justices were reported aiding Manhattan's county clerk phrase his reply to the governor.

Marinelli will not resign under fire, a source close to the leader of the second assembly district intimated. Instead, his reply will contain a bristling defense of his "character, integrity and honesty."

Lehman gave the Tammany leader until noon Wednesday to reply to District Attorney-Elect Thomas E. Dewey's campaign charges that he is the "political ally of thieves, pickpockets, thugs, dope peddlers and big-shot racketeers."

John Walter Floto, an executive of the Globe Steel company of Milwaukee, was sued for divorce yesterday in the Circuit court by his second wife, Mrs. Dorothy R. Floto, 37 years old, of 1430 Lake Shore drive.

Soon after the bill was filed Judge Philip J. Finnegan granted an injunction restraining Floto from molesting his wife or disposing of his assets. Mrs. Floto's bill alleged her husband is worth $150,000 and has a $13,000 annual income.

They were married Sept. 9, 1929, and separated Nov. 14, 1937. Mrs. Floto charges that her husband choked her and struck her with a lether belt, and asks for custody of their daughter, Dorothy, 4.

PRESIDENT ASKS INQUIRY ON RISE IN LIVING COSTS

Trade Body Is Ordered to Look for Monopoly.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt this afternoon ordered an investigation into the high cost of living by the federal trade commission.

Recuperating in the White House from an intestinal disorder and the extraction of an abscessed tooth, Mr. Roosevelt sent a letter to W. C. Ayers, chairman of the commission, directing an investigation into "monopolistic practices and other unwholesome methods of competition" which he believed to be in part responsible for the increase in the cost of living.

In the letter Mr. Roosevelt said his attention had been directed to the increase in the cost of living this year as compared with recent years. He asked the trade commission to make an immediate investigation and report back to him as soon as is practicable.

Prompt Action Promised.

Chairman Ayers said the President's letter would be acted upon at a meeting of the commission tomorrow.

Mr. Roosevelt was confined to the White House for the fourth consecutive day. Concern was felt everywhere but in the White House over his continued confinement.

As the market dropped almost to 1934 levels rumors were current that the President's illness was far more serious than White House reports would indicate. Even among the administration family there was considerable worry that the latest depression and the rebellion of congress had brought on a breakdown.

Foresee Fishing Cruise.

The action of White House aids was such as to offset concern. They went blithely to horse races and country clubs, rejoicing in a few extra days off by virtue of the President's indisposition.

To skeptical inmates of the White House, the intestinal disorder and toothache were elaborate stage settings toward a planned fishing cruise off the Florida coast.

On the basis of the illness, they said, it will be argued that Mr. Roosevelt needs a rest, so that when he starts for southern waters the sting will be taken out of the denunciations of members of congress, who might howl at the President's taking a vacation when congress has been summoned into extraordinary session for work.

The skeptical saw a White House announcement that the President may cancel his scheduled Thanksgiving trip to the infantile paralysis resort he founded at Warm Springs, Ga., as part of the stage setting. It was said that final decision on the trip will be up to Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

A recent story stated that the late Lieut. George Alexander McKinlock Jr. was a naval flyer in the world war. He was killed in action while serving as an infantry officer in the 1st Division, A. E. F.

An item said that 50,000 turkeys, costing $15,000, were bought for the pre-Thanksgiving dinners to be served Monday and Tuesday in the public school lunchrooms. This should have read 50,000 pounds of turkey.

William S. Hart, Former Movie Star, Seriously Ill

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 19.—(AP)—William S. Hart, western star of the silent screen, is seriously ill of pleurisy. "He is a pretty sick man," Dr. P. G. White, his physician, said, "but he is in no immediate danger."

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

THE WORLD'S MOST FASHIONABLE NATION

By CALEB

RECENTLY I chatted with a famous Parisian commissionnaire, whose firm for two generations has existed by serving great stores all over the world.

Their business at present is largely a fashion business, chiefly with the United States.

"What other nations are fashion conscious?" I asked him.

"None," he answered. "In most countries there are several large cities or centers which are fashion conscious, but the general run of the populace is but little concerned with fashion."

"Would you say then that the United States is the only nation which has a public generally well informed on fashion?"

"That is precisely true. Here, fashion news and facts saturate your entire country. We know that little rural towns in the United States have women who are as alert to style change as women in cities. We know that in your western and mid-western states the people are as style conscious as those on your eastern seaboard.

"In other words, to a considerable extent, fashion interest which prevails in Paris—almost alone in France—prevails all over the United States. What prevails in London, and possibly several other centers in England, prevails everywhere in the United States."

FREQUENTLY, moving pictures, national magazines, and the radio are given the prime credit for this saturate solution of public fashion consciousness. But one of the greatest sources of the public's fashion wisdom is generally overlooked. That is the daily advertising of city stores which reaches out and blankets the country.

In Europe, practically no papers carry retail store advertising as we know it in America. Nations are relatively small. Newspaper circulations are relatively large. Retailers have not learned to use newspapers to advertise their wares, or they cannot afford to advertise to a population only a small part of which can reach their stores. In this country, an average of almost forty million newspapers goes into the hands of American families every day, and practically every day the better informed and most progressive stores are telling fashion stories in these papers.

Thus, as a nation we are conscious of fashion, and that consciousness has resulted in a vast deal of employment and meant higher standards of appearance.

9 POWER PARLEY TO END; SCRAPS PLAN TO AID CHINA

Japan's Grabs Will Not Be Recognized by Nations.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 19.—The Brussels nine power treaty conference on the undeclared Chinese-Japanese war will end next Monday by rejecting China's appeal for direct help as well as for economic penalties against Japan, but it will apply a "moral quarantine" to Japan. This was the interpretation placed on a speech delivered in the chamber of deputies today by Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister.

Commenting on the close accord between the American, French, and British delegations at Brussels, Delbos said that while the conference had failed in its aim of stopping the far eastern war, it had demonstrated the union of the three powers against the "diplomacy of bayonets."

Await China's Reaction.

It was expected that this common attitude of the three nations, expressing their abhorrence of aggression, will be maintained and will lead to refusal to recognize all acquisitions of Chinese territory by Japan.

What attitude the western powers will take if China, to obtain milder peace terms, joins the anti-communist alliance of Japan, Germany, and Italy and becomes a reserve of raw materials and man power for the Japanese army was not made clear by Delbos.

While Delbos did not refer directly to the plan of aid for China which was discussed in Brussels, he made it plain that France, after receiving an ultimatum from Japan, did not intend to endanger Indo-China by sending munitions and arms across the Chinese border unless she is supported by America and England.

Expect British to Follow.

At the present this support does not exist—in fact, it was predicted here that the British, as a result of Japanese air operations around Hongkong, soon will close that port to arms and munitions in transit for China.

China then will be completely cut off from a foreign supply except for the hundreds of miles of caravan trails into Russia, and the western powers will in fact, if not in theory, apply the doctrin of nonintervention as practiced in Spain to the far east.

One remaining hope for the Chinese is Geneva, where a new drive for economic penalties will be made by the Chinese as soon as the Brussels conference ends. That this is a forlorn hope was likewise made clear by Delbos, when he warned that unanimity does not exist among league members and that without unanimity it would be too dangerous for the big powers to take the initiative in any real action.

Mentions Roosevelt Talk.

In reply to communist attacks on his nonintervention policy in China as well as in Spain, Delbos said France asked nothing better than to go further along the path leading to the effective quarantine suggested by President Roosevelt in his Chicago speech. Later in his speech Delbos said emphatically that France could not go any further alone.

The reference to Roosevelt's speech showed that Europeans, at least the French, consider it good strategy to conceal the bitterness they feel at having been led out on the limb by President Roosevelt. It is likely that the powers will try to present the Brussels conference to the public as a victory for Roosevelt's foreign policy.

MAGDA DE FONTANGES.

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The definition of moral turpitude, that vague phrase which covers a multitude of sins, was debated in federal court today when Magda de Fontanges appealed from a deportation order by the labor department.

Judge Samuel Mandelbaum, after hearing widely divergent views on the subject from her attorney, James D. C. Murray, and Assistant United States Attorney Irvin C. Rutter, reserved decision.

Mme. De Fontanges watched the proceedings with interest, but as she understands hardly a word of English, she had to have the whole thing explained to her by an interpreter before she went back to Ellis Island to await the decision.

Her deportation was ordered by a board of review here after her arrival, Nov. 8. She had admitted shooting Count Charles De Chambrun, former French ambassador to Italy, because, she said, he broke up her idyll with Premier Benito Mussolini.

123 KNOWN DEAD IN STORM; LOSS FOUR MILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, Nov. 19.—Manila was threatened tonight by the storm that started Wednesday and thus far has caused the death of 123 persons and done over 4 million dollars damage. This second typhoon to strike the Philippine Islands within a week was the worst in 25 years. The storm now is 100 miles west of central Luzon Island.

Much greater destruction and additional loss of life is expected when reports have been gathered from all provinces, impossible now because of wrecked phone and cable lines.

Drowning accounted for the greatest loss of lives, 65 passengers and members of boat crews having been lost in a 100 mile wind that struck vessels at sea without warning. More than half the homes in some provinces have been demolished.

WELSH DEMAND CABINET SEAT OF PARLIAMENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Welsh nationalists today took a new step in their fight for stronger representation as a separate people.

Clement Davies, a member of the house of commons for Montgomery, Wales, introduced a bill to give Wales a separate cabinet member like Scotland's, a secretary of state for Wales.

White Scottish nationalists complained that is not enough and said that Scotland is no better off than a colony, the Welsh believe even that would be an improvement over the present status. The bill asks for Wales only as much as Scotland already has, Davies announced.

JAPS MASS ARMY FOR BIG BLOW AT CHINESE DEFENSE

Aim Drive at Center of 'Hindenburg Line.'

BULLETIN.

NANKING, Nov. 20 (Saturday).—(AP)—The Chinese government formally announced removal of the nation's capital today to Chungking in Szechwan province.

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 20 (Saturday).—(AP)—Japanese military authorities announced the capture today of Soochow, center of the main Chinese defenses between Shanghai and Nanking.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 19.—The Japanese armies, driving west from Shanghai toward Nanking, the Chinese capital, prepared tonight for a great offensive against the Chinese "Hindenburg line," fifty miles west of this city.

The Japanese had reached a point three miles east of Soochow, key point in the Chinese defenses. Kashing, the southern point in the line, already had been captured by the Japanese, and Changshu, the northern point, was being surrounded.

Ponder Fate of Capital.

Chinese government and military leaders in Nanking meanwhile were closeted in a discussion whether to defend the capital or withdraw their troops, thus saving the city from destruction.

A Japanese military spokesman here, as well as the local Japanese press, expressed deep resentment today over the Chinese government's withdrawal from Nanking of all departments of the national government except the military department. The Japanese claimed this marks the virtual collapse of the central administration.

While forecasting the doom of the Chinese government, the Japanese newspapers, which are controled by military authorities, said they suspect a sinister plot with the connivance of Great Britain, the object of which is to cheat Japan of the fruits of victory.

The newspapers charged that Dictator Chiang Kai-shek discussed the removal of the government beforehand with British authorities. The latter were said to be deeply interested in promoting railway connections designed to bring Szechwan within the economic and geographical sphere of Hongkong.

TELLS OF JAP BOMBING

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 19.—The North China Daily News, a British newspaper, published a letter from a Canadian missionary at Hwaiking, Honan province, which said Japanese planes had made many bombing attacks on small towns in that North China province. Tens of thousands of people have joined in a general flight as a result, the letter said.

The missionary, who is a member of the United Church of Canada, wrote:

"Hurriedly packing bundles of effects, men, women, and children board trains that are overcrowded and resemble two-deckers, due to the number riding on the roofs. Many do not know where they are going, except to get away from the zones terrorized by Japanese bombers."

The letter said the unsettling effect, the suffering and the hardships involved cannot be described and are increasing now that cold weather has set in. Among the bombed towns the writer mentioned were Taokow, Weihwei, Changte [Anyang], Sinsiang, and numerous other coal mining centers, most of them located in a narrow section of Honan province extending north of the Yellow river. The Chinese are being driven south of the river.

The missionary said various towns were "bombed with destructive results, while a crowded train running on a branch line in the direction of Taokow was followed by a low flying plane, which scored a direct hit, killing and wounding many civilians."

Describe Scene of Suffering.

Although national and international groups are at work, chiefly using funds raised abroad, the real problem of caring for refugees in the international settlement and the French concession in Shanghai is practically untouched.

Last night, which was cold and rainy, THE TRIBUNE correspondent counted 63 refugees sleeping on sidewalks, in alleyways, and on doorsteps on the four sides of the block where THE TRIBUNE office is located.

Children were crying and coughing, many on the verge of pneumonia. A few had ragged blankets, but the majority wrapped themselves in straw matting and stretched dirty, ragged sheets or gunny sacks sewed together across doorways to provide privacy and to break the wind.

LABORITE SEEKS TO CENSURE ADMIRAL ON PRAISE OF JAPANESE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 19. — Allegations that a British admiral recently offered congratulations to a Japanese general after the capture of Shanghai will be raised in the house of commons next Monday by G. R. Strauss, a Laborite.

He charged that Admiral Sir Charles Little, who is commander of the British China station, went out of his way to congratulate Gen. Iwane Matsui, Japanese commander, on his military success.

Strauss said he is basing his information on a copy of an official radiogram issued by the Domei news agency, a Japanese government organization.

bassador to the Court of St. James's was revived in diplomatic gossip today when Bingham left somewhat precipitately for the United States aboard the liner Manhattan.

Bingham arrived at Southampton this afternoon just after the Manhattan docked and immediately went to his cabin, where he remained until the ship departed several hours later. He is traveling alone.

Sick Leave Reported.

After Bingham had left London the American embassy issued an official statement that the ambassador has had a recurrence of malaria and has been granted sick leave by Cordell Hull, United States secretary of state.

The statement added that he will "remain in the United States for some time for medical treatment."

No intimation had been given previously that Bingham would be leaving for home, and his presence aboard ship was not revealed until after the liner had cleared.

Back Only Four Weeks.

Bingham had returned from the United States only four weeks ago after an extended stay there.

He departed suddenly from London on Aug. 20, a day after he had announced he would go to Scotland for a hunting trip. His departure at that time was reported variously in the British press as a recall for consultation at the state department and retirement from his post because he was too "pro-British."

Bingham denied these reports. The reports were repeated in London today.

BRITISH EYE U. S. PACT AS CLUB TO USE ON HITLER

Stress Political Angle of Proposed Trade Deal.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 19.—English speaking unity and the political significance of the projected British-American trade alliance were emphasized here today.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain observed in a speech last week at the Guildhall that England expected from the proposed pact benefits far exceeding the immediate advantage to trade. It was disclosed today that the announcement that a basis had been reached for negotiation of the pact was set forward several days. This was because Chamberlain wanted to make the announcement in the house of commons yesterday while Viscount Halifax, lord president of the council in the British cabinet, was preparing for an interview with Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

Visits Hitler's Retreat.

The British estimated that the announcement of a deal between the United States and Great Britain along the lines proposed in the pact would make Hitler "more reasonable" and give Great Britain a bargaining point. Germany appears likely to lose trade, it is believed here, if the pact with the United States becomes effective.

Political effects of the treaty were the subject generally of speculation in London today. Hope was expressed that a lessening of economic tension would result in lessening political tension. Particular gratification was found in the view here that the American attitude seems to be evidence of greater interest in the European political problem.

Seeks a Political Lever.

British opinion appears to feel also that if the dictator countries get the impression that American backing is forthcoming to Great Britain in an alliance, however vague and even if involving ostensibly only trade matters, then the position of the British negotiators will be strengthened.

That the British government hopes to use the trade negotiations to get the United States back into the economic constellation of the British empire was foreshadowed by a further disclosure tonight in London that Earl de la Warr, National Labor peer and lord privy seal in the Chamberlain cabinet, is going to Australia next month on a mission from the British government.

To his ceremonial duties of attending Australia's 150th anniversary will be added political ones of counseling the Australians during trade pact negotiations. It was learned during the day that the Australian cabinet will consider initiating trade talks with America at an early date. The Australian premier, J. A. Lyons, said in Canberra that the United States had indicated its readiness.

Newspapers here tonight spoke generally of the United States joining the empire front as a result of the projected pact.

The Manchester Guardian commented: "The economic consequence of a trade agreement with the United States would be great. Its political consequences would be greater. As American opinion is not slow to realize, this gesture of coöperation between the two great democracies has a peculiar importance.

"It is the answer to the closed economies of the totalitarian states. It comes opportunely on the eve of Viscount Halifax's conversations in Berchtesgaden."

The Manchester Guardian asserted the belief that the decision to negotiate means that the dominion governments are prepared in principle for revision of the Ottawa agreements which will enable the British to make tarif concessions to the United States, and it suggested that if things have gone this far, "political desirability has influenced the preliminary talks."

Screw in Lung

MELVIN MARTIN.

Columbus, O., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Blue eyed little Melvin Martin showed no discomfort—only fright at spectators—late today when he and his mother were forced by bad weather to halt a plane race to a Philadelphia hospital for removal of a screw lodged in the two year old boy's right lung.

A Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., plane stopped here because of snow, and Mrs. Maurice Martin took Melvin to a hotel before boarding a train to Philadelphia.

Mrs. Martin took the lad to Wichita, Kas., Monday after he swallowed the screw at their home in Blackwell, Okla. She started east after Wichita surgeons were unable to remove it.

ADMITS $500 CHECK FRAUDS.

Robert Bodinoff, 37 years old, 1723 Kimball avenue, admitted he had passed bad checks totaling nearly $500 when he was arrested yesterday by the Cragin police. He said he used the money to bet on the races.

U. S. AGENTS LAUNCH QUIZ ON ACTIVITY OF BUND IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The United States department of justice had agents in Milwaukee today investigating the strength of the German-American volksbund, a Hitler organization, and the summer camp it operated on the Milwaukee river in Ozaukee county last summer.

The department of justice is interested, it was said, in learning to what extent citizens of German nationality and descent are in sympathy with the development of the bund. There is a disposition among the old established Germans to discount the importance and the influence of the society.

The inquiry is a consequence of charges made by Congressman Samuel J. Dickstein of New York that the bund's camps actually were military training grounds for Nazis.

HITLER, HALIFAX SWAP VIEWS IN FIRESIDE CHAT

Way Believed Paved for Visit by Chamberlain.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—For five hours today Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler conferred with Viscount Halifax, lord president of the council in the British cabinet, who came to Germany as a special emissary to confer with Nazi officials on Anglo-German relations. Hitler and Halifax talked in the presence of Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister, and Dr. Paul Schmidt, Germany's crack interpreter, in Hitler's imposing mountain mansion, Berghof, near Berchtesgaden in Bavaria.

The conversations progressed so well that best informed circles in Berlin declared that the way is paved for a visit to Berlin of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain, or, if this proves unfeasible, a visit of Foreign Minister von Neurath to London.

Viscount Halifax and Von Neurath arrived at the Berchtesgaden station at 9:40 a. m. and then drove in Hitler's caterpillared car to Berghof.

The journey over the steep, winding mountain roads in fine, clear weather with excellent views of Alpine scenery obviously entranced Halifax and helped prepare a good atmosphere for the "momentous discussions"—as the official news agency termed them. The agency strictly refrained from giving any details of the talk.

Hitler first showed Halifax over the house, and then they entered the study, where, sitting around the fireside, they remained in earnest conversation for one and a half hours.

JAPS CAN MAINTAIN WAR PACE ONLY UNTIL JULY, SAYS OBSERVER

Japan has lost the bulk of its foreign currencies and gold, has depleted its materials of war, and can carry on the fighting in China at its present pace no longer than the end of June. These statements were made yesterday by Burton Crane in an address before the Chicago Council of Foreign relations in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house. Mr. Crane was formerly financial editor of the Japan Advertiser and correspondent in Japan for several American financial papers.

THE UNDIVIDED PROFITS TAX.

August Schmidt, who owns the big neighborhood grocery, started with $700 and built up a one hundred thousand dollar a year business. Gus drew out money for the living expenses of his large family, to buy a house and subscribe for Liberty bonds. The rest, after cutting Uncle Sam in for an ever increasing share, went into a store building, constantly modernized fixtures and equipment and a steadily increasing stock. His fine looking modern store was made possible by putting the profits back into the business.

Other business has grown in the same way. Corporations big enough to have their practices known have over the years paid out a little over half of the earnings in dividends, retaining the rest for development. New buildings and machinery have been paid for out of the retained earnings.

Successful business generally has developed by the application of Gus Schmidt methods on a large scale. The retained earnings of corporations have resulted in vast expenditures for machinery and for construction work. Corporate savings played an important part in creating the jobs which made it possible for the soldiers returning from war to find work to do.

In 1936 the government adopted a tax which was intended to force corporations to pay out all of their earnings in dividends. In addition to the steadily increasing rate of ordinary taxes, corporations which kept back earnings out of which to pay for new buildings and equipment were heavily penalized for doing so. A corporation which earned $400,000 after all other federal taxes, and which paid out dividends of $200,000, was taxed $31,000 for keeping back the other half of its earnings for development. Assuming that the company had plans to spend $169,000 for a new building, the tax had the effect of increasing the cost by nearly 20 per cent.

The tax was successful in forcing many corporations to pay out to their stockholders all, or substantially all, of the earnings which would have been retained and which would have resulted in large employment creating expenditures. The companies in large part paid the dividend instead of paying the tax.

These were the dividends which assumed torrential proportions last fall and winter. In December dividend payments were the largest for any month in history, although corporation earnings were but a fraction of those for previous prosperity years.

What did those who received dividends do with their money? A considerable part went to the government as tax. The government in turn used the money to pay a part of the cost of the largest federal pay rolls in peacetime history. Some was used by the stockholders to buy luxury goods or services. But a large part of the swollen dividend stream was diverted into the stock market. The timing of the payments and the stock market rise were in perfect correlation.

It was these funds, withdrawn from productive uses to pay dividends, which drove security prices to the high levels from which there has now been a collapse. Many of the corporations, which paid dividends to avoid the tax, hoped to get other funds by selling their securities later. But for six months it has been impossible to sell any considerable quantities of new securities because of the competition with government bonds issued to finance the national deficit. A number of corporations have been obliged to abandon their plans for development because of a lack of funds.

Thus the effect of the surplus earnings tax has been twofold. It produced a boom in stocks which was succeeded by a disastrous decline, and it acted to starve corporations of funds for expansion and development.

The surplus earnings tax is being condemned in congress by some of the leaders who facilitated its passage. It has been called by well qualified experts the worst tax ever enacted in any country. Its repeal is urgently called for if corporations are not to be prevented from making capital expenditures for another year.

KLUX AND CAGOULARDS.

Now that the French, as is discovered by the Paris police, have endeavored to adapt the Ku Klux Klan to their own uses, we may expect that this organization will obtain all the advantages which should naturally flow from the culture of the foster parent. The French Kluxers are known as the Cagoulards, which is in the way of being an improvement in the beginning.

There is more than a gulf of time between François Villon and the imperial wizard, Hiram Evans. Whatever good may be said of Hiram, he lacked romanticism. Even in full regalia with a nightgown and a hood, administering the inviolable and eternal oath, he'd never make a good play or a romantic song. He wouldn't do for "Lodging for the Night," "If I Were King," or "Where Are the Snows of Yesteryear?"

Hiram wouldn't make even a good Knight of the Camelias. He might fit in the picture of a justice of the peace, but it would be a mistake to rely upon him for anything beyond that or to invest him with any higher dignities outside of the mystic circle.

The extensive armament of the Cagoulards found in the back room of an antique shop on the left bank of the Seine might indicate that the Parisian Kluxers were about to undertake something quite as elevating in its purposes and inspired in its conception as the gunpowder plot of Guy Fawkes and his sponsors to blow up the house of parliament.

Our Kluxers have never aspired so high. A night ride on a lonely cottage or some kindling burned on a desolate hillside about exhausts their imagination and their courage.

FASCIST BIG BROTHERS SMILE ON BRAZIL.

When Il Duce heard the news from Rio that President Vargas had proposed a new constitution for Brazil on totalitarian lines he was quick to applaud. Il Duce is the author of the new diplomatic concept, ideological coöperation. Il Duce and Der Fuehrer are ideological buddies. Il Duce embraces President Vargas, metaphorically, as another ideological buddy. The picture suggested is not unclear. It discloses all Fascist dictatorships, great and small, European, Asiatic, and American, in a brotherhood of Fascist ideology under the leadership and direction, of course, of the two big brothers in Rome and Berlin, especially Rome. Thus all dictators, except the communist dictator in Moscow, would support one another and exchange benefits, while the democratic governments would pass from the scene along with the outworn ideology of democracy.

Whether the dictators of South America or the ruling classes which support them will be attracted by this very practical application of the Fascist ideology we do not venture to predict, but we are assailed by doubts. We do not know how far President Vargas is governed by the same ideology as Il Duce and Der Fuehrer, but we could understand a reluctance on his part and on the part of such of the Brazilian people as have influence upon policy to enter very eagerly into the embraces of this ideological project. There are some 800,000 inhabitants of German ancestry occupying a very rich region of the present republic, and with the active support and coöperation of an ideological brother in Berlin it is conceivable that President Vargas and his party might wake some morning to find that an ideological brotherhood may have unpleasant consequences.

In fact, it may have some significance that President Vargas, before the echo of Il Duce's applause has died away, has taken occasion to declare that the friendly ties between his country and the United States would be not only maintained but enlarged and reënforced. In view of the financial situation in Brazil this seems a plausible indication that President Vargas' international policy is not yet wholly under the sway of the Fascist ideology, however admirable to Il Duce the new domestic arrangements appear.

Nevertheless the possibilities of an ideological conquest of South America, with its practical consequences in terms of material control, cannot be without interest in this country. An ideological battle squadron, bearing the fasces or swastika, would give to the Monroe Doctrin a point dulled through many years of immunity from foreign alarms on the western continents.

LISTENING IN ON ICKES.

Secretary Ickes of the department of the interior says that if any one tapped his private telephone lines it was of small concern to him; that any one was welcome to listen to any conversation he held on public business at any time. There was a report in Washington that the secretary had asked the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company to find out why his telephone conversations were mechanically unsatisfactory and investigation led to the suspicion that unknown persons were listening in.

If there were more abundant proof that the planned society had a GPU, there would not be so much doubt obscuring the incident. It would be taken for granted that Mr. Ickes was suspected of counter-revolutionary activities and that some other commissar was trying to get the goods on him. The freedom with which the old timers of the Roosevelt revolution have taken their hats and departed from Washington to become free lances, critics, and Trotzkyites, mentioning only Mr. Moley and Gen. Johnson, seems to prove that our reformists and planners can jump the ranch whenever they want to.

If anybody has been listening in on Mr. Ickes' conversations it is almost certainly explained by the approaching Christmastide. Some one couldn't wait to learn just how the secretary is going to dress his Christmas tree and for whom.

Editorial of the Day

THE KING'S ENGLISH.

[Christian Science Monitor.]

English, as it is spoken and written, is coming in for a great deal of criticism just now; letters protesting against its misuse in public are continually appearing in the British press. Unwanted neologisms and slang, meaningless clichés and pedantic nonsense, ugly, slovenly, and unutterable phrases, have all been pilloried. It is obviously felt that, in the words of Mr. A. P. Herbert: "Piratical, ruffianly, masked, braggart, and ill-bred words invade our language and lay waste our thought every day."

It is too true.

Never before has the onslaught been so fierce; for never in the past have people been able to reach and influence with their words so many of their fellows at once. A split infinitive can be round the world in a split second; the "jungle English" of a careless reporter encroaches simultaneously on a hundred thousand breakfast tables; and a new coinage of Hollywood slang is soon legal tender in a million homes.

The actual process of change is, of course, essential in a living language; words are added, or become obsolete, change their meaning or their status, and the slang of today is often staid and respectable tomorrow. The problem is how to regulate the change. It can hardly be solved by any deliberate method. So long, however, as there are sufficient people who care about the matter, and who act instinctively upon Pope's dictum,

In words, as fashions, the same rule will hold,
Alike fantastic if too new or old:
Be not the first by whom the new are tried,
Nor yet the last to lay the old aside, the language is scarcely likely to go the way of the gentleman who was "overcome by the exuberance of his own verbosity." If one may judge from the correspondence referred to above, there is no lack of such reliable folk.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

SINCE THERE DIDN'T SEEM to be any one around with a big caldron melting that asphalt they were using to resurface North Michigan avenue, there was nothing else to do but stop and ask about it so we could tell you today. They heat it 5½ miles away, at 25th and Throop streets, and bring it in trucks that have asbestos linings. It's about 350 degrees Fahrenheit when it arrives. If the truck broke down, the asphalt would remain hot enough to use for four hours.

The thin tarry stuff they sprayed over the old surface first was put there to keep the asphalt from slipping. Mr. R. D. MacLean and Mr. John Watters have resurfaced so many streets they knew that wouldn't be enough alone to hold the new surface, because asphalt just never stays where you put it. When the thin coat was dry they gave their men picks and had them go around chipping holes. Then, when they put the surface down, it hooked right into the holes and got anchored, and stuck to the first coat, too.

Those steel runners like double-bladed skates the workmen fasten on their shoes aren't to protect them against the heat by raising them up four inches above the asphalt at all. If the men walked on the asphalt in their shoes, hot as it is, it wouldn't burn much through the heavy soles. But a pair of shoes, with a 175 pound man in them, will pack down the asphalt almost as much as a steam roller, in the spots where he steps. That would leave the roadway full of depressions that all the tamping and leveling and packing in the world couldn't keep from being bumps. The runners, Mr. MacLean has found, hold his men up in the manner of snowshoes in a snow while the men spread the surface and level it for the roller. They're lots o' fun to wear, the men say, being springy and giving somewhat the same effect as pogo sticks must, but they tire your ankles. Another thing the men enjoy is heating the metal tamps until they're red in the kerosene burners for smoothing the surface along the curbs.

The steam rollers that finish the surface after it has been spread and scraped and brushed weigh ten tons each. Without water they'd stick to the asphalt and ruin all the surface just laid, and so, although you probably wouldn't notice, a thin stream of water trickles over the rolling wheels all the time. The rollers require 100 pounds of steam pressure, and you just kindle them in the morning like a cooking stove. If you're going to buy a roller, get a gasoline one; only $9,000 and as easy to handle as a new car. Mr. MacLean had one on the avenue. It wasn't as big as the others, but it weighed more because its wheels were tanks, filled with water. The steam roller men are dreadfully embarrassed if they leave lines or ridges and go back and roll and roll and roll until they take them every one out. Bumps you'd never even detect in a car rattle the steam roller men's teeth, because the rollers have no springs or rubber tires. It's up to the roller men to report them and see that they're fixed. The white powder that's put on the surface last is cement, to harden the asphalt and make it pretty.

THERE IS ON THE NORTH SIDE an old church which is a landmark to thousands who pass; yet relatively few of them know the marvels of its rock garden, or suspect that tucked away with the garden is an entire menagerie. Hyde Parkers hurry all summer past a quaint, old fashioned flower garden, unaware of the gay flower beds they might see if they were inquiring enough to wonder what lies beyond the shrubbery which towers above. FROSTBITE PRECAUTIONS.

MOST of us regard frostbite as of little consequence and only a few of the thousands of instances of nipped ears, noses, and chins will be accompanied by serious after effects. A few days of smarting, swelling, and peeling of the skin and all is well.

But now and then the exposure to cold is followed by real distress. That is true especially with those who are victims of diabetes or arteriosclerosis. If the capillaries are reduced in number, and the volume of blood reaching certain regions is only a fraction of what it should be, extra care is in order.

This accounts for the fact that among a group of men working under the same conditions of cold and wind one or two will develop the disorder, the balance remaining free.

How can we recognize the danger to fingers and toes? The first symptom is lack of feeling. In other words, the part affected becomes anesthetized and if warmth is not provided there is real danger of the loss of tissue. Occasionally only partial healing will ensue, leaving an ulcer which defies all efforts at repair.

Every one who is susceptible should watch the fingers and toes. If adequate clothing is provided there will be little trouble, but damp mittens and socks are of little value. What is needed is sufficient insulation to retain the warmth of the body so that the circulation will not be interfered with. It has been found that whenever proper gloves, ear muffs, and dry socks are at hand the number of cases decreases correspondingly.

Some patients are misled by the appearance of the skin. After freezing takes place the epidermis is blanched or white. Later, however, it becomes pinkish or it may assume a purplish hue. One might infer from this that recovery has come about and that the blood vessels are now sending adequate nourishment to the tissues. This, however, is not the case. On the contrary, capillaries probably have become plugged with clotted blood.

A good test is to hold the finger or the foot in the proximity of heat, whereupon a return of the numbness and tingling is accompanied by excruciating pain and swelling as fluid escapes from the capillaries. This means that a serious freeze has occurred and, a day or two later, complete shutting off of the blood may usher in gangrene.

Emergency treatment consists in anything that will improve the circulation. Warming the parts, however, should be undertaken gradually. Hot, stimulating drinks may be administered and the patient is better off in bed. It is extremely desirable that infection be guarded against as many a slight affair has been complicated through the neglect of this precaution. The use of heat is far better than rubbing the skin with snow, which may predispose to the planting of bacteria in impaired areas. No chemicals should be applied, because that procedure too may lead to infection. A dry dressing is best. If blisters form, these may be opened and emptied under sterile precautions. If bluish or very dark spots become visible, gangrene may be in the offing. Here, wet dressings should be started which may be kept warm with a heat lamp.

Mishaps of this sort are not so important with young people, but with those past middle life preventive measures should be taken because the circulation gradually slows even in those engaged in regular activity. Should this type of accident present itself at any age, however, it must not be regarded lightly. Prompt attention may not only save considerable suffering but even life. Outdoor workers, particularly, during the coming months of low temperature may well employ every safeguard.

LUMPS UNDER SKIN.

R. E. E. writes: What causes whiteheads on the skin and hard white lumps under the skin? They form particularly under the eyes. I try to keep my skin clean, washing it with soap several times daily. What is the best method of removal?

REPLY.

The cause is unknown, but it is most frequently seen on the eyelids and over the cheek bones of women of middle age—particularly those with oily skins. It probably is due to a constitutional defect of the sebaceous gland cells. Treatment is incision of the lesions with a very fine sharp knife and expression of the cystic material. An ointment containing 5 per cent salicylic acid and 10 per cent sulphur is suggested by some writers.

ABOUT DEMENTIA PRAECOX.

R. B. writes: What are the symptoms of dementia praecox [schizophrenia]?

REPLY.

The name schizophrenia means split personality. It implies a lack of coördination between the intellectual and the emotional life. The general behavior of the victim records many odd, bizarre, silly reactions. There are mannerisms, impulsive outbreaks, slovenliness of personal dress and manners, and tendency to fixed postures. Dream states, incoherent, rambling discourse with evasiveness, and sometimes silence are predominant signs. The most striking symptom is the separation of the emotional from intellectual life. There are four recognized types.

BLEACHING OF HAIR.

M. J. F. writes:

1. Is the constant use of peroxide in bleaching hair on arms, legs and face dangerous?
2. How often may it be used safely?
3. How do 10, 17 and 20 volumes of peroxide compare as to safety?

REPLY.

1. Peroxide of hydrogen is safe, provided the parts are washed with soap and water both before and after the bleaching process.
2. As frequently as desired.
3. One is as safe as another.

MAY BE REINFECTION.

R. A. writes:

1. Does a parasitical rash remain after the disappearance of the parasite?
2. If so, is there a remedy for the irritation [itching] or is medical treatment necessary?

REPLY.

1. Such a rash usually disappears after removal of the cause.
2. If irritation continues, the probability of infection, new or old, still exists.

THE WILL TO SNEEZE.

B. G. writes: When I have the desire to sneeze, I can't. What is wrong?

REPLY.

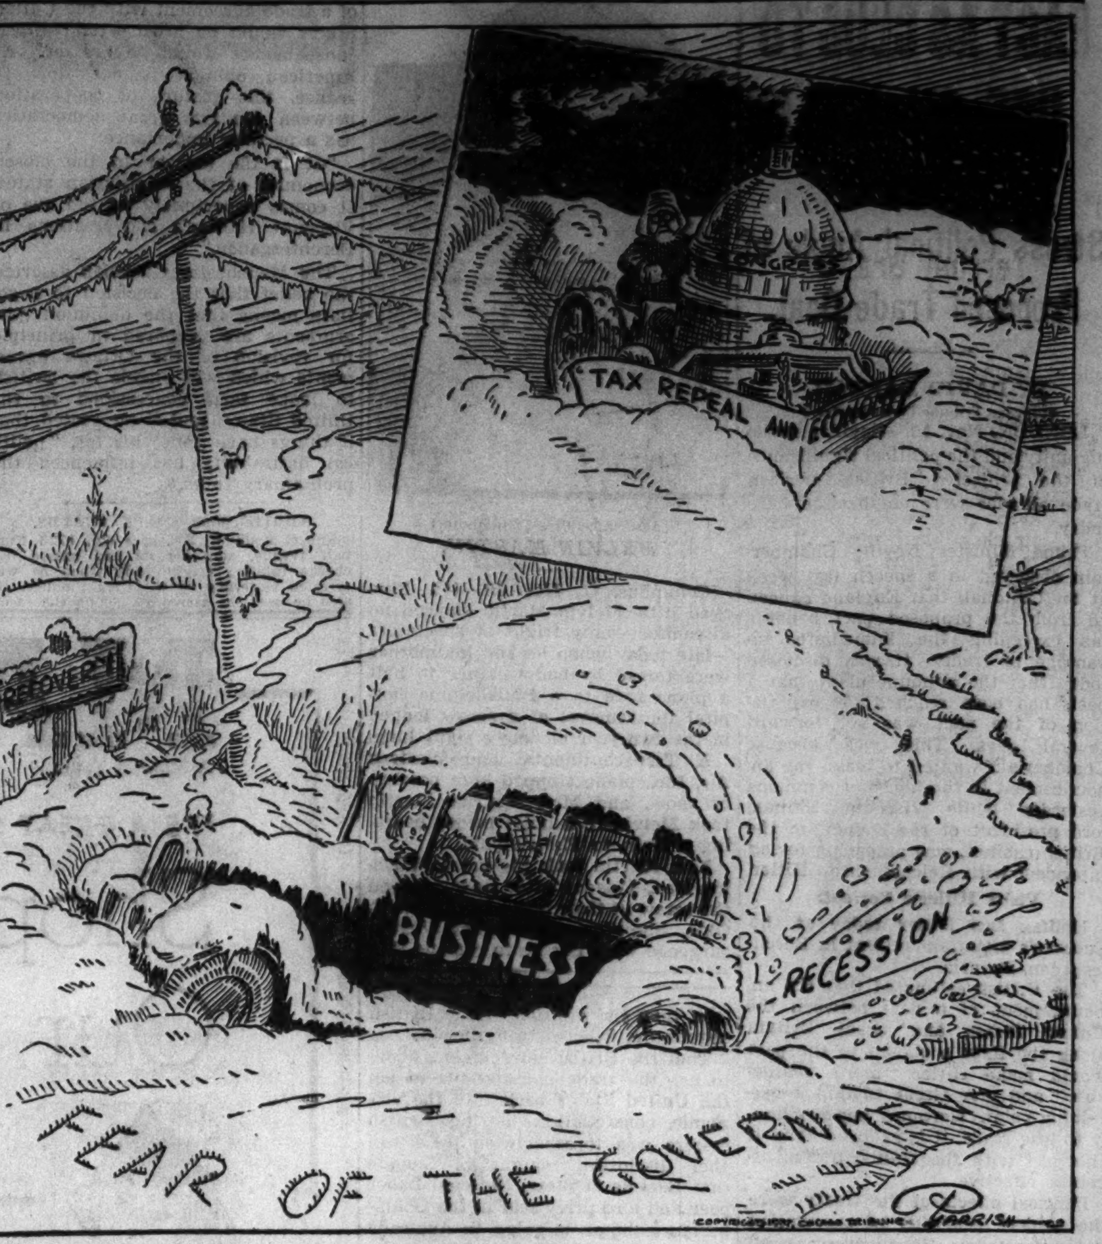
BETTER OPEN UP THE ROAD BEFORE WE GET FROZEN IN FOR THE WINTER



From Across the Sea

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Divorce reformers still are having heavy going in England in spite of their apparent victory in passage of A. P. Herbert's "easier divorce" law this year. "Easier divorce law" is its popular name, but lawyers say divorces still will not be easy, because Britons are rushing to take advantage of it to such an extent that the courts will be hopelessly swamped. Two new judges are to be asked of parliament, but there will be the burden of finding courts for them to sit in.

London's big, grimy law court building is so overtaxed that when extra judges sit they are stationed in wooden shacks built during the world war. Financing of any new buildings is a problem because taxes already are regarded as about all Britons can carry.

With adultery still the sole grounds for divorce [until Jan. 1], 600 cases—all undefended—had to be carried over the summer recess because the courts were swamped. When the courts reopened Oct. 11 there were 1,351 undefended cases waiting. How many there will be after Jan. 1, when desertion, cruelty or insanity become additional grounds for divorce, nobody knows.

Another problem is the question of just when it will become possible to enter suit for divorce on the grounds of desertion. Three years' desertion, the law says, and according to its backers that means that any one deserted by wife or husband on or before Jan. 1, 1935, can enter suit on Jan. 1, 1938.

Opponents of easier divorce, fighting to the last ditch, say it means they must wait until Jan. 1, 1941. They deny the law is retroactive. The law is not specific on this point. The judges will have to decide that.

It takes about a year to get a divorce, even if the suit is unopposed.

There is no Reno spirit about the rush to take advantage of the new law, lawyers say. In most cases one party or the other has been deserted for years, but that was not enough. They had to bring into court good evidence of adultery before the divorce could be granted. Such persons are single to all intents and purposes except that they cannot legally remarry.

For that reason vast numbers of couples in England live together without marriage. Lawyers have protested that the old divorce law was used for blackmail and hope that the new one will end it. Under the old law, before divorcing the other partner who wanted to remarry, some husbands or wives would insist on stringent conditions, financial or otherwise, being met. The fact that the new law apparently will curb such abuses is said to be one factor in causing the divorce rush. To prevent record congestion, the suggestion has been made that the divorce courts be separated from the probate and admiralty courts and changes made to allow all divorce cases outside London to be heard at the local assizes.

CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—[Friend of the People.]—A friend claims that a man from Canada, who is here on a visit, can become a citizen of the United States by marrying a woman who is a citizen and stay here without any further trouble. My belief is that if they do marry the woman not only forfeits her citizenship but can in no way help him to enter the United States or go to Canada as a citizen of that country. In other words, she would lose her rights and gain nothing by this move. Am I right? S.

The man would not become a citizen by marrying a citizen, nor may he remain in the United States beyond the duration of his visit. The woman will not lose her citizenship by marriage to an alien as under the act of Sept. 22, 1922, the citizenship of married women is independent of that of their husbands. If they do marry the citizen wife may, if she desires, petition for the issuance of a preference immigration visa in behalf of her husband. Whether or not she may enter Canada depends upon the Canadian laws.

MORE SPEEDWAYS IN THE PARKS.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—So the park district officials are to get another windfall—$4,500,000 to spend as they please. What about the ordinary citizen and taxpayer, who must finally pay the piper? Has he no voice as to how and for what this sugar is to be spent? He has not! The powers that be simply plan to suit themselves and make us like it. It would seem they are obsessed with a single objective—to build more and more motor speedways, regardless of the safety and convenience of thousands of Chicagoans who still hold the quaint idea that the public parks are for the pleasure and recreation of all the people.

According to the tentative program, Lincoln park will receive the lion's share of the improvement funds. The "improvement" consists in further despoiling the beauty of the park by building bigger and better speedways. The crowning act of desecration is the proposed filling in of the beautiful Lincoln park lagoon to make room for a new section of the outer drive. The scenic beauty of this waterway and its advantages as a safe place for boating and water sports have long provided pleasure and recreation for countless thousands. Residents of the north side should make a concerted effort to stop this piece of vandalism. There is no evidence to prove the necessity for this additional drive.

Another wasteful proposal, which will cut a big slice off the park at Belmont harbor, is the construction of an additional express trafic lane between Belmont avenue and Byron street. This will bring the drive close to the shore line of the harbor, and it means the destruction of many trees and crowding out foot and bridle paths. The great, wide existing lanes seem quite adequate to care for all trafic needs.

Now that the entire Chicago lake front is one grand motor speedway it is high time to call a halt on the incessant demands of the motor lobby. There are many other make-work projects yet to be developed, and many which have been started should be finished. Give the non-motoring half of the public a break for a change—a chance to enjoy the beauties of our public parks, and participate in the recreational facilities, now available and proposed. Finish the small parks and playgrounds, the new part of Lincoln park, and construct a system of cycle-paths for the safety and convenience of the increasing thousands of bike enthusiasts. W. T. F.

VAUDEVILLE.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—If a million vaudeville performers and musicians were put back in the theaters where they belong another million could take the jobs that the actors and musicians now hold. The Majestic theater here in Chicago has been closed for over ten years. There are theaters closed in every city in the country. The public wants vaudeville. Why not give it to them? Young talent has been piling up for the last ten years.

JACK AITKEN.

THE PROBLEM OF RELIEF.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—In an editorial in THE TRIBUNE recently I noted that it was the opinion of the writer that it will require the best brains of the city or country to solve the question of unemployment, and incidentally, the matter of the dole as it is tied up with unemployment.

Except as these questions are tied up with politics, as they obviously are, all that is required is the exercise of a little common sense.

1. We cannot allow suffering among those who will play ball.
2. Provision should be made to supplement occasional earnings without cutting off a man, who wishes to work when opportunity offers, from financial help really needed.
3. We must have certain knowledge as to whether we have on our rolls any who do not really need help.
4. Cut out the political grafters who draw dole when not at all necessary.
5. Consolidate public employment agencies into one office and know who are offered work and refuse it, and those who have obtained work and leave or are discharged, and why.
6. Withdraw help from those who will not accept jobs offered, permanently. In other words, work when possible or starve.
7. Fill all the jobs open, then use pressure to induce the employment of additional men whenever possible.
8. Supervise WPA and PWA jobs and see that the men are doing a fair day's work, not leaning on shovels.

In other words, let's get down to business locally, even if there is no one in Washington with any conception as to what business means. Absorb the results obtained at Salt Lake City and Cincinnati, and know how it was done.

Money is worth what may be secured by its expenditure. Many billions already expended have gone into rat holes; and even worse than that, two generations will be required to offset and outlive the damage done to our morale.

ALONG THE DES PLAINES RIVER.

Lockport, Ill., Nov. 12.—Situated along the east bank of the Des Plaines river, between Chicago and Joliet, are thousands of acres of public owned land. This area was once a recreational spot for thousands of sportsmen from surrounding communities.

Today squatters and lease claimers are claiming this land which is rightfully public property and should be public hunting and fishing grounds.

Who has the authority to lease this area for a few measly dollars?

These people who claim they have these areas leased use this land for their own profit. They collect tolls from every person who trespasses. They threatened me with arrest and used force to drive me out.

PARIS PUT UNDER GUARD; REVOLT PLOT CHARGED

Premier Calls Situation 'Terribly Grave.'

PARIS, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Premier Camille Chautemps told the chamber of deputies tonight a situation of "terrible gravity" had been disclosed by the government's investigation of secret revolutionary societies.

Armed mobile guards were stationed about government buildings as police struck at what authorities believed to be a rightist revolutionary committee organized to seize power and apparently capable of waging warfare on a nation-wide scale.

The Radical-Socialist premier said the government would ask special legislation to reinforce its swift action against a secret society known as "Les Cagoulards" [the hooded ones], thought to be one section of the revolutionary group.

Cabinet Wins Confidence Vote.

The chamber gave the People's Front government a 399 to 160 vote of confidence after Chautemps pledged the cabinet to preserve "republican order" at home and defend peace abroad.

After a conference with Chautemps, Minister of the Interior Marx Dormoy said, "The affair is getting bigger and more serious every minute."

All ministries were coöperating in the effort to crush the organization before it could take action. Large stores of arms and ammunition, including anti-aircraft, anti-tank, and even field guns, were discovered by police in a series of raids throughout the country. The government was making every effort to uncover the financial and political backers of the organization.

Arms from Hitler and Duce.

The disclosure last September that "Les Cagoulards" existed put the government secret police on the trail of a parent organization. The raids of the last few days netted five "unit" caches of arms and the government believed one section of the revolutionary committee had been smashed.

Police found not only arms, many of which were of Italian and German make, but secret radio sets and parts of uniforms.

It has been an open secret in extreme rightist circles that an organization, known as the Comite de la Revolution Nationale, or National Revolutionary committee, had been formed, with members chosen carefully from all parties or from outside the parties.

Operates on Military Plan.

Extreme rightists have reported the organization was operating efficiently on a nationwide basis and on a military plan.

The newspaper Le Soir said the plot had developed to an extent that "a high military personality—one whispers the name of a marshal of France—has been approached by a group asking if he would preside over a new government which would be formed."

Leaders Hide Identity.

Only a handful of the members, rightists said, knew who were the real leaders of the organization. Each "section" was described as headed by a colonel and composed of a number of units—never more than fifty men—with its own arms cache and source of supply.

The hooded society was reported to have been formed by a small group of regular army officers, reserve officers, and rightist leaders in June, 1936, just as the first People's Front government of Leon Blum came to power.

Picture of girl found in the effects of slaying victim.

Youngstown, O., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Ohio authorities investigating the mysterious slaying of Thomas Donaldson Kates, 40 years old, of Pittsburgh, whose body was found hanging from a rafter in a shed adjoining a rural schoolhouse, are hopeful of learning the identity of the young woman whose picture was found in a notebook in the dead man's suitcase near the body. Police hoped the young woman might throw light on Kates' acquaintances and the possible motive for the crime. Money Kates reportedly was carrying was missing, leading to the theory he was robbed and slain.

MOVE TO CRUSH NEW MAFIA; 80 SICILIANS JAILED

Terrorists Kill, Steal, Rob and Kidnap.

MESSINA, Sicily, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A wave of criminal activity in Sicily, similar to that of the Mafia before its suppression, was disclosed today with the arrest of 80 persons.

The prisoners, rounded up as authorities acted swiftly to prevent a recurrence of a reign of Black Hand terror such as once afflicted the island, were charged with murder, robbery, kidnaping, and other offenses. They will be tried Dec. 22.

Public Officials Slain.

The accused operated, authorities said, in the Trapani region, on the western tip of Sicily, which is filled with almost inaccessible mountain refuges.

Like the Mafia [terrorists] of old, they apparently believed in direct action against authorities. Among the persons they are charged with having killed were Mayor Perricone of Vita, his brother, a prefecture commissioner, and a militiaman.

Other charges against members of the group include cattle theft and shielding of delinquents—all so-called Mafia specialties.

Overthrown by Mussolini.

For almost 5 years the Mafia virtually controled Sicily, intimidating officials, levying tribute on citizens, robbing and killing.

Internal feuds of the organization spread to North and South America. Shortly after Fascism came to power Premier Mussolini decreed its ruthless suppression. Its power was broken and the once powerful members were distributed among Italian jails and penal colonies.

CHURCH REFUSES TO RISK POWER OVER MARRIAGES

Declines to Ask British Parliamentary Law.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The annual Anglican church assembly decided today that the use of the church service in the remarriage of divorced persons was not a serious enough evil to warant risking the church's wealth and privileges as the established state church in an effort to obtain a law against such use of the ceremony.

The marriage of the duke and duchess of Windsor by the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine of the Anglican church in defiance of his superiors in the church started the campaign for parliamentary action. Five weeks after the marriage Lord Hugh Cecil, a layman active in church affairs, introduced a motion, to which the last two sessions of the church assembly, presided over by the archbishop of Canterbury yesterday and today, have been devoted.

Fear Loss of Privilege.

A motion was made that a committee be formed to draft a law for presentation to parliament forbidding use of the Anglican service for the remarriage of persons who have been divorced and whose former spouses still are living.

The assembly, warned yesterday by eminent churchmen and members of parliament that the house of commons would not pass the bill, but contrarily might react to the request by ousting the church from its privileged position, decided to drop the campaign.

The archbishop of Canterbury, Lieutenant Commander P. G. Agnew, member of parliament, and Sir Francis Fremantle, a member of parliament for 19 years, added their warning to that given by Dr. Norman Williams, Oxford divinity professor. Dr. Williams had cautioned the assembly that the church might be cut loose from the state and might lose property and privileges held since ancient times.

Simply Condemns Marriages.

The assembly voted to condemn such marriages, but not to ask parliament to legislate against the practice.

One point brought out during the debate was that such a law meant more government interference in church affairs when the church was trying to reduce such interfence.

Much church property also would revert to the crown if the church were disestablished, and the church would lose its seats in the house of lords.

BEDAUX REACHES BRITAIN; PLANS A STATEMENT

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Charles E. Bedaux today hurried from an Atlantic liner's gangplank at Greenock, near Glasgow, toward London, Paris and a reunion with the duke of Windsor, for whose postponed American tour he was to have been guide.

Bedaux said he expected to make an "official statement" within three days, presumably after he has seen the duke in Paris. Bedaux and his wife expect to go to Paris tomorrow or Sunday.

Bedaux, efficiency expert who figured in a labor storm in the United States that resulted in indefinite postponement of the Windsors' trip, met questioners with several denials. He insisted he intended to retain his American citizenship. He denied charges he is a Fascist, declaring he could not afford to associate with Fascists. He said he is not interested in politics.

EDWARD'S SUIT INVOLVING BOOK SET FOR HEARING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 19.—"Windsor against William Heinemann, Ltd., and another"—in other words the libel suit brought by the duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII. of Great Britain, against the publisher and author of a book—is on the list of cases due for a hearing this term, it was revealed today. The book involved is Geoffrey Dennis' "Coronation Commentary," which concerned Edward's abdication. The Heinemann company was the publisher. Edward's lawyer forced withdrawal of the book on the grounds that it libeled Edward and his duchess. It was assumed the suit would be dropped after withdrawal of the book, but today's list of cases which will be "mentioned" on Monday before Baron Hewart, lord chief justice of England, included the duke's case.

Milwaukee Archbishop Forbids Games of Chance in Churches

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The Catholic archbishop of Milwaukee, the Most Rev. Samuel A. Stritch, today dealt a blow to bingo, a hilarious type of gambling game that has recently grown so in popularity that it was used to add to the finances of many of the church societies.

Archbishop Stritch.

In a letter to pastors the archbishop forbade games of chance on any church premises. He also forbade the sale or consumption of liquor at any church affairs, but declined to define a church position on the tavern reform movement that followed a recent investigation of Milwaukee night life by a committee of Protestant ministers. Tavern closing is a job for the city authorities, he indicated.

Relies on Authorities.

Concerning the tavern closing campaign Archbishop Stritch wrote the priests: "We feel the authorities have the situation in hand and will do the right thing. We feel they are constantly trying to be just. Certain tavern abuses exist, but we hesitate to place the blame for them on the city authorities.

"All in all, we believe that with the information they have at hand, they will be able to form a better program of tavern regulation than with the meager information we might have."

The bingo games in the church halls and the games that have been part of the annual bazar of the Socialist party have been one of the defenses of the pin ball and slot machine operators when attacked by the police and courts.

Allege Discrimination.

The operators have raised the cry of discrimination and sought to embarrass the authorities by placing themselves in the same categories as the church bazars. Bingo is an adaptation of the old western game of keno. At the bazars it usually is played with kernels of corn and numbered paddles.

"We insist that there be no chance games at churches or institutional benefits or recreational activities for which prizes are given in money or its equivalent," the archbishop said. "We understand that there must be prizes, but we insist that they be of such nature that there can be no accusation of gambling in the real sense of the word."

OUTSIDE ATTACK ON CITY SCHOOLS HIT BY JOHNSON

Unjust criticism of the Chicago school system, which it is charged has come from out-of-town educators, will hereafter receive a prompt official reply. This was announced by Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, when an answer was made yesterday to Dr. Jesse H. Newlon of the teachers' college of Columbia university, who was quoted as telling the Chicago Woman's club recently that there has been little improvement in Chicago school buildings in the last five years.

In a letter to Dr. Newlon, Don C. Rogers, director of the school building survey, cited the fact that in the last five years 50 building projects have been completed at a cost of $12,000,000 and 599 portable have been eliminated, leaving only 93 of them.

900 Cases of Liquor Sold at Low Price in U.S. Auction

Joseph A. Ziemba, collector of customs, said $10,000 was realized in a two day auction of confiscated merchandise which ended yesterday. Bidders obtained 900 cases of liquor at $5 to $10 below the market on their promise to use the liquor for private consumption. The liquor had been forfeited because import duties were unpaid.

LOYALIST GUNS POUND CENTER OF ARAGON FRONT

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A Spanish government dispatch asserted loyalist artillery today scored direct hits on an insurgent staf headquarters at Fuentes de Ebro, on the Aragon front in northeastern Spain.

While government field guns pounded the middle Aragon front, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgent forces struggled through rains and mud to prepare for an expected general offensive. Government forces have been harassing Franco's fortifications and communications. Today the government reported its batteries had balked insurgent efforts to fortify the banks of the Basa river in the Fuentes sector and had bombarded the Zuera sector.

A loyalist dispatch said insurgent airplanes raided Bujaraloz, southeast of Saragossa, killing 16 persons and injuring 37. Valencia was reported damaged by a hurricane.

A dispatch from Perpignan, France, said four Spanish insurgent flyers were killed when loyalists shot down their bombing planes near Cadaques, Spain.

LOSS OF $80,000 INCOME IS TOLD BY BUSBY WIDOW

Drop to $4,800 Related in Estate Hearing.

If Mrs. Esther A. Busby and her two children enjoyed an income of $60,000 to $80,000 a year when her husband, Leonard A. Busby, transit magnate, was alive, what should their income be now from the $300,000 left in his estate?

Judge Michael Feinberg had this question under advisement yesterday. In a hearing Thursday before she returned to New York, Mrs. Busby told of the drop in the family finances after her husband died. During his life time, she testified, his income was about $80,000 a year, which was more than enough for their needs. After his estate became insolvent, the widow had only $4,800 a year for the support of herself and two children, a son, Jack, now a student at Princeton, and a daughter, Janet, who now is married and lives in New York.

Seek to Fix Income.

The hearing was to determine what income Mrs. Busby and the children should receive from the $300,000 which the First National bank was ordered to restore to the estate. After extended litigation the bank was found liable several months ago for losses sustained by the estate after Busby's death Sept. 9, 1930, and the American National Bank and Trust company was appointed successor trustee.

Mrs. Busby testified that she managed on a $25,000 widow's award the first year after her husband died. During the following year, she said the family lived on $12,500 paid by the bank as income from the dwindling estate.

Then on Dec. 15, 1932 all payments stopped and the late Melvin Traylor, president of the bank, told her the estate had become insolvent. After that, Mrs. Busby continued, she was forced to live on annuities from her husband's $140,000 insurance, which dwindled from $6,000 to $4,800 a year.

Tells Children's Expenses.

"Janet attended a very expensive girl's school in Connecticut," she related. "She went abroad one year, but she had to come home from school in the middle of one year when I couldn't afford it any longer.

"Jack went to Hotchkiss preparatory school in Connecticut. It cost $2,000 a year, exclusive of vacation expenses."

Asked by Judge Feinberg if $5,000 a year was enough for each of the children's expenses, Mrs. Busby said: "Each spent it." Both had to have appendicitis operations, she added and lack of funds caused Jack to stop having his teeth straightened. All the money she saved from the widow's award was spent in erecting a monument to her husband, she concluded.

The hearing will be resumed a week from today. Mrs. Busby, however, has completed her testimony.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Marquette university was bequeathed $8,000 and Catholic charities received smaller bequests under terms of the will of Miss Mary E. Kennedy, 72 years old, filed for probate today. The estate was estimated at $11,000. She was active in the auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The income of the $8,000 left Marquette is to be used to educate young men for the priesthood, the will specified. Gesu church, St. Rose orphanage, and St. Vincent's orphanages each were left $1,000.

MRS. BENSON DIES; 97; LINCOLN PARK PLANNER'S WIDOW

Mrs. Jessie Arnold Benson, 97 years old, widow of Olof Benson, first superintendent and one of the designers of Lincoln park, died yesterday in her home at 3819 Pine Grove avenue. Her husband died in 1914.

Mrs. Benson, a native of Liverpool, England, was married to Mr. Benson shortly after he left the Union army after nearly four years of service in the Civil war. They moved into a cottage on the site now occupied by the Academy of Science in Lincoln park. Their six children were born there.

A landscape gardener and engineer, Mr. Benson drew plans for the park, which were given by Mrs. Benson to the Chicago Historical society a few years ago. Benson was the park's superintendent from 1871 to 1883.

Surviving Mrs. Benson are five children, Mrs. Alice Cobb, Miss Agnes and Miss Margaret Benson, Mrs. B. W. Sherwood, and O. A. Benson.

News of Radio

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A third major Hollywood studio, RKO, proposes to launch a full hour radio show around the first of the year. Headed by Milton Berle, this production is to follow the lines of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Thursday evening circus and the Warners' Hollywood Parade, featuring Dick Powell, which starts on Dec. 8. RKO players who will be subject to draft on the new show include Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Lily Pons, Katherine Hepburn, Joe Penner, Miriam Hopkins, Barbara Stanwyck, Jack Oakie, and many another.

Where this radio passion for Hollywood will end no one can as yet say. The immediate effect is that the United States internal revenue department is greatly benefited; that scores of better radio performers are thrown out of work, and that listeners are being subjected to such extravagant plugs about pictures that the claims of cough cure and cosmetic makers are gems of understatement by comparison. [A fuller analysis of the Hollywood-in-radio movement and some conjectures as to what it may lead to will be made in an article on the radio page of tomorrow's SUNDAY TRIBUNE.]

Meanwhile the sponsor of the Contented Hour, who has repeatedly declined suggestions of moving to New York and Hollywood, yesterday disclosed plans which will keep this program of good light music emanating from local NBC studios for another full year. Frank Black, the network's musical director, who has been running the program for a year, is giving up this association the first of the year. The press of duties in New York and the hazards of winter flying force him to give up the weekly trip to Chicago.

Marek Weber, the Viennese maestro now at the Stevens hotel, probably will wield the baton over the big Contented Hour symphonic orchestra when Black leaves. The Lullaby Lady and the Continentals quartet will be retained. Later a feminine singing headliner will be added.

The sponsors of Fibber McGee and Molly yesterday announced that they will launch a daytime radio serial titled "Attorney at Law" from NBC's Chicago studios at 9:30 a. m. Jan. 4. The sketch is a creation of Carl Wester's new radio production firm. Auditions for leads are now being held.

On the doors of NBC production men sign painters have recently traced in the single word, "Director." More evidence of the Hollywood influence. As production men they have been rushing from control room to studio and back, stopwatches always in hand, for more than a decade. This move to dignify them may force them to mount high stools, movie fashion, with henchmen henceforth holding their watches for them.

Perry Como, singer with Ted Weems, and the Jerry Marlowe-Irma Lyon piano team have been signed for a new three a week sponsored show on WMAQ. . . . Boake Carter is to leave the employ of that radio receiver company and go to work shortly for the same firm that has Jack Benny on the air. . . . Ben Bernie has been auditioned by a tire company and an oil concern. . . . Dorothy Sandlin, who made her radio debut on W-G-N last season, is to be a guest soloist on the Sunday evening concert hour at 8 p. m. tomorrow on WBBM-CBS.

'MAD PRINCE' HELD IN ENGLAND FOR 25 YEARS IS DEAD

Once Tried to Shoot King Fuad of Egypt.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Prince Ahmed Seif el Dine, brother-in-law of the late King Fuad of Egypt and onetime inmate of an English mental home from which he escaped after 25 years of confinement, died here today.

The prince, who was 56 years old, was a brother of Fuad's first wife, Princess Chivekiar. He had lived the last 12 years at his villa on the Bosporus after a tempestuous earlier life which gained him the title of "Mad Prince of Egypt."

He was committed to a Sussex institution following his attempt to shoot Fuad in 1898 because he believed the king was mistreating his [Fuad's] wife.

[When the prince left the asylum, the Westminster Gazette urged an inquiry into the British government's part in holding him. The paper claimed a British official took him to England at a time when Britain was wooing the Egyptian royal family. Britain was accused of sequestering his $15,000,000 estates.]

FLIGHT RECORD TO CAPE TOWN GOAL OF PRINCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 20 [Saturday].—Prince Constantine Cantacuzene of Rumania left Croydon airport shortly before 1 o'clock this morning on an attempt to break the London-Cape Town air record made last Tuesday by Flying Officer A. E. Clouston and Mrs. Betty Kirby-Green.

He had planned to fly to Alaoes in the Congo. At the last minute, however, he arranged to land in Paris instead, take on a full load of gasoline, and then fly to Cape Town in two hops.

Open Monday Regardless, Replies Official.

Akron, O., Nov. 19.—(AP)—C. C. Slusser, vice president of Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, said tonight that the three plants closed today by a sitdown strike would reopen Monday "for those who want to work in spite of hell or high water."

A sitdown, in protest against scheduled layoffs, made 12,000 idle today. The Goodyear plants shut down.

Reports of the planned reopening brought from several shop committeemen, who refused to give their names, the comment that a picket line would be thrown around the plants in the next 24 hours, and that preparations are under way to prevent resumption of work.

Put 60 Police on Duty.

Sixty city police were on duty at the plant tonight. They refused to allow workers to take food into the plants.

When Slusser announced the back-to-work plans, he relented in an earlier decision to bar from the plants any workers attempting to relieve strikers. He said the ban on admittance would apply to only those workers who attempted to enter at times other than the hours of shift changes.

James P. Miller, regional director for the national labor relations board at Clevland, traveled here from Toledo tonight to investigate conditions.

John House, president of Goodyear local of the United Rubber Workers of America, said the sitdown was a "spontaneous outburst" resulting from announced plans of the company to lay off 1,600 employés.

Hold Plant in Pontiac.

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—A constantly changing force of 200 sitdown strikers held the Fisher Body plant for the third night in defiance of both their international union and the General Motors corporation. Nearly 15,000 workers were idle as a result of the unauthorized action.

Financial aid was refused the sitters by international officers of the United Automobile Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate. It was said no organized effort was being made to feed the men in the plant.

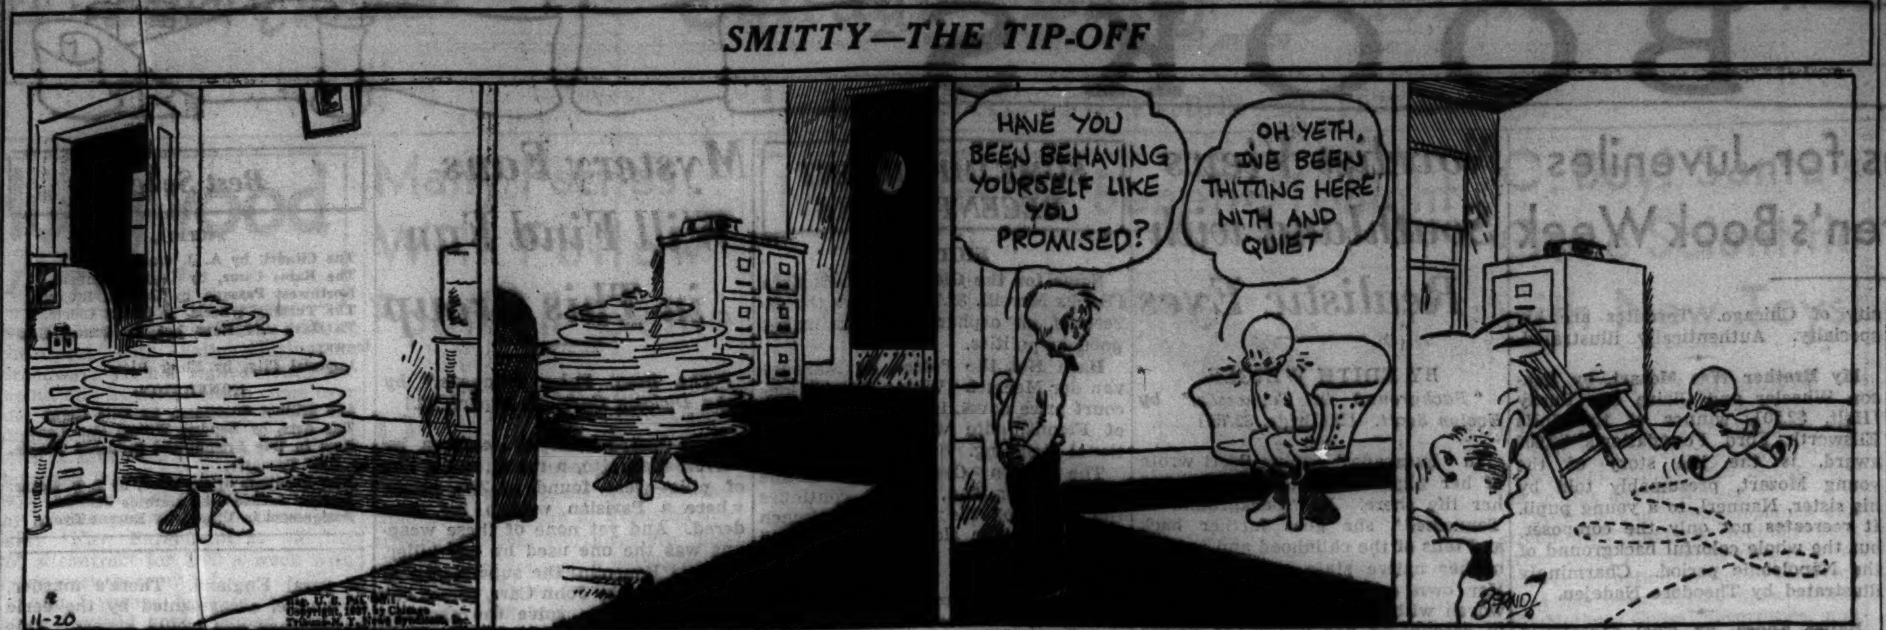
The management warned the strikers that their defiance may "make agreements valueless and collective bargaining impossible in practice."

Near Strike Vote in Lansing.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—A strike vote will be taken tomorrow among 3,500 employés in the Fisher Body plant here, it was announced today by officials of the United Automobile Workers. More than 3,000 postcards telling of the plan were mailed.

A strike would tie up operations not only in the Fisher plant but in all Oldsmobile divisions here and would halt the La Salle assembly line in the Cadillac-La Salle plant in Detroit.

SMITTY—THE TIP-OFF



BREAK TIMBER TRUCK BLOCKADES ON ROADS IN MINNESOTA STRIKE

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 19.—(AP)—A six hour blockade of two trunk highways at Scanlon, 19 miles west of here, forcing motorists to detour off the paved roads connecting Duluth with Minneapolis and Cloquet, was broken late tonight.

The tieup ended when nineteen blockading trucks of the Farmer Timber Producers' association were permitted to pass through a picket line of striking timber workers a mile from Cloquet. The big trucks, loaded with pulpwood for sale at Cloquet mills, passed through the picket line amid boos and catcalls.

Meanwhile, in Duluth, a conference between officials of the timber workers and the Timber Producers' association, the latter composed of operators, adjourned until morning after nearly 36 hours of deliberation.

2 QUESTIONED ON SLAYING OF UNION OFFICIAL

Police Denounce Pair of C. I. O. Aids.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Two men, known here as Eddie and Al Froetti, brothers, of Chicago, who were reported to have assaulted Patrick J. Corcoran, an A. F. of L. union leader, three days before he was slain, were questioned by authorities tonight.

Police meanwhile denounced two C. I. O. organizers who charged gangsterism in the labor movement here. Chief of Police Frank Forestal said: "Their charges are all the bunk." The organizers sent an open letter to Mayor George E. Leach demanding an investigation of Corcoran's death and "gangsterism and racketeering."

Organized Drivers' Union.

The two men held for questioning were organizers for the General Drivers' union, with which Corcoran was associated, until last May, when they became organizers for a petroleum workers' union.

Corcoran's son, Patrick Jr., told police the men had summoned his father to union headquarters early last Sunday and had assaulted him. He said a shot was fired during the mêlée after one of the men struck the elder Corcoran on his jaw.

Police Captain William Forby said one of the men held admitted striking Corcoran during the disturbance. He declared they will be detained "until we investigate every angle of this matter."

Two Leaders Face Quiz.

Two labor leaders, who first came here several years ago, were ordered brought in for questioning as police continued to seek clews in inter-union strife that started soon after their arrival.

Another clew apparently faded when police located the man Cedric Adams, newspaper columnist, said gave him the story on which he based his published prediction of Nov. 9 that a prominent Minneapolis labor leader would be "taken for a ride" within two weeks.

CAPTURE TEXAS RUSTLER, NOW A POTATO PEELER

An accused cattle rustler was captured yesterday in a restaurant at 634 South State street. He is Robert [Buck] Hopkins, 33 years old, colored, who is wanted in Bastrop, Tex., for the theft of a calf. Buck was caught off his guard and wouldn't have had time to go for his gun even if he had a gun because he was at his job peeling potatoes when he was seized by Detective Oscar Ridley, colored.

Want to Get a Trill? Go to the Canary Show

With much chirping and cheeping, 500 birds and their owners yesterday opened the sixth annual greater Chicago cage bird show at the Hotel Sherman. The birds will be on exhibition today and tomorrow. Among them were the Dukes of Windsor, the four sons of the King Edward quartet of singing roller canaries which were last year's grand champions. Their owner, Frank Litoborski, 1402 South Clinton street, Berwyn, entered the young birds at the last minute when he discovered they had nearer absolute pitch than their fathers.

Lindy Homesick, Planning Visit to U.S., London Hears

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is homesick and thinking of revisiting America, it was reported in London today. He has no intention of giving up his citizenship, it was said, despite rumors to that effect. A recent renewal of his commission in the United States army air corps reserve was cited as proof that he is thoroughly American.

HEALTH BOARD URGES CLUB MEETINGS TO AID IN FIGHT ON SYPHILIS

A proposal that clubs and groups wishing to coöperate in the city's campaign against syphilis hold meetings at which members would take syphilis tests was approved yesterday by the board of health.

"We are prepared to send physicians to take blood specimens from any group," said Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, board president. The test would be free and secret. Persons found to have the disease would be referred wherever possible to their private physicians, many of whom already are making the tests.

Dr. Bundesen made his offer following a meeting at the city hall of subcommittee chairmen and secretaries of Mayor Kelly's committee of 400 for the control of venereal disease. Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, mayor's committee chairman who called the meeting, emphasized the importance of popular education on syphilis and its dangers.

ASKS CITIZENS TO AID IN CLEVELAND RACKET CLEANUP

Cleveland, O., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Mayor Harold H. Burton late today called on Cleveland citizens to rally behind Safety Director Eliot Ness for a general cleanup of the city's rackets, urging them to refuse to permit themselves to be intimidated by racketeers and asking them to report to Ness immediately any attempt at extortion.

The statement was issued by the mayor from his office at city hall as Ness and Chief Assistant County Prosecutor Charles J. McNamee were calling five out of town business men and ten or twelve Clevelanders to appear before the county grand jury Tuesday. They will be asked to testify regarding extortions in the labor racket, which Ness has been investigating for the last six months.

SLAYING IN TEXAS REVIVES CASE OF LOST ILLINOISANS

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The unsolved disappearance of four Illinois tourists in New Mexico in May, 1935, today was injected into the investigation of a suspect in the slaying of a Brooklyn merchant here Monday.

District Attorney Andrew L. Patton said Lacy Cash, alias Robert Lacy, charged with slaying Harry Leon Helfman, would be questioned about the disappearance of Mr. and Mrs. George Lorius of East St. Louis and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer of Duquoin.

Cash, Dallas mechanic, yesterday led officers to a sewage pit from which Helfman's body, a bullet in his heart, was recovered. He told officers he shot when Helfman made a threatening move while they were arguing after he had repaired Helfman's automobile. Recalling the automobile from which the Illinois motorists disappeared later was traced to Dallas, Patton said "there is a strange parallel between the two cases."

NOW MR. WENDEL DEMANDS $25,000 LINDY REWARD

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Paul H. Wendel, former Trenton lawyer and a central figure in a fantastic sequel to the Lindbergh kidnaping case, applied today in a letter to Gov. Hoffman for the $25,000 reward offered by the state for the arrest and conviction of the Lindbergh baby's murderer.

Wendel, who charged his own repudiated "confession" of the crime was wrung from him by torture after he had been abducted in New York, declared in the letter that "I was the one who refused to let Bruno Hauptmann go free, thus backing up the courts of the United States and saving New Jersey's respect.

"I refused to take Bruno Hauptmann's place in the death house so you could be vice presidential candidate at the Republican convention," Wendel told the governor.

LOSES HIS RIGHT HAND.

A. F. OF L. SEAMEN'S UNION WINS FIRST VICTORY IN ELECTION

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The International Seamen's union of the A. F. of L. scored its first substantial victory today when the employés of the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., chose the union as their representative. Mrs. Elinore M. Herrick, regional director of the board, announced the result of the election.

The steamship company employs 1,024 men on fourteen ships. Of the 1,010 ballots cast, 541 were for the I. S. U., 432 for the National Maritime union, C. I. O. affiliate; 16 were against being represented by any union, 7 ballots were blank, and 5 were void.

The labor board also announced that in an election conducted among the employés of the Newtex Steamship corporation, the N. M. U. received 55 votes against 1 for the I. S. U.

SWEAR MINER BOASTED AFTER BRIDGE BLASTING

Father and Son Accuse John Stewart.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—With less than one-half of its witnesses examined when court adjourned today, the government had shown much of the picture of the coal mine warfare in Illinois from 1932 to 1935. Forty-one persons are charged with conspiracy.

Two witnesses today named John Stewart, one of the defendants, as having been connected with the bombing of the Big Four railroad bridge near Harrisburg, Oct. 5, 1933. J. G. Wiggins and his son, Willie, testified that Stewart had exulted over the destruction of the bridge shortly after the explosion.

Arthur Summons testified that he was warned to keep away from the scene of the explosion by Carl Maddox and Jesse R. Anderson, two other defendants. He involved Earl Evans and William Thompson by saying they had obtained from him a statement contradicting testimony which he is now giving to the government. He declared that he was afraid of Thompson.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

November 19, 1937.

THE red and orange berries of the bittersweet plant now are providing bright touches of color to many farm lands in the Chicago area. Recently we found a number of bittersweet plants on the Tribune farm near Wheaton. If their branches had not been loaded with berries we doubtless would not have noticed them along a hedge.

Much of the bittersweet fruit is eaten by birds when the berries are soft. Farm boys pick it to sell, and sometimes cattle nibble the fruit. But bittersweet is best known for decorating homes when frost nipped gardens no longer produce flowers.

The bittersweet [celastrus scandens] has several names, including waxwork, staf tree, staf vine, and fever twig. But regardless of its name, it is distinctive because of its deep red fruit surrounded by a small orange covering. Indeed this plant provides just about the only bit of color one can see along the hedgerows and in the woods on gray November days.

Leans on Other Plants.

Apparently the bittersweet has no hesitancy in leaning on a young wild crab tree, a wild raspberry bush or other shrub or tree to develop its growth. One vine that we saw on the farm a few days ago had reached out from a small shrub to take hold of a wire fence. Part of the vine even had projected through the wire to produce a beautiful cluster of berries. Because it is dependent on other vegetation it clings so closely to saplings it may damage them by stopping the flow of sap.

In shaded places in the woods the bittersweet grows as a low shrub only about three feet high, but along the edges of timber it may twine to the tops of tall trees. Indians have long used this ornamental plant for making ointments. Juice extracted from the berry and other liquid taken from the roots are used for healing sores and burns and curing chilblains. Some tribes also use the bark for making a dye.

The bittersweet flower is not conspicuous in the summer. The small, five leaved cream colored flowers of the plants appear in June. They rarely attract much attention from the outdoor fan when the woods are filled with many wild flowers better known.

Urge Plant's Protection.

Some botanists and florists have advocated that the wild bittersweet be protected from threatened extinction by preventing the buying and selling of the plant each fall. There isn't much doubt commercialization of wild bittersweet has made it more scarce each year.

At one time the Society of American Florists passed a resolution in which all members promised to refrain from either buying or selling wild bittersweet. Cultivated bittersweet, almost identical to the wild plant, can be grown. Most outdoor fans feel that bittersweet should be protected, because wherever it grows each fall it adds a colorful touch to the autumn landscape that is matched by no other plant.

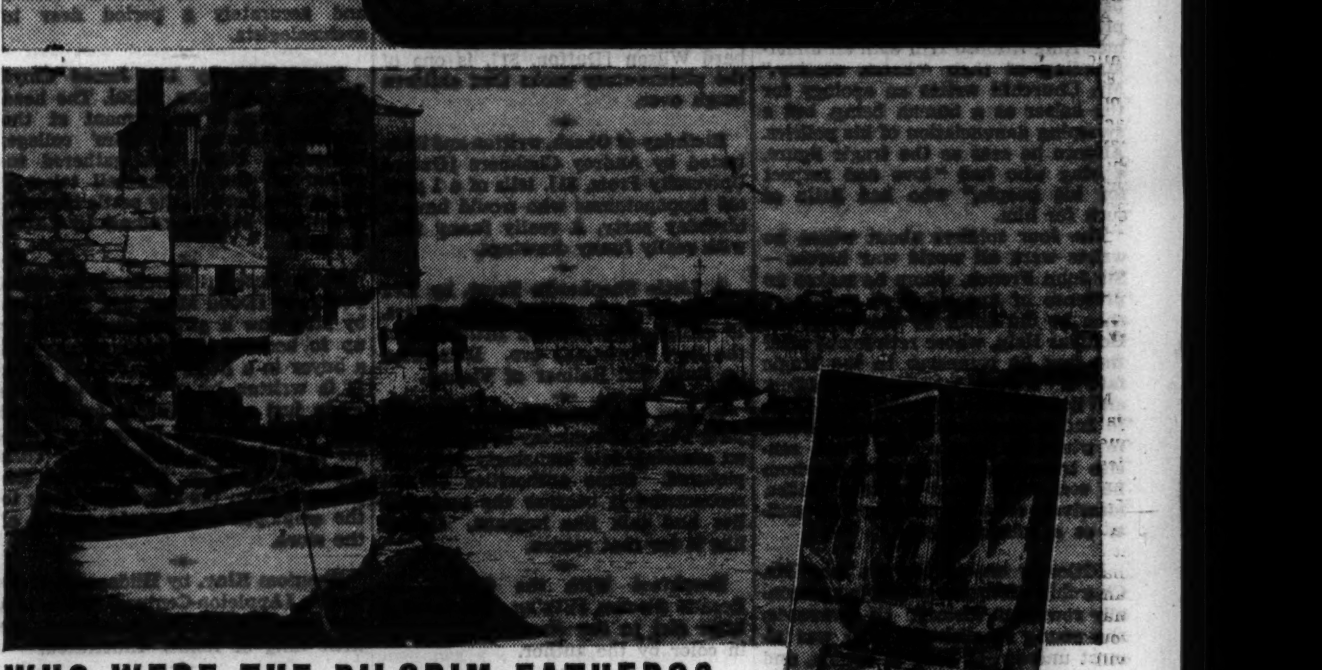
the COLOROTO GRAPHIC



WHO WERE THE PILGRIM FATHERS?

Proud Virginia says they were stupid farmers and servant girls. Massachusetts retorts that Virginia was settled by convicts, slaves, debtors, and women of the gutter. For new light on the trials and tribulations of Plymouth's first settlers, read this week's COLOROTO GRAPHIC. Two large color maps enable you to follow their perilous voyage from the old world to the new. Don't miss this interesting Thanksgiving feature.

PLAYBOY MAYOR JIMMY He wrote songs. He wisecracked his way into, out of, then into politics again. He set new fashions for greeting visiting celebrities. Charles Collins describes the remarkable career of Jimmy Walker, one of the most amazing mayors New York ever had, in a photo story in this week's COLOROTO GRAPHIC.

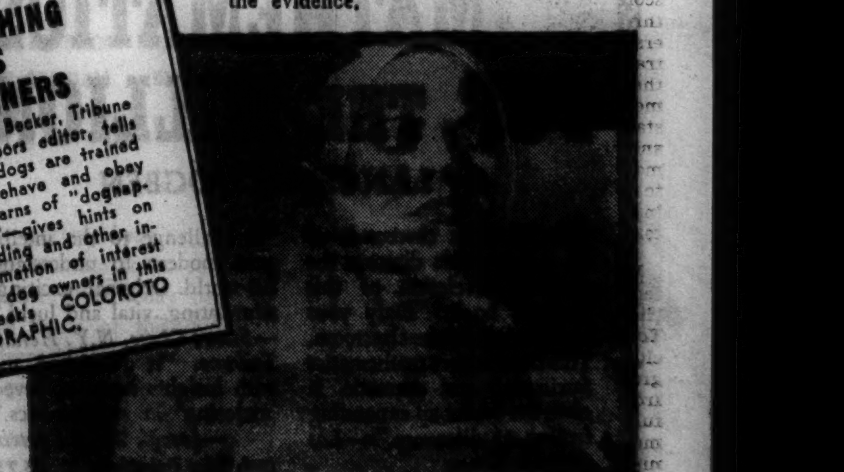
TEACHING DOGS MANNERS
Bob Becker, Tribune Outdoors editor, tells how dogs are trained to behave and obey—warns of "dognapers"—gives hints on feeding and other information of interest to dog owners in this week's COLOROTO GRAPHIC.

FRENCH FARMERS GETTING CITY-WISE Alex Small describes the migration of the French peasantry to cities—unparalleled in the country's history—in a special story direct from the French capital in this week's COLOROTO GRAPHIC.



BEAUTY GETTING "OXYLATED" Eleanor Nangle tells of oxygen's new role as a beautifier. Six photos show every step of the new treatment in the COLOROTO GRAPHIC.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Great Contemporaries," by the Rt. Hon. Winston S. Churchill, C. H., M. P. [Putnam, $4.]

Winston Churchill, himself a great political leader, a soldier, and a writer, has done history a service in recording his contacts with twenty-two political, military, and literary geniuses of his day. His contacts with three of them—Hitler Trotzky, and Hindenburg—were merely intellectual. All the others he has known with varying degrees of intimacy, from the officially formal to friendship. All of them he chronicles with the understanding of a man who knows how their kind thinks and with the brilliance of a skilled biographer and historian, whose life of Marlborough [not yet complete] is one of the great contemporary biographies.

Winston Churchill.

Of the "Great Contemporaries," seven were high in English politics—the earl of Rosebery, Joseph Chamberlain, Herbert Henry Asquith, the first earl of Birkenhead, Arthur James Balfour, Lord Curzon, and Philip Snowden. Winston Churchill irons out misconceptions about them, summarizes their characters and achievements in memorable phrases, and clarifies the fog which seems to envelope completely the political machinery of another country. These great English political figures emerge clearly drawn against an equally clarified background and illuminate contemporary history.

Mr. Churchill prefers "not to include any of the British political or military figures who are with us today," but his volume seems completely contemporaneous, despite the occasional nostolgia in its pages.

Three rulers are chronicled in his pages—King George V., with polite praise, and the former kaiser and former King Alfonso III., with an understanding of their "harsh destiny." Mr. Churchill writes an apology for the kaiser as a human being, but a sweeping denunciation of his policies. Alfonso he sees as the tragic figure, a king who had "love and respect for his people," who had little of such for him.

The four soldiers about whom he writes were all world war heroes—Sir John French, whom he makes no pretense of approving of any more than he did when he was alive; Sir Douglas Haig, whose retirement after the war he compares to the tragic fate of "a great many of his soldiers and brother officers" who came home to find themselves out of a job; Foch, to whom he pays a very short, concise tribute, and Hindenburg, whom he sees as a great military leader, massively effectual, sinking into senility as a political figure.

Hitler is one of the six men Mr. Churchill discusses who have personally rewritten history. Of Lawrence, the young Englishman who was almost uncrowned king in Arabia, and Clemenceau, who was dethroned ruler of France, he writes with tenderness and sorrow, for the too early death of one and the too late of the other.

Of Savinkov, Russian patriot who hated both czarist and bolshevist régimes, he writes with profound respect, although they were politically of directly opposed camps. On Leon Trotzky he pours the only invective in the book.

Only two writers are among the "Great Contemporaries," and one of them was as much statesman as writer—the great John Morley, who, although thirty-five years Mr. Churchill's senior, was his friend. The other is Bernard Shaw, and the most memorable passages in the essay deal not with his writing but with the trip which he and Lady Astor made to Russia. In the paragraph which describes the state of affairs in soviet Russia, Mr. Churchill is at his most brilliantly argumentative height.

More Selections for Juveniles Crown Children's Book Week

Children's Book week, celebrated these last six days, has been an unprecedented success in stimulating the interest of grownups in good books for children as well as children's interest in better books.

Most of the book shops have been almost as crowded as at Christmas time and report much larger sales than last year. All the libraries have had something of the Christmas excitement in their juvenile departments, too. Ten years from now we ought to be feeling in adult reading tastes the results of this week's intensive plowing of young minds.

A very helpful book on the subject generally is the just published "What Books for Children?" by Josette Frank [Doubleday-Doran, $2].

Last week I looked over some of the outstanding juveniles of the year and promised for this week reviews of others of the year's important additions to juvenile literature. The books reviewed are all recommended by a group of experts. Last week's reviews, with today's, give a brief survey of the year's best juveniles.

Easy Books.

Noodle, by Munroe Leaf [Viking, $1.50], is a delicious book about a dachshund with enchanting pictures by Ludwig Bemelmans, warranted to induce roars of glee in old and young.

And to Think I Saw It on Mulberry Street, by Dr. Seuss [Vanguard, $1], tells in rollicking rhyme and fantastic comic pictures what little Marco's imagination did to a plain horse and wagon he saw on Mulberry street. Destined for adult guffaws.

Ezekiel, by Elvira Garner [Holt, $1.50], has not yet been chosen for purchase by the public library. Perhaps adults find it more irresistible than children for it tells about a resourceful little colored boy in a luscious dialect a little beyond the childish eyes that find its colored drawings enchanting.

Babette, by Clare Turlay Newberry [Harpers, $1.50], beautifully printed, beautifully illustrated [by the author], tells the story of a little girl and a Siamese kitten.

The Night Before Christmas, by Clement C. Moore [Harcourt Brace, $1.50], the perennial favorite this year has a new pictorial interpretation by a famous illustrator, Reginald Birch.

Mr. Pumps, the Popsicle Man, written and illustrated by Eleanore Hubbard Wilson [Dutton, $1], is one of the picture-story books that children laugh over.

Walter, the Lazy Mouse, by Marjorie Flack [Doubleday-Doran, $2], is an amusing tale amusingly told and pictured. Some authorities do not recommend it because the creatures live and talk like humans. Others like it for that reason.

The Traveling Coat, written and illustrated by Frances Eliot [Dutton, $1.50], tells in easy words and bright pictures how a coat started in Hungary long ago, found its way to Germany and finally to America.

For the Middle Group.

A Child's Story of the World, by Donald Culross Peattie [Simon & Schuster, $2.50], sketches the story of man from the earliest to our own day and is the work of one of America's outstanding literary stylists. Illustrated in color by Naomi Averill.

Termite City, by Alfred E. Emerson and Eleanor Fish [Rand McNally, $1.50], tells the story of the termites so enthrallingly that William Beebe declares in the foreword that "many a boy or girl will have to wait patiently for it while parents read and enjoy every word." Dr. Emerson is professor of Zoölogy at the University of Chicago. Termites are his specialty. Authentically illustrated.

My Brother Was Mozart, by Benson Wheeler and Claire Lee Purdy [Holt, $2.50], winner of the Julia Ellsworth Ford Foundation's $2,000 award, is the life story of the young Mozart, presumably told by his sister, Nannerl, to a young pupil. It recreates not only the composer, but the whole colorful background of the Napoleonic period. Charmingly illustrated by Theodore Nadejen.

Dancing Cloud, by Mary and Conrad Buff [Viking, $2], records in colorful words and memorable pictures the life of the Navajo Indians. Illustrated with lithographs by Conrad Buff.

Once Upon a Time in Egypt, story and pictures by Frances Kent Gere [Longmans-Green, $2], tells of a boy's life thousands of years ago. The unusual illustrations are based on sculpture found in the tombs of the old kingdom. Has educational value.

Riema, by Kathleen Morrow Elliot [Knopf, $2], is an exquisite book, in the writing of the tale of a little girl who lives in Java, in typesetting, and in vivid color illustrations by Roger Duvoisin. Adults may sneakingly buy it for themselves.

When Marius Was Ten, by Helen Hill and Violet Maxwell [Macmillan, $1.75], gives an interesting picture of rural French life, as seen by a little boy, and has a mild mystery. Illustrated by the authors.

For Older Boys and Girls.

Animals on the March, by M. Maxwell Reed and Jannette M. Lucas [Harcourt Brace, $3], is a long range vision of life on our earth. It traces animal life back from our common fellow creatures to strange mammoths of mysterious geologic periods. Photgraphs from museum exhibits enliven it. Another book liable to be stolen by papa.

The Lost Queen of Egypt, by Lucile Morrison [Stokes, $2.50], is a novelized life of the girl 3300 years ago whose father was Akhenaten and whose young husband was the great King Tutankhamen. It revives vividly and accurately a period dear to archæologists.

Pecos Bill, by Dr. James Cloyd Bowman [Whitman, $2.50]. The head of the English department at the Northern States Teachers' college, Marquette, Mich., has gathered together all the famous tall tales of this fabled hero of the cattle country. Amusingly illustrated by Laura Bannon.

Polly Tucker, Merchant, by Sara Pennoyer [Dodd Mead, $2], tells step by step how a girl worked her way up to become a fashion expert and a buyer in a great department store. It is written by a woman who has made just such a career for herself and is now fashion promotion director of one of the biggest New York department stores. She is giving the proceeds from the sale of the book to the employés' mutual aid society of the store.

Phantom King, by Hildegarde Hawthorne [Appleton-Century, $2.50], is a fine biography of Napoleon's son, the little king of Rome. Illustrated.

Puckered Moccasins, by Bernadine Bailey [Whitman, $1.50], retells the thrilling story of old Fort Dearborn and the tragic massacre of 1812. Illustrated by Gaye Woodring Coons.

A-Going to the Westward, by Lois Lenski [Stokes, $2], tells with zest and historic accuracy of a family journey from Connecticut to Ohio in 1811. Amusingly illustrated by the author.

Novelist Views Southland with Realistic Eyes

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

"Background in Tennessee," by Evelyn Scott. [McBride, $2.75.]

In "Escapade" Evelyn Scott wrote of her flight to South America and her life there. In "Background in Tennessee" she goes farther back and tells of the childhood and growth of her native state and of herself. Her own early reactions are interwoven with her environment, and so in recounting her youth she delves into the history of Tennessee. With a penetrative imagination she traces its course from the time of the first settlers and their fights with, and defrauding of, the Indians.

Evelyn Scott's south is a very different south from that of the popular romantic tales. She tears away the veil of romance which, she feels, obscures the truth and exposes the ugliness, the injustices and the sordidness she experienced there as a child.

Besides gaining a detailed account of Tennessee, the reader also comes to know this woman who writes about it, and to understand her philosophy and her passion for unimpassioned truth. There are delightful flashes of humor in the book. There also is much that is deeply thoughtful.

This Romantic Tale Is Artistically Told.

"Forgotten Lady," by Norval Richardson, is as romantic as memories of a bygone day. It is the story of a beautiful lady and her progress along the primrose path. She belongs to another period, another clime. She harks back to the days when to be divorced was to be declassé, and she reminds you of orange flower water, of Chaminade, and of portraits by Sargent.

In the telling of this romance the author describes life on the continent before the world war. The people, the customs, the whole atmosphere is fin de siècle. Mr. Richardson writes with great artistry. In other hands than his, "Forgotten Lady" would be pure melodrama and Lucile as ephemeral as the Sleeping Beauty.

David Seabury Offers Book on Selfishness.

"The Art of Selfishness," by David Seabury. [Julian Messner, Inc., $2.50.]

Those of door mat dispositions, the meek who believe it is better to put up with anything short of murder rather than "make a fuss," will learn a lot from David Seabury's new book. So will the egoists who indulge in permanent, not temporary, periods of "inflation." Those who are in trouble, real or imaginary, should read Mr. Seabury before calling in the lawyer or doing anything drastic. And those who suffer from a surfeit of monotony, from a long row of do-less days, will find the way out if they will but read.

According to the author, there are two vital laws every one must follow if he or she is to live at full rather than half measure. There is "the basic law of being: Never compromise yourself. Never give up your integrity." And there is "the magic formula: No ego satisfactions."

"The Art of Selfishness" ends with a splendid bibliography for those readers who want to learn more about psychology.

"The Works of Thoreau." [Houghton Mifflin, $5.]

Before the publication of this beautiful book it was necessary to dig through the pages of fourteen volumes of an expensive twenty volume set of Thoreau's works to have all the important material now available in this one edition. This omnibus of the great naturalist's best writings has been selected and edited by Henry S. Canby and is illustrated with most artistic photographs, twelve of them, by Henry B. Kane.

Meetings and Lectures

Mystery Fans Will Find Fun in This Group

"The Four False Weapons," by John Dickson Carr. [Harpers, $2.]

Four instruments of death—a revolver, a stiletto, a razor, and a box of pills—were found in the rooms where a Parisian woman lay murdered. And yet none of these weapons was the one used by her killer. Henri Bencolin, the supersleuth of other stories by John Carr, comes out of retirement to solve the amazing crime. He thinks he knows the identity of the slayer before the story is one-third completed, but he is not sure. The denouement comes in a gambling house where basset, a great game of chance, is revived after a lapse of more than two hundred years.

Mr. Carr, as in his other books, has written a swift paced, ingenious tale.

S. M. K.

Mystery Is Enhanced by Characterizations.

Like her "Flowers for the Judge," Margery Allingham's newest book, "Dancers in Mourning," definitly sets her apart for those who prefer their murder with a dash of sophisticated intelligence.

Even without the mystery and a well developed atmosphere of tension and horror, the book could stand by itself as a fine study in characterization. Miss Allingham has a flair for this sort of thing.

Around Linda and her husband, Jimmy Sutane, whose dancing feet are the toast of London, whirls the madness of murder and persecution, rising to a horrible crescendo at their country estate. Only the perspicuity and understanding of Albert Campion, criminologist, saved them.

Here's Relishing Fare for Mystery Readers.

"Fatal Friday," by Francis Gerard. [Holt, $2.]

Here is Inspector John Meredith again, and in a setting all mystery fans will relish: a wild, rambling old place, sprawled on the side of a hill in rural England. There's murder, of course, accompanied by the eerie happenings you would expect. This is one of Francis Gerard's best works. It is lightened considerably by the introduction of the farcical Sergt. Beef, who is well worked.

Story About Children.

Mazo de la Roche's first book, "Explorers of the Dawn," was a book for grownups about children. Her latest, "The Very House" [Little Brown, $2], is likewise for grownups, a story about two very engaging English children.

Youngsters will love hearing about Walter, especially. He was probably the laziest little mouse that ever lived. Hardly ever got to school on time. And so he got lost for a whole winter.

Miss Flack will draw during her talk. Then she'll autograph Walter or any of her books, to make them doubly precious as Christmas gifts.

CURLY TOP, the little 9-year-old girl who waved herself into the hearts of the 20th Century's crew, will be here. Lots of youngsters wave at trains, but little Violet Schmidt, of Elkhart, waved for three years! You probably read how the New York Central rewarded her by letting her ride on their famous train, and giving her the pretty clothes she chose at Field's.

A book, The Little Girl Who Waved, has been written about her by Clara A. Ford ($1). Maybe Curly Top will write her name in it for other little girls.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Kay Francis In Person.

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 19.—"I was born in Oklahoma City by mistake," said Kay Francis, curled up on a couch of the Donald Ogden Stewarts' library. "My dad and mother had gone out there on probably the most unusual of business deals. Dad, always the master of magnificent gestures, had heard that he could buy up the Sioux Indian ponies, thousands of 'em, for polo. He had planned to a nicety just how many ponies he'd keep for his own string and how many he'd sell and how much money he'd make.

"He got out there on his last dollar, and learned that the government controlled the whole shebang. So while he and mother were wondering what to do in Oklahoma City when you're broke, I was born. In the meantime he became the manager of a hotel, so that solved the immediate problem of food and board."

"Nothing feazed mother, the darling. She'd been an actress with the first Daly company. She came from Chicago; father came from a little town outside Detroit. They were married in New York, at the Little Church Around the Corner. It was because of her stories of the theater that I never wanted to get in it. That I ever became an actress was a product of divorce and finances.

"Margaret Case and myself were returning from Europe on the old S. S. Lapland, and the closer we got to the Statue of Liberty the more certain I became that I needed a job. I had a lot of smart clothes [I bought them at the places in Paris that copied the famous modistes], so Margaret and I figured out that the only place to use clothes and the ability to wear them was the theater."

Her first stage job? "Al Woods, when we met, said: 'Sweetheart, you're just the type for Poppy in "Shanghai Gesture." I'd told him meanwhile, lying furiously, that I had played stock at Kansas City and in amateur Shakespearean companies. He asked me to read the part, and I was very bad. 'Sweetheart,' he said, 'you go home and get the wavers out of your voice.' The next day I knew the jig was up, so I demanded that he get Mrs. Leslie Carter, poor dear, to read her part with me. 'I'll call your bluff,' he said, amused at my nerve, and at 3 o'clock that afternoon I was in her ap·rtment.

"'You're too tall, three inches too tall,' she told me. 'In the last act, when I kill you, it would look ridiculous for little me to even attempt it—sort of a canary-chasing-the-cat idea.' I was so happy that I didn't have to read the part to her and John Colton that I was delighted at the bad news."

How'd she get into pictures? "It was while I was playing in 'Elmer the Great' with Walter Huston, on Broadway. He had signed with Paramount and he asked me to come over and take a test, a silent test. The studio and Walter raved over it, but when I saw myself on the screen I thought I looked horrible and for ten days hid on Long Island. Finally my mother got me on the phone and said: 'Kay, Paramount is offering you a contract for $300 a week with a five-week guarantee.'

"And I rushed back to town—for $1,500 I would have jumped off the Woolworth building. Then I caught cold and could hardly talk. Millard Webb was all for throwing me out of the cast, but the chiropractor got me in shape by cracking my neck, but my voice was so deep that I sounded like Ethel Barrymore. They liked it so much that they wanted me to keep my cold, no fooling."

Was she, as so often reported, the former social secretary to Mrs. Dwight Morrow? "No, I was the secretary to the two elderly ladies who handled income tax for Mrs. Morrow, Mrs. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Pratt, and a lot of other wealthy women. That was during the six month period when I was getting my first divorce, and I needed a job."

Her most amusing recollections: "Playing the 'heavy' with the Marx brothers in the film version of 'Coconuts'! Chico pulled lingerie out of my hat, Harpo chased me all over the screen, Groucho wrestled with me. When they talk of me as the dignified Kay Francis I think back to the falls that I took with the Marx brothers and have a nice, quiet giggle."

Had any persons contributed more to her career than anybody else: "Yes," she said, "I think Otis P. Garrett and David Selznick did more to buoy my self-confidence than anybody else. They were the only ones who always believed I was capable of playing leads. My first was in 'Street of Chance,' and in it, for the first time, I wore my hair long. Up to then I'd always worn it short."

Any regrets? "Yes, I'm sorry that I haven't the amazing nerve I had when I was about 19 years old, on that first trip to Al Woods' office. Ed, if I had that much gall now, Hollywood wouldn't pay any attention to Garbo; I'd make her look like a blushing violet. I'd just sweep through this town and people would be so overpowered by my sheer assurance that they'd bow and salaam to me in the streets."

Was the "Tovarich" row at Warner's a publicity stunt: "My lawyers have ordered me not to discuss that, but you might say that the stories about Claudette and myself being enemies are silly. We are the best of friends. As you know, she's one of the nicest persons out here."

Her immediate plans: "I've just finished building that house in Gopher Gulch. I just left the landscape artist; that's why I've got these heavy shoes on. It's lot of fun and a lot of headaches, but I'm really getting a terrific kick out of it."

BY MAE TINEE.

Good Morning!

Sparkling, satiric comedy, this, with a full meed of romance, whimsy and excitement. It should go over with any sort of audience.

Events depicted are some that "might have happened" [see subtitle] in the life of David Garrick, that colorful actor of the old English stage about whom so many legends have sprung; so many preposterous and amusing stories been woven . . . And never could there have been a better impersonator of the delightful and unpredictable man than was found in Brian Aherne! [Who, in technique and looks, is, to me, so much like Errol Flynn.]

You meet Garrick bidding farewell to an acclaiming English audience, for a sally into France. . . . When he first announces his departure he is treated to catcalls and overripe tomatoes. . . . But Garrick is resourceful. . . . He then makes an announcement which, reported to the players of the Comedie Francaise where he is scheduled to be guest star, has the effect of a severe tug on proud tail feathers. . . . There results a hazing—planned to deflate the English favorite.

To do this, the French players take over, for twenty-four hours, an inn where Garrick plans to stop en route to Paris. . .

Their carefully concocted plot is immediately seen throu·h by the clever Garrick who—to shorten the story—makes monkeys of them—and himself! For a certain charming Germaine, whom he believes to be a member of the troupe, and with whom he falls in love—is, in fact, just what she says she is. Action leads up amusingly to Garrick's apology to Germaine—in the name of La Belle France—from the stage of the Comèdie Française. . . .

It is all very colorful, very entertaining. Mr. Aherne carries off his rôle with dash and aplomb. . . . You learn—an interesting sidelight!—that Garrick invariably suffered agonies of stage fright before each performance.

Olivia de Havilland is a beautiful creature as Germaine. Edward Everett Horton is splendid as David's secretary valet. . . . Of a grand supporting cast Etienne Girardot contributes the most outstanding performance. A prompter, he, to whom Garrick had once been kind. This kindness the mousy little man repays with interest.

The piece has been magnificently produced and is brightly dialogued. It has—er—yumpf!

The Housewife

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

If you're a member of a large family, or if you are a hospitable person who has frequent guests in your home, you'll like to hear about a new, individualized towel rack that puts a stop to community use of your towel. This good looking bar of chromium in modern design has a little gadget at one side in which you slip a card with your name, or that of your guest, or your son or daughter.

With "Jane," or "Mary," or "Tom," or "Sally" on the towel bar it's plain to be seen whose towels hang there. The bar comes in two lengths, 18 and 24 inches, and the prices are not high for such a handsome bit of bathroom equipment. It is attached to the wall by rubber vacuum cups.

Mott to Lay Corner Stone of Illini Y. M. C. A. Today

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The corner stone of the new $300,000 university Y. M. C. A. building will be laid here tomorrow afternoon by Dr. John R. Mott, veteran Y. M. C. A. leader and founder of the World Student Christian federation.

Many Parties Will Follow Football Game

BY JUDITH CASS.

REAL football fans welcome good, cold weather to end the season, so the low temperature and snow will not keep any of them away from Dyche stadium in Evanston this afternoon when Northwestern university closes its season with a game with Notre Dame. Many of those who today will be in Dyche stadium will go next Saturday to South Bend to see Notre Dame play Southern California in Notre Dame's last game for this year.

Even those who do not mind two and a half hours in the cold find an hour or two in a comfortable house with a warm, or a warming drink in hand, a pleasant finale to the afternoon. There are dozens of cocktail and tea parties planned for today, some on the north shore and others in town. President and Mrs. Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern will be at home in their hospitable old brownstone house in Chicago avenue, Evanston, for their last football tea of the winter.

Assisting Mrs. Scott will be Mrs. William W. Dixon, Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson, Mrs. Ronald Boardman, Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Mrs. Walter J. Cummings, Mrs. Rensselaer Cox, Mrs. Bertram Cahn, Mrs. Owen Coom, Mrs. Lester Norris, Mrs. Raymond Redheffer, and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes.

Millers to Give Cocktail Party.

The John Walter Millers, known to their many friends as Jack and Jill, are giving a large cocktail party at their Winnetka home this afternoon from 4:30 until 7 o'clock. The Lawrence Howes, who also live in Winnetka, are at home to their friends after every Northwestern game, and since the friends of their four sons as well as their own contemporaries often drop in, they sometimes have a crowd that almost overflows their charming house in Chestnut street.

The F. Harold Pulfers of Chatfield road, Winnetka, have cards out for a cocktail party this afternoon after the game for their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morse of Delavan, Ill. This will be a busy week-end for Mr. Pulfer, for he has entered his bulldogs in the Western Specialty club's dog show, to be held in the Coliseum today and tomorrow. The Conway H. Olmsteds, the Livingston Osbornes, Mrs. Janet H. Henneberry, the Orrin Bakers, Harold M. Florsheim, and Hulburd Johnston are among others who have dogs entered in the show.

Edwin Ashcrafts Will Entertain.

The young Edwin M. Ashcrafts are entertaining at their Evanston home after the game for Mr. and Mrs. Donald Straghan of Philadelphia, who are visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Graham Jr. Mr. Straghan and Mr. Ashcraft were at Princeton together. Tomorrow night the Grahams are giving a supper party for their guests, who are going from here to Buffalo where Mr. Straghan will play in a squash tournament.

The William Alden Littles are having a housewarming in their new apartment at 200 East Delaware place from 5 to 7 so many of their guests will go to the game in Evanston first.

Lloyd Maxwell sent out clever invitations to the party he is giving this afternoon. At the top of the invitations were facsimiles of a ticket to the Notre Dame-Northwestern game and below were the words, "and then—Lloyd Maxwells', 179 Lake Shore drive. From 5 o'clock."

There will be no hold hands or feet or noses for the members of the Yale and Harvard clubs of Chicago and their friends who will hear a special broadcast of the Yale-Harvard game at the Palmer house.

Opera Will Draw Full Share of Throngs.

While their husbands and sons are watching football games, many women in social circles will spend this afternoon, as they do every Saturday afternoon during the opera season, in the Civic Opera house. Ever since opera days in the Auditorium, Saturday matinees have been popular. "Lohengrin" is today's opera.

The Civic Opera house will be

Dieting Must Be Accompanied by Exercises

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Diets come and diets go, and the fat-routing contest goes on forever.

Don't think for a moment that we are attacking diets in order to get one down to normal weight. It's a pretty hard job to do without dieting—if it can be done at all. BUT the time has come for women to tell themselves, without any further argument about it, that if they don't throw in some exercise with the dieting their cause is lost. O, yes, for a time, I'll grant, they'll revel in the shrunken waistline and the better streamlined hip. But their rejoicing simply does not last. As one woman recently sobbed to me: "On that diet I got down to a size 18 frock, and that's what I ordered, but by the time it was finished and delivered I had bounced back up to the former 20 size." While 20 is no gross size it simply meant to this woman the recornering of her temporarily lost pounds.

And believe me, ladies, that is what happens nine cases out of ten on the diet course alone. The minute you give it up there's nothing to discourage the extras from coming right back and settling down comfortably on the frame.

But the woman who works in exercise with her diet, and who keeps on doing her exercise after she has gone off the sugarless-creamless-starchless fare, never experiences that quick return of weight. She is primed against it. Her muscles are hardened against it.

I have word that Anna Sten, film star, who, I seem to recall, underwent a hectic period of remolding and remodeling for an earlier debut, has gone berserk on the dieting thing now. No more eighteen days of spineless vittles. No starving. No massage spanking. And she lost 15 pounds by eating anything she wanted within reason and by judicious exercising. Miss Sten feels qualified now to indorse a good thick steak with trimmings so that a full dinner plate may be enjoyed. But a brisk walk has to be taken along the highways and byways. No loafing along or window shopping. Step along at a lively pace and keep on moving that way until you've chalked up a couple of miles, not blocks. Tennis, swimming, and sun bathing are Miss Sten's privilege the year round, and these are employed as substitute for the old fashioned idea of foodless meals.

O, Boy! Santa's Gone Scientific with New Toys!

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

A preview of Toyland for boys this Christmas season, which opens officially in loop department stores today, shows that Santa Claus is succumbing to this age of science.

The impact of radio, airplanes, and streamlined gadgets, foundry sets, lether tools, microscope outfits, intricate construction material and engines has been terrific upon all the old Mother Goose absurdities and simplicities of forty years ago. While the rocking horse and toy soldiers remain of perennial interest, the cave man, Indian hunter complex in the boy is giving way gradually to a sense of tools and making things, intricacies of construction and education first hand into the secrets of nature.

If the offerings of Toyland in the great stores in all their bewildering complexity and beauty are garnered into the homes of Chicagoland this Christmas it will be the boys who instruct their dads. And mother, too, will be taught something about the difference in the crystal formations of sugar and salt, and a great time of new magic will be upon us. One of the good things for mothers is a line of scratchless toys, rubber protected against collisions with chair and table legs.

Halls of science, chemistry buildings, and various wood and metal factories are awaiting the boy visitors. The toy autos are the last word in streamline models, and one of the latest things is a trailer in which a boy can ride hooked to an auto or velocipede. These latter vehicles now have tires as big as bicycles.

The miniature models of the swift trains of today will intrigue dad, at least. They are beautifully made and run into all sorts of prices. There is one train, controled by radio, which obeys the voice of the boy operator in coupling and uncoupling, speeding ahead, and backing up.

"Gee" is the only word to describe the elaborate sets of soldiers. They are in the latest uniform, as well as in the old style red coats and high hats. The knights and castles of old give way to modern trench warfare with Red Cross stations, field kitchens, cannons, and howitzers that really shoot, the biggest array of toy warfare in history. There are climbing, fighting tanks, radio code blinkers, field telephones that work, and airplanes of one-fifth horse power and five foot wing spread that fly two or three miles under gas engine power.

In the field of transportation a toy superhighway is offered, about fifteen feet long, with curves and underpasses, in which two automobiles race. There is a blue print and materials for the making of a Queen Mary.

In actual working devices there is a home foundry for melting the old lead soldiers and making new ones, and dies for other uses of lead. In the metal arts there is a new electric tapper that works miracles with plaques of all sorts. There is a dial typewriter in which one can write real letters, one letter at a time made by turning a dial and a punch.

In the education line for boys up to the eighth grade, rubber stamp sets are displayed in which a picture of an animal is made on paper opposite the word. Or one may proceed along this route to the picture and spelling of the China Clipper. There are circus sets and sets of TRIBUNE funnies.

Microscope sets, glass blowing sets, and mineralogy outfits constitute the latest word in boy play which also is scientific education. There are also hobby kits with which a boy can make anything in lether goods from a belt to a billfold.

A new world is opened to boys and their elders by the toy projecting microscopes with which biological and botanical material can be observed. The boys can put on a great show with chemical reactions, the study of a leaf, an insect, or textiles.

THE discussion of phonetic misunderstandings brought in a number of juvenile misconceptions. There was the child who thought the poem "Abou Ben Adhem" [may his tribe increase!] began "A boob, Ben Adam. . . ." It was the same child who thought the Aurora and Elgin electric line was "the Roarin' Elgin." Others were "He floats through the air with the greatest disease . . ." "Gladdy, the cross-eyed bear" ["Gladly my cross I'd bear . . ."] "Give us our steak and daily bread . . ." "Our Father Who Art in Heaven, Howard Be Thy Name . . ." Also there was little Harold, who confided to his mother shortly after attending a Halloween party that he had learned the Lord's Prayer. "Halloween be Thy Name" prayed the youngster.

Misconceptions—Eight Year Old—Barter.

"Spooner, Wis., Nov. 14, 1937.

"Dear Margret:

"Got your letter and thanks a lot. I wrote a letter to grampa today. Also sent him pictures as I'm sending you. I told grampa he better be a good boy because Xmas was just auround the corner. I spose he'll be laughing and showing his new teeth all auround. But mother says she bets he won't eat any nuts for Xmas.

"Daddy got a ten day vacation and has put a hot water tank in the celler, put on the storm windows and such things needed around the house. Leland [age 10] has a new job but he don't have to advertise it because everybody can smell it. feels pruty big when he can loan his big sister twenty cents to go to a school party. Oh yes forgot to tell yow Leland's job is cleaning out King's cowbarn.

"Well I guess thats all the news for now and mother says hello. And write soon I am . . ."

Insets of Real Lace Decorate Dress Hosiery

BY RHEA SEEGER.

New hosiery for the picturesque party clothes goes in for luxury details without prohibitive price marks. See the sheer black flatterers with lace toe sections of either silver or gold color, or the equally black filmy things with black lace toes and a pointed lace panel well up the instep. These are effective finds for all the dancing sandals to contrast wide skirted black velvet dance dresses.

Some exciting lace paneled stockings are in the luxury class, but it isn't too soon to start hinting for them as gifts. A sooty black with lovely real lace insets, a black with less expensive lace insets, and a flesh sun tan tint with the less expensive lace contrast are among the finds. These are as French as anything seen in years, and they're going out fast despite the price.

A new daytime color, called "chippendale," has a stunning, rather mahogany red cast, a grand tone for all black outfits or with steel gray and bright blue. There are gloves to match this "chippendale" color so you can really do a good job of accessory contrast.

New shadow clocked stockings are "in" for street wear; there's one color that is a winner for all-purpose wear. It's a gray-beige-sun tan mixture that goes with everything. Ask for "café parfait." Other good tints are also available.

Lace clocked hosiery is going strong, especially for afternoon or party clothes. Later, you'll even wear clocked hosiery with the slenderizing clox outlined in glittering rhinestones . . . dress up—enough for any one!

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

We don't know how the men feel about it, but we've seen a gift idea for them that looks awfully good to us. It's a toilet kit that strikes us as being handsome and practical, not only for the man who travels a lot but for the gent who just stays home and gets on his wife's nerves by cluttering up the bathroom shelves with his shaving cream and hair tonic.

This is a saddle bag kit, inspired, we were told, by the lines of the official United States army saddle bag. It's roomy, handy, and good to look at—at least in our eyes. Kits for men often strike us as being a little bit on the silly side. Either we don't know men with the tastes the manufacturers think men should have or the manufacturers are doing some wishful thinking. We dunno. This kit of grained pigskin looks like the sort of thing we think a man would own and use.

It contains hair tonic, a lotion, shaving cream, and talcum—all of them quite well known preparations and quite good ones. Men have liked them for years and years. It's roomy enough to contain a lot of other things a man might want to toss into it and it's sturdy—which is another point we think will appeal to men. It could take a lot of punishment from the man who travels and it's a little bag he won't at all mind having at hand while he's at home.

This kit isn't as expensive as we perhaps have made it sound. We were pleasantly surprised at the price because we thought it looked so impressive. You might keep it in mind if you're troubled about the Christmas chores ahead of you.

Provide for Your Child's Mental Growth

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

I don't blame because I understand, but wails and complaints in varying degrees of despair, tragic and comic, come in to me:

"My 8 year old does . . . . this!"
"My 9 year old does . . . . that!"
"My 10 year old does so and so!"

Of course they do "this" and "that" and "so and so"; it's the age; they can't help it. Even so, all doesn't have to be chaos and scolding and grinning and bearing it.

There's a lot that's interesting in these children of in-between years, a lot that's happening of great importance to them besides the surface heedlessness and noisiness and rough and tumble.

Some parents see this and because they do they get something and give something important during these years between little childhood and adolescence. It isn't just marking time, just an in-between no man's land in their growth and development.

These children from 7 to 12 don't stand still emotionally and mentally in spite of all the physical hullabaloo they create; nothing does. Their minds are alert and eager and receptive. Their personalities are growing and expanding in response to their enlarging world. And so they need to be fed with more than gallons of milk, ovensful of bread, quarts of orange juice, and dairies full of butter and eggs, not to mention truck loads of vegetables and fruits and meats.

I've done a lot of trotting around with children, around a big city with its many doings of interest, to zoos and aquariums, to wharves and docks, to museums and bridges and railroad yards, to parks and woods and fields. It's not only fun and companionship, but it's enriching for them mentally.

We have many suggestions for following up the ideas in this article which will be found in the leaflet of "Suggestions for the Enjoyable and Profitable Use of Children's Leisure." Also, we have a booklet—"Living with Our In-Betweens—the Children from 6 to 12." It will be necessary to send a large, 3-cent stamped self-addressed envelope for each piece of literature. BY NANCY CABOT.

The various chain designs always prove a popular choice of quilt makers in selecting motifs for everyday coverlets. "Golden Chains" is one of those simple blocks with numerous patches which may be set together without any difficulty by the most amateur quilt maker. Measuring 16 inches square, this good looking pieced block combines gold, white, and interesting touches of blue in the corners of each square. Set together as an all-over pattern, this "Golden Chain" block becomes one of the ranking beauties of the quilt world. The entire coverlet is quilted in outline, with a running cable cord in the border.

SYNOPSIS.

When rich old Caleb Winter died his wife, Isabella, once his housekeeper, wires her daughter, Sally Lee Keyne, at school in Maryland, to come home at last. Because Caleb had demanded a housekeeper without family ties Isabella had never told him about Sally. Sally bids good-by to wise Mary Culpepper, school headmistress. En route she meets Robin Ashe, whose family live near the old Crewe mansion, Sally's new home—he falls in love with her—and has an unpleasant encounter with an arrogant tramp called Vincent. The morning after Sally's homecoming Joseph Marr, his lawyer, reads Caleb's will and her mother has a stroke. Informed of his wife's deception, Caleb left everything to his first wife's nephew, Obadiah Crewe. Mrs. Winter, if she stays on as housekeeper, to have shelter and an income. The new heir turns out to be the tramp—Vincent Obadiah Crewe. Though she hates and fears him, Sally serves him as housekeeper in her mother's place. Vincent inherits Caleb's tricky West Indian valet, Manchi. Gossip reaches Robin that Sally is the new heir's mistress. Vincent surprises Sally when he tells her he loves her and asks her to marry him. He shocks her by harboring an evil looking tramp who is ill. When Robin calls to beg Sally to marry him she announces that she is going to marry Vincent. Vincent is told by Manchi that he is not Caleb's nephew, but the illegitimate son of Caleb's first wife. Vincent takes the evidence, forced from Manchi, to the lawyer, relinquishing the fortune to Mrs. Winter. When Mrs. Winter hears the news she begs Sally not to marry Vincent. Sally insists she will, but Vincent won't let her. The tramp enters Mrs. Winter's sickroom—she recognizes him as her first husband whom she thought dead. The shock kills her.

INSTALMENT XLII.

RESCUING HER LOVER.

At a leaf-hidden fence Sally ran her car to cover and stopped, climbing down into a slender path which she was able to distinguish more by memory than eyesight, having followed it a dozen times in her escape from Crewe House when that had been her most unhappy prison. Now, with hands out and a foot careful of stones and ruts and roots, she felt her way into and out of a copse and, more boldly across an open field. Then she stepped into the woods again and up the steeper slope beyond . . . the trees were terribly thick . . . to come out, in the open grass below the gardens. Now she could see the house. There were lights sticking slim fingers through the shutter slats. The stars and the sky were clear above the long dark roofs and chimney tops. She could hear a Negro singing.

She reached the nearest gate in the long brick wall, pushed it open and went through. Her foot, expecting gravel, struck against something soft, heavy and warm.

Sally bent low and groped with her hands and with her startled eyes. It was the body of a little dog, Vincent's little yellow dog, that had followed him home from Hanbury and been his companion ever since. Sally lit a match which burned itself out in the still air while she examined the little creature. He had been killed . . . only a short time ago he was so warm and soft; killed instantly by a heavy dumb blow on his head. Sally stood up, as her match went out, and felt cold. A little dog runs out barking at the sound of a footstep in the garden walk. The bark is cut to silence. The footstep goes on, forsaking the gravel for the soundless turf, goes on without further warning given, towards the house. . . .

First she started to run and throw herself between Vincent and Fred's bullet. Then a second thought drove her back towards her car as rapidly as though that difficult path were lighted by a noon sun, stumbling, balancing, recovering, until she had her hand on Vincent's gun, the one he had forced upon her as she said good-by. With this to make her interference effectual—if all interference did not come too late,—she returned to the garden path with its pathetic futile little sentinel.

Sally stepped like a ghost towards the French window of the library and found, standing there with her feet in the sweet alyssum, that it was mercifully unlocked. She sat down and took off both her shoes. Inside the house, all the lights were burning brightly and there was no sound. Very distinctly she could hear the Negro singing. She stepped along the old polished floors and came into the hall. It was as still a house as the Sleeping Palace. Perhaps she had come too late. Perhaps her fear was based on a false premise . . . a whiff of cigaret smoke gave evidence to her attentive nostrils and led her as light of foot as an apparition, to the office door. Light shone here across the threshold but no sound came from inside. Something, however, gave her the chill of an excessive fear. Her cold hand pressed and, infinitely careful, turned the knob.

What she did, as the door opened, was purely instinctive. She could never remember what the quick series of her action was. She stood inside, her back against the closed door, her gun was steady and her voice of vibrant silver wires had finished its clear speech.

The man whose presence she had more divined than recognized, did stand up slowly from his chair. He had been tilted back against the wall close beside Mrs. Winter's desk, the floor about him was strewn with cigaret butts. On the desk top within his reach but not . . . thank God! within a reach as quick as her intuition had allowed him, lay his gun. Opposite the watcher, and his attentive patient smoking, Vincent slumped down in the desk chair. He was tied into it by a short rope which strained his elbows together behind the back. A handkerchief was tied across his mouth. He was instantly recognizable as a man in a dead faint. Sally moved across the floor and stood beside him to face his visitor. She cautiously drew towards her the gun on the desk and dropped it into the pocket of her light coat. She kept telling herself, "Don't think you're safe. You can't be safe as long as he is here. Don't let anything . . . not any cry or oath or terror . . . make you take your eyes by one flicker from his face . . . nor move the direction of your gun. He has a wise cold look . . . he can beat you at this gun game easily . . . "O, Miss Mary, Miss Mary . . ." and she did not in the least realize how quaint was the summons of the little spinster school mistress for support in this emergency, "please help me to be calm . . . to keep my head."

So her mind was busy while her tongue spoke, addressing the deadly danger to which eye and hand were steadily directed.

"I know who you are," she was saying. "I recognize your face. Vincent described you to me that night at Grassways Inn. Your name is Fred. You killed your wife. You are just out of prison and you have come to kill Vincent. I know all about you."

"You surely do know a lot," the man spoke in that voice Vincent had said was "so low that you have to listen close to understand what he is saying to you." "But you have got me wrong. I came in here to save Vincent from Fred. Lady," he hissed this out with sudden and desperate urgency, "you better look behind you quick."

Every nerve in Sally's body jerked but her body itself stood still. She saw how he gathered himself for a spring and how he now relaxed.

"I thought when I first looked at him," she said going on in the even high tone of her first speech, "that you had killed him already. But, if you had, you wouldn't still be here. . . . The dog barked at you and you stopped him barking and Vincent went out and you hit him on the head and stunned him and carried him here to kill at your leisure. You want him to know who it is that kills him. And he wanted more than anything in the world, I think, to tell you first how he was forced to give that evidence. . . ."

The face described by Vincent in his delirium . . . "a narrow face . . . like a knife . . . black eyes, close together, a long nose . . . ." changed subtly during the last sentence of Sally's speech which by its tone seemed to be addressed to herself. Perhaps the change of her auditor's expression brought her again to full awareness for she spoke more sharply.

"I am going to wait five minutes and then, if Vincent has not come to I'll telephone for the police."

But she had hardly finished this announcement when Vincent stirred and groaned and tried to lift his head.

Moving her left hand only she clumsily undid the handkerchief that kept him from speech.

"What happened?" muttered Vincent his eyes under the scattered red hair were dazed, slowly gathering evidence of reality. "You, Fred?" He turned then as far as he could, wrenching at his bound arms and looked at Sally. After closing his eyes tight and opening them again, he whispered her name, "Sally!"

She said superfluously. "I have come back."

GASOLINE ALLEY—AND BOYS WILL BE BOYS

crowded again tomorow afternoon for the last Chicago appearance until 1939 of the Jooss European ballet. "The Green Table," "The Big City," "A Ball in Old Vienna," and "Sonatine Transatlantique" are the four ballets on the program.

Streeterville Ball For Kay Goodman.

The decorations that Mrs. William O. Goodman and the junior Charles S. Deweys have provided for the Streeterville Hunt ball they are giving tonight for debutante Miss Kay Goodman are being kept a surprise. That they will be ultra gay and smart goes without saying. The dance will be held at the Casino.

Miss Goodman is a granddaughter of Mrs. Goodman, and the sister of Mrs. Dewey. Mr. and Mrs. Dewey have invited a few of their contemporaries to the ball, but only Miss Goodman and her debutante friends and their escorts have been asked to the dinner Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hibbard are giving at their apartment preceding the dance. Mrs. Hibbard is Miss Goodman's aunt.

Almost as soon as the invitations were out every table was taken for the buffet supper to be given tomorrow night at the Arts club for Zlatko Bakolovic. Hellmuth Baervold, pianist, will assist the violinist in giving a program after supper.

Mr. Bakolovic and his wife, Mr. Baervold, and other hosts, the John Alden Carpenters, will be the guests of Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, club president, and Mr. Goodspeed at supper.

The Balokovics will be guests at two parties today. The Chauncey McCormicks are entertaining at luncheon for them, and Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank are giving a dinner tonight.

House Parties At Princeton.

The clubs at Princeton university are having their annual fall house parties this week-end. A high spot of the festivities was the dance, which was held last night in the gymnasium under the direction of Miss Elsa Maxwell of New York.

Among the Chicago girls who are attending are Miss Barbara Tennant of Highland Park, Miss Eleonore Thompson, who was with Bradford Ripley; Miss Gertrude Smith, Miss Marjorie Morrison of Winnetka, a guest of Stephen Powell of Winnetka, and Miss Marjorie McDonald.

The Danish minister to the United States, Otto Wadstad, arrives in town today to attend a banquet at the Stevens hotel tomorrow night to be given by Dania, Danish society, which is celebrating its seventy-fifth anniversary. About 600 guests are expected. Mr. Wadstad will dine with the Danish consul and his wife, Gen. and Mrs. Reimond Baumann, this evening before accompanying them to the opera to hear "Carmen."

Mr. and Mrs. Convers Goddard, 426 Arlington place, are entertaining in their home tomorrow from 4:30 until 7 o'clock for Mrs. Royden J. Keith, president of the Woman's Symphony Orchestral association.

The first of a series of four dances to be given by the North Shore Fortnightly will be held tonight at the Shawnee Country club. Alexander R. Carman Jr. is chairman, and Mrs. Wallace D. Mackenzie is vice chairman.

Several Brides to Say Vows at Services Today

Several weddings of interest will take place in Chicago and on the north shore today. Miss Mary Young, daughter of the W. Victor Youngs, will be married at home, 257 East Delaware place, at 8 o'clock tonight to William G. Peacock Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Peacock of Wilmette.

Miss Fredrica Sargent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Sargent of Evanston, and Frederick E. French, son of Mrs. Bayless French, also of Evanston, will be married at 8:30 o'clock in the First Methodist church, Evanston, with a reception following at home.

Miss Virginia Rich and Sidney S. Date, son of the Lamson H. Dates of Winnetka, will be married at 4:30 o'clock in the Winnetka home of the bride's father, Stanley Rich, with a small reception following.

Mr. and Mrs. William Monroe Young of New York and Mrs. Harry Glen Baldwin of Milwaukee have come for the wedding of their niece, Miss Young, and Mr. Peacock. Miss Betsy Beeler of Knoxville, Tenn., a classmate of the bride's at Vassar, has been here for several days to take part in the prenuptial parties which were climaxed by a bridal dinner given at the Drake hotel last night by Mr. and Mrs. Young.

The Rev. Dudley S. Stark of St. Chrysostom's church will officiate at the candlelight service which will be read in the spacious living room. An organ has been installed. The bride will wear for the first time a pearl necklace that her father started when she was a baby and which has just been completed. For something old she will wear heirloom lace in her veil.

Mrs. Grier D. Patterson, sister of the bridegroom, and Raymond Ickes will be the only attendants. Only relatives will hear the ceremony, but the reception will be larger. Mr. Peacock and his bride will return from a wedding trip by Christmas, but they have not decided where they will live.

Two especial guests at the French-Sargent wedding will be the bride's and the bridegroom's grandmothers. Mrs. Carrie Minier, Mrs. Sargent's mother, has come from Minneapolis. The bridegroom's grandmother is Mrs. T. H. Fitzsimons. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Benson, Mrs. Sargent's brother-in-law and sister, have come from Huron, S. D.

Miss Marion Klink will be Miss Sargent's maid of honor. The bridesmaids include Mrs. David G. Poston, whose father, the Rev. Ernest Fremont Tittle, will read the service; Mrs. Minier and Mrs. Haskell Sargent; Miss Virginia French, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Betty Clark of Bloomington, Ill., and Miss Doris Lane.

John Davis will be Mr. French's best man. Ushering will be Haskell and Minier Sargent; Carl Troup, Clark Kuebler, Leroy Kling, Allen Wilson Jr., Derrick Brewster, and Oliver Babcock Jr. Mr. French and his bride will make their home in Niles Center.

Only the immediate families will hear the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard of Christ church, Winnetka, read the wedding service for Miss Rich and Mr. Date. Mrs. John W. Holloway and Samuel Rockwell will be the only attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Holsapple of Scarsdale, uncle and aunt of the bride, have come for the wedding. Mr. Date and his bride will live in Winnetka.

Miss Martha Farmer, daughter of the Frederick R. Farmers of Wilmette, will be married at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon to Dr. Gordon Chinnock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chinnock of Detroit. The ceremony will take place at St. Francis Xavier church in Wilmette with a reception following at the Shawnee Country club.

Miss Eleanor Idler will be the maid of honor, and the bride's sisters, Miss May and Miss Mildred Farmer, will be bridesmaids. Norman Chinnock of Detroit will be his brother's best man.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Brewer, 746 Grove street, Glencoe, announce the marriage of their daughter, Betty Widney, to Arno Louis Weller Jr., this evening at the St. Elisabeth's Episcopal church in Glencoe.

Miss Jane L. Chadwick will be the maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Harriett Ohman and Miss Ameri Edinger. Valjane Skogsberg, a cousin of the bridegroom, will be the flower girl. Robert Weller of Detroit will be his brother's best man.

The wedding of Miss Audrey Cornelia Bartlett, daughter of Robert Bartlett of Chicago and Mrs. Helen Woodall Bartlett of Phoenix, Ariz., and Chicago, to Daniel Marion Francis Jr. of Tucson, Ariz., took place Thursday night in Phoenix. The ceremony was held at 8 o'clock in Trinity Episcopal cathedral, with a reception following at the Bartlett home.

Aldous Huxley Calls on All Individuals to Use Ways to Peace

Aldous Huxley, the young British author who won his reputation by pointing a finger of brilliant scorn at modern man, last night beckoned to his fellow men to join him in an active-passive resistance to world war, which he feels will surely come unless the people who do not want war exhaust every possibility for peace short of fighting for it.

Aldous Huxley has peace plan.

In a speech under the auspices of the English Speaking union, at the Lake Shore Athletic club, Mr. Huxley declared that it is a paradox to believe that democracy can save itself from warlike Fascism by resorting to war. The answer, he said, without being sure that it could be obtained, must lie in another direction.

This is the unified use by individuals of every social, political, economic, educational, and religious instrument to change the traditional psychological attitude that enables militarists to make one people hostile to another, he explained.

Two Cookery Problems Are Starred Today

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

What shall I do to keep fruits from sinking to the bottom of my cake when it is baked? is a question several readers would like to have answered.

Steaming the fruit should take care of this problem. Flouring is another solution. Steaming and flouring together should eliminate any difficulty whatsoever. If a regular steamer isn't available, fruit for a cake may be plumped in a strainer or colander over a kettle of boiling water. A cover for the kettle is necessary, of course. The fruit should be cooled before it is floured to go into the cake.

That hunters are active and successful these days is indicated by the number of requests we have for methods of cooking game, especially venison and wild duck. We have a booklet, "Twenty Ways to Cook Game" [3 cents by mail], and this is what it says about these two meats.

ROAST LEG OF VENISON.

Wipe venison with a damp cloth and strip off the dry skin. Lard the lean side with strips of fat pork, drawing them through the flesh with a larding needle. Rub the whole piece with softened butter, then sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Now lay the venison leg on a rack in a rosating pan, the bottom of which has been dusted generously with flour. Place the pan in a hot oven for five minutes, only long enough to brown the flour. Then lower the heat to moderate [350 degrees] and add enough boiling water to cover the bottom of the pan. Allow about ten minutes per pound and baste frequently during cooking. Serve with a gravy made of drippings and a tart jelly.

[Venison steak may be broiled. A steak 1½ inches thick will require 12 minutes. The meat usually is served rare.]

ROAST WILD DUCK.

To prepare duck for cooking clip wing tips and remove all coarse guard feathers. To remove down apply melted paraffin with a clean brush, let it harden, and then pull it off, removing down and pin feathers. Clean bird thoroughly and remove entrails. Truss by tying as for roasting and soak in salt water for two hours if the strong gamey flavor isn't well liked. Wrap in cheese cloth and store in refrigerator until ready for cooking. Stuff with wild rice dressing or simply place a large onion and a peeled apple in the cavity. Place strips of bacon or salt pork across the breast and roast at 325 degrees until tender. An hour and a half is sufficient for a young bird, but an old one will require 30 to 45 minutes longer. Baste frequently and remove from oven as soon as tender. Duck should be served rare.

Wife Foolish in Jealousy of Man's Family

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Admitting she has been desperate since she was a child, Mrs. C. B. continues that she still is desperate and her husband now is to blame.

One line is injected in the letter which would indicate the husband may have something to say in defense of his coolness. "He thinks only of his dad and his mother and his two brothers. They mean more to him that does his wife." In this last line we seem to detect an unreasonable jealousy.

Why, with a sentimental and affectionate man, is she thrust away, unless it is due to some action on her own part that alienates the man? A man who finds his parents worthy of devotion after his own marriage simply cannot be a cold, frigid brute unless the wife's own conduct has caused the emotion.

It is true, however, that an insanely jealous woman might drive a man to cover under his own family roof. It might drive him into a change of character. But, we feel that Mrs. C. B.'s salvation lies in tracking down her own crimes, admitting them frankly and changing her mode of behavior.

Harold S. Vanderbilt Team Wins Way to Bridge Semi-Finals

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—In a last minute climax Harold S. Vanderbilt and his partner, by cautious bidding and deliberate play of the cards, tonight led their team into the semi-final round at contract bridge of the ninth annual play for the Vanderbilt cup. The Vanderbilt team beat its opponents by the second widest margin of the day's play, winning by 5,320 points. Vanderbilt's teammates are Waldemar Von Zedtwitz, B. Jay Becker, Theodore A. Lightner, and Charles Lochridge.

The "Four Aces"—David Burnstine, Oswald Jacoby, Howard Schenken, and M. D. Maier, with Sherman Stearns alternating—outplayed the team of the New York Bridge Whist club by 7,420 points, the high mark of the session.

The Cavendish club team of Edward Hynes Jr., Sam Fry Jr., Robert McPherran, John Crawford, and Mrs. Emory Clement, who figured in yesterday's play as alternate, decisively defeated Jack Cushing, Edward Marcus, A. Lewis Gotthelf, and Charles W. Weissenbach of the Mayfair club by a score of 1,750 points over the 48 hands of the day's play.

The team of Morris Ellis, who was a member last year of the winning team, which included Benedict Jarmel, Henry Chanin, and Alphonse Moyse, easily overcame the team of the Nelson Bridge club, consisting of Lee Hazen, Norman Berlin, William Irle, and Myron Fuchs.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

The National Self-Rating Bridge Examination, which has been running for about seven weeks, and which now is nearing its close, has revealed a wealth of interesting facts. Although, as I pointed out in my first announcement, the idea is essentially for readers to rate themselves, thousands took advantage of my offer to set their final rank. I expected great interest among the rank and file of bridge players in this examination [which henceforth will be an annual feature of my column], but the actual results have far surpassed my fondest hope. In my files are dozens of answers sent in jointly by husband and wife, with frank footnotes to the effect that each is straining every fibre to lick the daylights out of the other. In Utica there is one family of five—mother, father, two daughters, and a son—all sending in their answers daily. The pater familias warned me at the very outset to be careful of my marks, as a large prize hung on the issue. At a prominent New York corporation, the office force conceived the notion of converting the examination into a sweepstake, the eventual highest grade to collect the pot. All of which is a significant commentary on the American competitive spirit!

1 diamond	1 heart	Double	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	4 clubs	Pass
4 diamonds	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

Not often is a player called upon to perform two sacrifice plays in one hand. That was East's fate in this hand, however, and he rose nobly to the occasion.

West, thinking that there was a good chance that East could ruff an opening diamond lead, led the diamond ten. Dummy played an honor. East duly ruffed but, to his annoyance, saw declarer overruff. The heart queen was led, taken with the king, and at this point East made the first of his brilliant "dummy-killing" plays. Realizing that declarer would get three discards on the diamond suit if dummy's entries were permitted to remain intact, East laid down the spade king. Dummy's ace won. Declarer returned to his own hand with the spade queen, to lead a second trump. East's ace took this, and now East kept up the good work by laying down the club king! This play was too much for declarer. On winning with dummy's ace, there was nothing he could do to avert disaster. It was futile to discard on a high diamond. East would merely ruff. Hoping against hope that clubs would break, declarer led a club to the queen. West's failure to follow suit blighted declarer's last hope, and there was nothing to it but to concede East the two club tricks that he had fought so hard to preserve.

The plays that East was forced to make to defeat the contract are known as "Deschapelles coups," and it is rare indeed when two of them are found in the same hand.

AUSTRIANS SING OF KAISER OTTO AND GO TO JAIL

VIENNA, Nov. 20. [Saturday.]—(AP)—Sixty monarchists who wanted "Kaiser Otto" to come back to Austria to reëstablish the Hapsburg reign were arrested early today by a police in exile.

The demonstrants, observing the 25th birthday of Archduke Otto, tried to parade at midnight through Vienna's shopping street, Kaerntnerstrasse, singing songs of loyalty to the house of Hapsburg.

Police, who knew groups of Nazis had assembled in side streets, surrounded the monarchists and took the leaders into custody "to prevent a nasty collision."

Making Unseemly Noise.

Police said they did not know how many of the demonstrants would be detained, but indicated the charge would be "making unseemly noise at night."

Several minor counter-demonstrations by Nazis were broken up by police.

Still Maintains Court.

Otto, pretender to the non-existent Austrian throne, was absent yesterday from his castle near Brussels, where he maintains an imperial court riot squad.

Baron Friedrich von Wiesner, leader of the Austrian monarchist party, said in an address at the rally, presided over by Archduchess Adelheid and Archduke Felix, Otto's sister and brother, that 1,219,000 adults belong to the Austrian legitimist movement. The present program envisions reëstablishment of a monarchy in Austria and maintenance of Austrian independence, he declared.

PERSONALTY TAX VALUES DOUBLED FOR RIVERSIDE

County Assessor John S. Clark yesterday mailed the completed 1937 personal property assessment list to taxpayers in the country towns of Riverside, Worth, Leyden, Niles, and Norwood Park. Printed lists for Chicago tax districts will be in the mail next week.

Through accesss for the first time to the 1936 federal income tax returns Mr. Clark discovered considerable undeclared intangible property in Riverside, known as one of the wealthier suburbs. Last year the personalty of 1,014 residents had an assessed valuation of $731,985. This year the valuation for 1,037 persons is $1,491,854.

The personal property tax roll has been similarly increased by Assessor Clark in other suburbs and on the Gold Coast and other wealthy residential sections of Chicago.

HEARING IS SET FOR 3 ACCUSED IN STOCK SWINDLE

Judge Edmund K. Jarecki of the County court yesterday set Dec. 1 for a preliminary hearing for three partners of the West Coast Minerals company, Ltd., 10 North Clark street, accused of violating the state securities act. The men, who are accused of an $85,000 mining stock swindle, pleaded not guilty. Two of the defendants, William L. Dickelman, 3827 Wilton avenue, and Scott R. Weinland, 1451 East 71st place, were held in the County jail, unable to make bond. Dr. Jesse W. Ritter, 16 North Wabash avenue, a dentist, was allowed to post a personal bond because he is ill. Three others still are sought.

She did not ask for alimony when the divorce was granted here, the case having been transferred from Los Angeles.

U. S. AGENTS SEIZE STILL IN RAID ON FARM; ARREST 4

Alcohol tax unit agents directed by E. C. Yellowley yesterday raided a seventy-one acre farm on the east side of state highway 53, near Arlington Heights, and seized a 500 gallon still in a cattle barn. They arrested Emil H. Beisner, owner of the farm, and three other men, Adam Widzes, 4402 South Artesian avenue; George Niess, 4236 South Artesian avenue, and Edward Farber, 5400 Madison street. The still was a new one and apparently had not yet been placed in operation. United States District Attorney Daniel D. Glasser said the government will seek to confiscate the farm.

ORDER MIND TEST FOR WOMAN.

Judge John V. McCormick ordered a psychiatric test yesterday for Mrs. Anna Sypula, 22 years old, 3258 South Paulina street, who was arrested on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses from five west side undertakers.

TALK LESS, SAY MORE: A JUDGE'S HINT TO LAWYERS

Seven Hundred Members of Bar Get Earful.

Lawyers should talk less, and than only in low voices, Paul Farthing, blind chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court, advised 700 members of the Illinois Bar association last night at the organization's annual dinner to the court justices in the Palmer house. What a judge wants to hear, said Justice Farthing, is a quiet presentation of argument and not a shouted speech that shakes the chandeliers.

Arthur Vanderbilt Speaks.

Justices Warren Orr, Elwyn Shaw, Francis Wilson, and Clyde Stone also attended the dinner. Justice Norman Jones was not able to be present. The chief speaker was Arthur T. Vanderbilt of Newark, N. J., president of the American Bar association. He said lawyers should lead in movements to improve the administration of justice.

"Bar associations," he said, "should not become involved in economic and social controversies, but lawyers as individuals should give the state the benefit of their experience in such matters."

During the day the members of the association held several sectional meetings devoted to criminal and probate law, insurance law, public utilities, and taxation.

Reviews Parole Report.

In the criminal law section, Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, secretary of the Chicago Crime commission, reviewed the report and recommendations of Gov. Horner's commission appointed to study the Illinois prison and parole system.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, speaking at the taxation session, urged uniform tax laws. He pointed out that the state's revenue system is antiquated and said it should be revised to meet present day conditions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 19.—On the frost bitten gridiron in Memorial stadium here tomorrow afternoon Minnesota's Golden Gophers expect to whip Wisconsin's Badgers, then definitly proclaim themselves the football champions of the Western conference.

It all seems quite possible and likewise probable to the Minnesota rooters, here in force tonight endeavoring to drown out the confident shouts of some 7,000 Wisconsin adherents who have dropped in from here, there and everywhere. The latter, judged by their deportment this evening, evidently expect to sit in at the most startling Big Ten football upset of the year.

These Badger boosters, added to the thousands of Minnesota rooters, will provide a crowd of more than 50,000 for the game which holds so much in store for the Gophers and means a chance for just one more cherished victory to this year's up and coming Wisconsin team.

Gophers Need a Victory.

Minnesota faces this situation:

It must trounce or, at least, tie the Badgers to wind up the season late tomorrow afternoon as the only undefeated Western conference team.

If Minnesota loses to Wisconsin and Ohio State defeats Michigan, the Golden Gophers will finish second to the Buckeyes in the title race.

If both Minnesota and Ohio State are beaten and if Indiana smacks Purdue down, the Hoosiers will be in a position to demand a slice of the championship cake.

Is it any wonder, then, that everybody in this ice covered northwest country, on which steady snow flurries have been falling all day, is quite excited as he digs out his red underwear and prepares to witness the spectacle.

Bierman Takes No Chances.

The playing field is only slightly frost bitten because Bernie Bierman, coach of the Gophers, got some inside information from the weather man that this was to be a cold and icy week-end. He realized the Gophers would do much better in the score-making department on a springy turf.

Wednesday night he ordered the playing field covered with canvas. It still is covered. There's a blanket of snow three-quarters of an inch thick on the sidelines and the end zones, but there will be no snow on the playing field when the canvas is removed shortly before game time tomorrow.

The Badgers, a confident, perfectly conditioned outfit, pulled into town shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon. Coach Harry Stuhldreher took the players from their special train to the Minnesota practice field. He kept them outside long enough to acquaint them with the Minnesota elements, then the big Badger party went to a St. Paul hotel, where it spent the night.

Gophers Take Last Drill.

Soon after the Badgers left the field Coach Bierman sent more than fifty Minnesota players out for their final drill. It, too, was a short one. Just where the Gophers are tonight is somewhat of a mystery.

This forty-seventh battle between the two old rivals will be fought for the most part in the air, nearly everybody believes. That will be all right with the doughty Badgers. They believe their passing combinations of Vincent Gavre, Bill Schmitz, and Bronko Malesevich to such clever targets as Fred Benz, Ed Wegner, and Vernon Peak will match anything Harold Van Every and Ray King of the Gophers will offer.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dearborn, Mich., Nov. 19.—Ohio State university's football squad, which hopes tomorrow to become the second Western conference team in history to whip Michigan in four consecutive games, arrived at Dearborn inn early this afternoon. The squad had made a daylight trip from Columbus, arriving at the Michigan Central station in Detroit at 1 o'clock.

The boys had no sooner been assigned to their rooms than Coach Francis Schmidt had his student managers on the telephones summoning all to conference on the second floor where motion pictures were shown and tactics discussed. Then the squad suited up and went through a brief drill on the field adjacent to the inn and across Oakwood boulevard from the airport.

70,000 Will Attend.

None of the squad visited Ann Arbor, but several of the officials motored over to attempt to obtain additional tickets. It now is apparent that 70,000 will see the 34th game in this rivalry which dates back to 1897. It will be the largest crowd since 1933 when Michigan won, 13 to 0.

Seven thousand are coming from Ohio State. Despite yesterday's snow storm, which carried threat of inclement weather on the week-end, hundreds will drive. The majority of this army of loyal adherents to the Scarlet and Gray will arrive on special trains which will depart immediately after the game tomorrow afternoon. Railroad officials report the greatest movement of special trains in four years.

The Buckeyes definitly cannot be accused of overconfidence. As they practiced this afternoon, they showed plainly that they fully appreciate tomorrow's task. Ohio State is favored to win and the public choice always has a difficult position to defend. Under similar circumstances Ohio State went down to defeat before Indiana's inspired players. And tomorrow Michigan's men, maligned by campus argument and facing an indicated investigation by authorities in control of athletics. may fight back against Ohio State with determination unforeseen.

McDonald at Full Back.

Ohio State enters tomorrow's game without the services of Johnny Rabb, veteran full back. With Rabb relegated to the side lines, Co-Captain Jim McDonald, who played the position until this year, has been named full back. McDonald was changed to quarter back this fall before the Texas Christian game, and while the change meant he could not carry the ball nor throw passes, both of which he does quite well, he accepted the assignment gladly. He still will be the team's field general.

McDonald probably is the nearest approach to an individual star on a team which has made a splendid record as a team without stars. More successful so far than last year's eleven, success has been founded on coördi-

BROWNS GIVE JIM BOTTOMLEY HIS RELEASE

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 19.—(AP)—One of the most popular players ever to wear a St. Louis baseball uniform—Jim Bottomley—was out of baseball today.

Bottomley, who succeeded Rogers Hornsby as manager of the St. Louis Browns during the middle of last season, was given his unconditional release. His discharge left the Browns the only major league club without a manager for 1938.

Serving as coach and substitute first baseman when the managerial job was turned over to him, Jim naturally was included among those considered to lead the club again in 1938. But Gabby Street, appointed coach under Bottomley, now apparently holds the inside track.

Donald Barnes, president of the Browns, tonight indicated Street's appointment would be forthcoming when he said:

"I have not said Street will be the next manager, but unless something unlooked for turns up in the near future he will be the leader."

Bottomley said he has no immediate plans for continuing in baseball.

"I have received no direct offers," the 37 year old veteran added. Only a few nibbles, and I can't tell what I'll do until something develops. But that's all in the game." He asserted he does not intend to attend the baseball meetings this winter.

EYSTON DRIVES TO WORLD MARK OF 311.42 M. P. H.

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, Nov. 19.—(AP)—In two bursts of speed, Capt. George E. T. Eyston of England broke the world land speed record for the measured mile today, driving his racing monster Thunderbolt over the distance at an average speed of 311.42 miles an hour.

The 40 year old Englishman cracked the record of 301.1292 miles an hour set on the Salt Lake flats in September, 1935, by his compatriot, Sir Malcolm Campbell.

Thunderbolt, with its two twelve cylinder motors roaring a mechanical symphony, also broke the world record for the kilometer by doing the distance at an average of 312.20 m. p. h. Sir Malcolm's record set at Daytona Beach, Fla., in 1935, was 276.16 miles per hour.

Drives Cautiously—305 M. P. H.

Eyston, heir apparent to the speed throne in spite of two previous unsuccessful record attempts, made the first run over the 13 mile straightaway cautiously, conserving his speed for the return trip.

On the north run Thunderbolt did the mile in 11.79 seconds, or at 305.34 miles an hour. On the return trip the giant silver racer shot through the distance in 11.33 seconds at a 317.74 mile an hour rate.

Through the north kilometer run, Eyston sped at 305.53 m. p. h., running the distance in 7.32 seconds. On the return trip the racer flashed across the kilometer in 7.01 seconds, or at 319.11 m. p. h.

Eyston, his face completely black from exhaust fumes, was jubilant but modest. He gave complete credit for success "to my boys," the mechanics.

Drives With One Hand.

Accustomed to high speed races, Eyston said he felt no particular emotion except one of "buoyancy" in breaking the records.

"On the return trip," he said, "I knew I was traveling faster than I'd ever gone before. Just before I entered the measured mile, my goggles began fluttering from the wind.. I had to drive with one hand while I set them straight.

"It was a hell of a run, and I don't mean that profanely."

Eyston, who drove 309.6 and 310.685 miles an hour in his previous attempts which failed because the car broke down on the return trip, praised three American automobile association officials who installed a new left clutch—the part which had ruined the previous runs.

Lauds American Mechanics.

"If it hadn't been for three fine Americans—Eddie Miller, Dave Frank and Riley Britt—I'd never been able to do it," he said. "They fashioned the clutch in Los Angeles and came here to install it."

Eyston's men crated Thunderbolt and the Englishman's distance race and record holder, Speed of the Wind tonight for shipment to England.

SEEKS EYSTON FOR FAIRS.

John A. Sloan, auto race promoter, said last night that he had offered Capt. George E. T. Eyston a guarantee of $10,000, with a percentage privilege, for ten personal appearances with his automobile Thunderbolt.

Sloan, son of the late J. Alec Sloan, who managed many famous auto racers, including Barney Oldfield and Tommy Milton, said he hoped to present the English sportsman at leading state fairs starting in Florida in February.

Have It Out on Evanston Gridiron

Senn, Austin Play for City League Crown

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Yes, there is a football game today at Evanston, involving a couple of teams called Northwestern and Notre Dame. And there's another tomorrow at Wrigley field, where a troupe known as the Detroit Lions will play 60 minutes against Chicago's Cardinals.

These may appear to be mighty important struggles to adult fans, but the big games of the year to thousands of prep school students will be two arguments to be transacted on corresponding dates at Soldiers' field. One, beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon, will bring together Austin of the west section of the City High School league, and Senn, boss of the north division. They will be battling for their own league championship and the right to meet the winner of tomorrow's game between St. George and Leo of the Catholic league, scheduled for the same lake front premises at the same hour.

Winners Play for Title.

Out of these two week-end debates, which, on the basis of past performance, should prove to be as exciting as any college or professional contest, will come the principals in the country's leading high school game—the annual interleague fight for Chicago's Own Christmas fund—to be waged at Soldiers' field next Saturday afternoon. If there be any doubt about the thrills to be found in these post-season contests between the two leagues, customers need hark back only as far as last year, when Austin and Fenwick wrestled to a 19 to 19 draw.

The immediate business of today, however, is the settlement of the City league title. Austin, led by Bill

ARMSTRONG WINS FROM BEAUHULD IN FIFTH ROUND

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Henry Armstrong, St. Louis Negro, who holds the featherweight championship of the world, knocked out the hitherto undefeated Billy Beauhuld of Jersey City at Madison Square Garden tonight before 15,000. It was an overweight battle.

The end came at the conclusion of the fifth round, when Referee Arthur Donovan decided the hopelessly beaten Beauhuld had absorbed enough punishment.

Armstrong, who intends to go after the world's lightweight championship, fought a characteristic battle. He had his foe on the floor twice. He dropped Beauhuld in the first round with a right to the jaw. Beauhuld hit the floor for the second time from a right to the side of the head just before the bell ending the fifth.

Just Chicago, but Illinois Has Its Fears

BY STEWART OWEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 19.—Illinois' prospects of having a real football battle tomorrow when it faces Chicago's Maroons in their 42d annual meeting seem to depend very largely upon Sollie Sherman of the Midway and upon Mr. Ben Crackel, who resides in the northwest tower of Illinois' Memorial stadium.

If Sollie Sherman, star of Chicago's back field, can shake off his cold long enough to shake off a few Illini tackles, it is highly probable that the Maroons will make the day's activities just about as interesting for the Illinois eleven as any other team has done this season.

If Ben Crackel, the grounds keeper of the stadium, can pry his $10,000 blanket off the gridiron by 2 p. m. tomorrow, the two elevens will go to work on a cozy, dry field under fairly good weather conditions, despite the wintry aspect of the countryside. The snow, which started coming down yesterday morning, continued through today and by nightfall the ground was covered with a layer nearly four inches deep, with a thin stratum of ice underneath.

It's Embarrassing.

All this has put Mr. Crackel in the position of a gentleman who has locked some valuable possession away in a safe and then forgotten the combination. Underneath his vast ex-

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There'll be no national, sectional, or any other sort of title involved when Northwestern's Wildcats and Notre Dame's Irish turn loose their football fury today at Dyche stadium. But there is the little matter of reputations to sustain and this alone has been sufficient to arouse visions of a struggle which will eclipse Northwestern's surprising defeat of the Irish in 1935 and the latter's peppering of the Wildcats a year ago.

Powered by a line which has proved itself under pressure, the Irish are expected to run themselves into a triumph before 46,000. At least that's the dopesters' slant, but the Purple line, even though altered by injuries to regulars, can look back at some notable achievements. And the Wildcats will be able to let go with all their tricks. They have no more games to play.

Irish to Start Regulars.

Elmer Layden, the Irish coach, has refused to accept the dopesters' prophesies as fact. He'll not toy around with shock troops, but will start off with his full assemblage of first stringers. At least, that was his promise to his regulars yesterday as he sent them through an indoor dummy scrimmage at South Bend. At the same time, he told his boys that the Purple, disappointed at failure to repeat the 1936 Big Ten title performance, will be seeking consolation at Notre Dame's expense.

Coach Lynn Waldorf's last words to his gang were that he was doubtful about the offense. This may be only bait for Irish consumption. The Purple offense has been spotty, not scoring against Ohio State, Illinois, or Minnesota, but that's not a consoling feature for the Irish. They'll go into the game rightfully fearing that an eleven which has been defeated three times by one touchdown scores might suddenly have one of those days.

Wildcats Air Minded.

The Cats undoubtedly will take to the air. That's another item in Coach Layden's worry book. Despite their failure to get across the goal line in the three battles mentioned above, the Purple are skilled in that particular variety of assault. It's probably the most versatile passing team the Irish have encountered this season.

Along with the pass menace the Irish will have to concentrate a few of their eyes and muscles on Capt. Don Heap, who when not tossing the ball, might start traveling on his leg power. Notre Dame has seen this fellow before. He was the ringleader of the 14 to 7 affair in 1935, Notre Dame's only defeat that season. What Heap does today will comprise the final chapter of his collegiate gridiron career. Nine other Wildcats, six of them rated regulars, also will be making their last stand.

Wegner, Calvano Out.

Erwin Wegner, the Purple's regular center, and Mike Calvano, right guard, both injured in the Illinois game, probably won't figure in more than a small piece of the day's toil and this mainly because they are among those ending their careers. Bob Swisher, next to Heap in flashiness, probably will have to be a side liner throughout the game because of the leg injury suffered in last week's struggle against Minnesota.

With Wegner and Calvano out of the line, the former's duties will fall to John Haman and Calvano's place will be occupied by John Goldak. These two sophomores took nothing from the bone crushing Gophers a week ago and a repetition of that performance by them today may erase some of the supposedly superior strength of the Irish line.

57,750 Will Attend; Eli Is Favorite.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The two greatest teams in recent Harvard-Yale football history will clash for the fifty-sixth time tomorrow before a capacity crowd of 57,750 at the stadium.

Every factor, weather included, points to a Yale victory, its fourth in a row in this climatic game. The powerful Elis approach it unbeaten for the first time since 1924. Fortune, however, has a habit of frowning on the favorites in this Big Three classic and, with both teams almost at full strength, one break may decide the game.

Yale will miss Half Back Al Wilson, out with a cold, and Harvard's line will not be at its peak without Capt. Russ Allen, injured right guard, who will play for only a short time.

Man for man, the Elis appear more impressive in almost every position than Harvard, who have no one to compare with Capt. Clint Frank, one of the game's outstanding stars, and Dave Colwell, kicking full back. But the Crimson attack appears to have deception and may ride to victory on the shouders of Vernon Struck, full back; Torbie MacDonald and Frank Foley, half backs, or Bob Green, veteran end.

Harvard, judging from its past performances, requires a dry field to be effective and the forecast indicates snow or rain. Yale has been consistent in both wet and dry going.

HARVARD.		YALE.
Green	L. E.	J. Miller
Kevorkian	L. T.	John
Nee	L. G.	Castle
Wilson	C.	Gallagher
Allen or Klein	R. G.	C. Miller
Booth	R. T.	Platt
Daughters	R. E.	Hoxton
Boston	Q. B.	Ewart
Foley	L. H.	Frank
MacDonald	R. H.	Hessberg
Struck	F. B.	Colwell

COLGATE AT SYRACUSE.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Colgate and Syracuse will battle for the thirty-ninth time tomorrow in Archbold stadium.

The outcome was regarded as a tossup despite the blow to Syracuse hopes today when George Hooper, star guard, was declared out of the game because of a leg infection. A capacity crowd of 35,000 is expected.

Colgate, seeking its first major victory of the year, has experience, condition and tradition on its side. Nine starters are veterans who have had two weeks to prepare for tomorrow's game. In addition, Colgate has not lost to Syracuse since 1924.

A surprise eleven this fall, Syracuse will depend on a speedy attack headed by Wilmeth Sidat-Singh, running and passing star; Harold [Babe] Ruth, and Marty Glickman.

ST. MARY'S AT FORDHAM.

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The galloping Gaels of St. Mary's will serve as the penultimate barrier to Fordham's hopes for an unbeaten season and a Rose bowl invitation tomorrow afternoon when the twice beaten Californians meet the undefeated Rams before 40,000 at the Polo Grounds. Fordham is favored over the visitors.

NAVY MEETS PRINCETON.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—For the first time since Fritz Crisler came to Princeton as football coach in 1932, the annual game with Navy, set for tomorrow, has no particularly vital significance for the Tigers.

Beaten by Cornell, Harvard, Dartmouth, and Yale, which piled up 113 points to only 22, Princeton is confronted with a lot of gridiron wreckage reminiscent of the Al Wittmer coaching régime in 1931, which blew up in a 51 to 14 trouncing by Yale.

Navy comes to Princeton with much at stake. To save the season it must win from Army at Philadelphia next Saturday. Off its stubborn, if not always mentally brilliant showing against Notre Dame, West Point is a tough outfit with high potentialities.

DARTMOUTH VS. COLUMBIA.

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Dartmouth's unbeaten football team comes to Baker field tomorrow bent on ending its most successful season since 1925 with a victory.

Standing as the last obstacle in the path of the surprising Dartmouth eleven is a skimpy band of Columbia Lions, battered and painfully deficient in line reserves. With victories over Harvard and Princeton and ties with Yale and Cornell behind it, Dartmouth rules a 2 to 1 favorite to win.

COLUMBIA MUST STOP ST. VIATOR PASSING ATTACK

The St. Viator college football team, unbeaten in two years of Little Nineteen competition, will close its season tonight against Columbia college of Dubuque, Ia., in the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, at 8 o'clock.

Columbia worked in the armory yesterday on a pass defense intended to stop the aerial maneuvers on which St. Viator specializes. St. Viator mixed running plays with passing during its workout on the south side gridiron.

Tonight's game will mark a renewal of an athletic relationship that was severed in 1926. Five games have been played. St. Viator has won two, Columbia one, and two were ties. A crowd of 5,000 is expected. Columbia will turn over its share of the proceeds to the national shrine of St. Jude, while the St. Viator share will go into its athletic fund. The lineups:

COLUMBIA.		ST. VIATOR.
Regan	L. E.	Blazevich
Nagy	L. T.	Zelencik
White	L. G.	Cusack
Gilles	C.	Morene
Walsh	R. G.	Schumacher

Lions, Cards Offer Colleges 2 Pass Plays

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Two forward pass plays, possible only under the professional code which permits passing from any point behind the line of scrimmage, quite possibly will be on display at Wrigley field tomorrow for college coaches doing research in contemplation of rule changes designed to give the offense more latitude.

These plays, one a pet maneuver of the Cardinals and the other a consistent ground gainer for Detroit, hold the key to the solution of the collegians' problem, a problem that has evolved from the rapid development of defensive play.

Lions Rely on Ground Attack.

Detroit, fighting with the Cardinals for the preservation of a mathematical possibility of sharing in the western division title, does not pass often. It relies largely on its superb running offense. It does, however, have an effective aerial attack which it holds as a threat and uses to loosen up the defense when the secondary moves in to stop running plays.

One of its most effective passes is into the flat from an off tackle play. Dutch Clark, the Lions' incomparable quarter back and coach, takes his position as tail back with Ernie Caddel, fleet right half back, in the wing back position. The play is run from an unbalanced line to the right. Clark receives the ball from center and starts fast toward an off tackle opening. Caddel races out from his wing back almost parallel to the line of scrimmage and takes a short pass, seldom more than eight yards, from Clark, who fires after taking no more than two steps. This play can be adapted to college rules, which restrain a passer from advancing within five yards of the line of scrimmage. Some teams do use it, but its effectiveness is destroyed by the restriction which prevents the passer from approaching the line to execute his fake.

This Is Grosvenor's Favorite.

The Cardinals' pet also originates from an off tackle play and is used almost exclusively by George Grosvenor, who is one of the league's leading running backs. The Cardinals, like the Lions, start from a single wing back with an unbalanced line to the right. Grosvenor starts wide, fakes with the ball and cuts off tackle behind a phalanx of interferers. Gaynell Tinsley, the Cardinals' pass receiving sensation, cuts through the secondary from his left end position to take out a backer up in front of the play.

Grosvenor goes off tackle several times, usually for considerable yardage, drawing in the secondary, to set up the pass play.

It begins identically as the off tackle slant. Grosvenor cuts for the hole and rushes up to the line, then passes to Tinsley who fakes at the backer up and continues on past him. The play does not develop as fast as the Lions' flat zone pass, but has been equally as successful.

These two plays will be more advantageous to college teams, should the colleges adopt the professional passing rule, than the Bears' over center pitch, which Bronko Nagurski and Bill Hewitt made famous.

GAMBLERS HURT BOXING; JACOBS DECLARES WAR

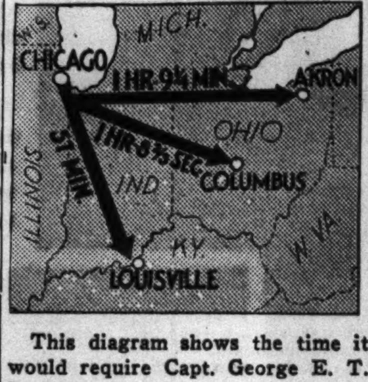
New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—A war to the finish with professional gamblers operating on prize fights was declared today by Mike Jacobs, New York's boxing promoter.

"Somebody has to protect the public," the president of the Twentieth Century Sporting club asserted. "I'm with Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, the Garden president, 100 per cent in his fight against the gambling interests."

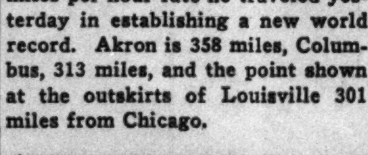
Jacobs charged that the gamblers were quoting false prices to catch the suckers and the long odds, never justified in his opinion, are hurting the gate receipts.

"I will do everything necessary to check what is a crooked racket," Uncle Michael promised. "I'll bar them from the Garden if I have to, and I'll go to court if I have to, to keep them out."

This Is Traveling!



This diagram shows the time it would require Capt. George E. T. Eyston to cover the distances to the cities indicated by automobile road if he could maintain the 311.42 miles per hour rate he traveled yesterday in establishing a new world record. Akron is 358 miles, Columbus, 313 miles, and the point shown at the outskirts of Louisville 301 miles from Chicago.



If Chicago streets could be cleared of trafic and all red lights shut off, Capt. Eyston could leave Michigan boulevard at any given time and arrive at Central avenue, 5600 west, exactly two minutes later.

Ohio Seeks Its 4th in a Row Over Michigan

Not only McDonald moved for the benefit of the eleven, but all season Charley Ream, a splendid tackle, has manned an end position and contributed to team strength. The Buckeyes have better than average kicking, particularly when Mike Kabealo is in the lineup. They have a sturdy defense which has yielded only three touchdowns this year—two to Southern California and one to Indiana—and they have steadily become more proficient in the razzle-dazzle type of attack that Coach Schmidt teaches so effectively and which was not used earlier in the season.

Michigan Has Chance—If It's Dry.

On a dry firm gridiron Michigan may have a chance to beat Ohio State and add to the all time record of supremacy which now stands at twenty-two victories to nine with two tied games. But Michigan must make the most of its kicking in which Norm Purucker excels. And Michigan, quite likely, must hope that its forward passes, thrown either by Stark Ritchie, who came from a substitute's rôle to lead the Wolverines to victory over Chicago and Pennsylvania, or by Fred Trosko, the diminutive and chunky sophomore half back, lead to touchdowns.

Michigan now has won four consecutive games. Actually the Wolverines have taken every contest in which they figured to have a chance. They are at their season's peak for the Buckeyes. Whether Michigan can surmount this final hurdle to the most successful season since 1933—it also won four straight in 1935—only tomorrow's combat will tell.

Stadium Bids for Louis for February Card

Coincident with announcement yesterday that Joe Louis will start training Monday at Trafton's gymnasium, it was reported that negotiations have been started for a bout involving the heavyweight champion in Chicago Stadium next February. Louis expects to engage in a second contest in March before he defends the title against Max Schmeling in June.

Arthur Wirtz, vice president and treasurer of the Stadium, said he spoke to Louis' backers about such a match, but he is not very hopeful. Louis was to appear at the Stadium last spring, but the contest didn't materialize.

Mickey Farr announced yesterday he had called off plans to present a Stadium card on Dec. 10 "because of outside interference." Wirtz, however, said he believes Farr's attitude is due to a misunderstanding which will be straightened out.

Varias Milling belied a rumor that he was ill by working out yesterday for a ten round featherweight contest with Leo Rodak at Marigold Gardens Monday. William Joyce, Golden Gloves graduate, will make his second professional start against Ray Harris, South Bend southpaw, also a Golden Gloves alumnus. Another four round supporting scrap will involve Steve Karas, still another former Golden Glover, and Jimmy La Marr, Cleveland middleweight. . . . Verne Patterson, who called off a bout at Marigold last Monday because his "brother was injured in an automobile accident," defeated Wildcat O'Connor that night at Toronto, Ont. George Salvador, Houston, Tex., welterweight, who lost a disputed decision to Frankie Genovese in the main event at Toronto, has opened training in the loop for a second bout there next month.

Zack Malkov, Rogers Park heavyweight wrestler, yesterday was substituted for Orville Brown against Bobby Bruns at White City Monday. . . . Mrs. Rachel Rosenberg, 52 years old, mother of Phil Rosenberg, west side welterweight, yesterday was buried in Waldheim cemetery.

They Are Jolly Good Fellows! Ask This Coach

Kankakee, Ill., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Snow and ice hid yard markers and the bleachers looked like snow hills on each side of the gridiron, so promoters of the Kankakee High school alumni football game, proceeds of which would have sent Coach Charley Harrison to the Army-Navy game to watch two of his former pupils, Allen Bergner of the Navy, and Harry Stella of the Army, oppose each other, had to cancel the game tonight.

Everybody was happy, however, because the alumni immediately hurled a basketball challenge at the preps—and the preps accepted. So tonight Coach Harrison was assured of the trip east. The gymnasium was packed for the basketball game, and everybody was warm while the wind whistled across the gridiron.

Maccabee-Schlitz Soccer Game Tomorrow Canceled

The soccer game between the Maccabee A. C. and Schlitz of Milwaukee scheduled for tomorrow at Sparta stadium was canceled yesterday. Several Schlitz stars were injured in a recent game and have not responded to treatment and a number of other players will have to work on Sunday.

Hawks Will Face Unbeaten Boston Bruins

The Boston Bruins will make their first Chicago appearance of the National Hocky league season tomorrow night at the Stadium, where they clash with the Blackhawks.

The Bruins, who with four straight victories, top the United States division and the league as well, may not be in the best of condition for the Hawk battle, for tonight they meet the also unbeaten and high scoring Maple Leafs at Toronto.

Thursday was a night of casualties for prominent players in the league. At Toronto Charlie Conacher, the game's greatest scorer, sustained a fractured shoulder, which will keep him out for a month at least. In the Stadium contest Ebbie Goodfellow, Detroit Red Wings' all-star defense man, who collided with big Earl Seibert near the close of the game, suffered a broken left wrist and Seibert himself discovered in the dressing room after the game that his tongue was lacerated. This unusual accident, the first in the league, necessitated two stitches. Goodfellow will not be able to play for six weeks.

AUSTIN AND SENN CLASH FOR PREP LEAGUE HONORS

De Correvont, the most publicized Chicago high school player of the decade, will be out to defend the title it won last year, the first it had captured in twenty-five years. Senn's goal will be even higher, for the north siders never have won a title in the twenty-five year record of champions.

The most interesting item about today's opponents is a comparison of their records. It has been set down long since that Master De Correvont has scored 168 of Austin's 290 points during the regulation season. Within that span of six victories in their own section the west siders never were held to less than 26 points. In the meantime they were permitting their foes to score one touchdown, and that by Marshall, against which they themselves totaled 61 points. In the semi-final game which admitted them to today's championship match they eliminated Fenger of the south section, 21 to 7.

Senn Lacks Scoring Punch.

Senn, on the other hand, can exhibit no such prepossessing offensive record as their current competitors, having scored just 101 points in seven north section decisions. In the semi-final it defeated the giant Tilden eleven of the south section, 13 to 6. Nevertheless, the young men from the north may be more than annoying to De Correvont and his associates, for they have yielded just two touchdowns in eight games, one to Schurz and one to Tilden.

Tomorrow's game between Leo and St. George will settle the Catholic league winner for the year. St. George of the north section will come into the battle probably a trifle weary. Last Sunday the Evanstonians played a 7 to 7 tie against Fenwick for the right to meet Leo for the title. On Wednesday night they fought to a scoreless deadlock with Fenwick and gained tomorrow's chance on the flip of a coin.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 19.—The largest crowd that ever saw a football game in Bloomington, this beautiful city in the heart of the Hoosier scenic belt, tomorrow will pack Indiana university's stadium to see just what disposal is to be made of that famed Indiana-Purdue football trophy, the Old Oaken bucket.

The game will be the 40th in the Hoosier-Boilermaker series, which began in 1891 and which has suffered only three interruptions through the years, including the war period.

Every year, except for one lapse in 1896 and 1897, another in 1906 and 1908, and the last one in 1917 and 1918, the contest between this state's two Big Ten teams has been a grand spectacle, a battle at once bitter and friendly, if you get the idea. We mean the boys fight with all they've got, but rarely kick out each others' teeth intentionally.

Times Have Changed.

There was a time when Purdue was reluctant to let an I. U. player take a drink out of the old oaken bucket, much less display it in the trophy room for a year or more. But things have been different in recent years and maybe that's the reason Bloomington tomorrow will have its first capacity crowd. The turnout is expected to total 25,000, not so big as compared with those that occasionally gather in some of the largest arenas, but all Indiana's usually ample stadium will hold. The show was a sellout yesterday, and that is something that never happened here before.

Those Hoosiers Are Good.

Getting back to the reasons for the added interest in tomorrow's contest, the first stimulant, perhaps, is the high caliber of the present Indiana team, which has lost but one Big Ten game, a 6 to 0 affair with Minnesota which Indiana partisans feel was one of those moral victories. The big bang for the Hoosier followers, however, was the 10 to 0 victory over Ohio State, those ten points representing the only ones scored against the Buckeyes in four Big Ten games thus far.

Then there is a feverish desire to retain the bucket on the basis of a pleasant habit which started with Indiana's 17 to 6 victory over the Boilermakers in 1934, a 7 to 0 victory in 1935, and the rather sensational 20 to 20 tie last fall, a tie achieved after Purdue had led, 13 to 0, well into the second half, the half in which all forty points of the game were scored.

It's Up to Indiana.

Indiana, too, has the assignment of evening the series tabulation, the complete football record showing Purdue the victor twenty-two times and the Hoosiers only thirteen times. In the ten seasons prior to the Indiana rise in 1934, Purdue won eight games. There was a zero tie in 1925, and Indiana won, 7 to 6, in 1930.

Coach Bo McMillin after today's workout, announced that his Indiana lads were ready and eager for the fray. There was some question about the ability of George [Sparky] Miller to start at center.

Cecil Isbell Is Ready.

Cecil Isbell, who a year ago completed three passes in the end zone, to enable Purdue to tie three passes which Vern Huffman completed in the end zone for Indiana, is reported in the best physical shape he's enjoyed all year and has announced he plans to shoot the works in his collegiate gridiron farewell.

All Indiana partisans will have eyes on Jick Kenderdine, flashy end, and Corby Davis, the Hoosiers' rip snorting full back who has played all but 15 minutes in five major games, as well as many of the other boys who have thrilled their followers against Nebraska, Minnesota, and Ohio State. Those three great teams scored a grand total of two touchdowns.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Iowa's Hawkeyes will close their season here Saturday against the unpredictable Nebraska Cornhuskers before a crowd that may reach 30,000 despite freezing weather.

The game marks the resumption of a cornland series which ended in 1934 after the Iowans had dropped three straight games, all by the margin of a point after touchdown.

Huskers' Record Is Better.

The Cornhuskers are sailing along with a better record than last season at this time, but they are far behind the 1936 level in the matter of offensive accomplishment. A composite record of the season's statistics shows the Nebraskans 500 yards under their net yardage gain at this time last fall. The Huskers had played the same teams in 1936 as they have this season.

How has this been accomplished? By stabbing quickly for a touchdown on what became known in Knute Rockne's day as "perfect plays," then digging in and protecting their lead.

The Huskers have averaged only seventy-two yards per game by rushing, which indicates their dependence on the forward pass. Freezing weather has never been known to aid either passer or recever, however.

Ten Iowans End Careers.

BASEBALL TALK? BROOKLYN HAS ENOUGH FOR ALL

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—All the baseball news in these parts today was whirling about the heads of the Brooklyn Dodgers. While the courts were exonerating the estate of Charles Ebbets of a charge of wasting Brooklyn club money, the telephones of Van Lingle Mungo and Manager Burleigh Grimes were jingling as long distance phone calls went back and forth.

It narrowed down to everybody denying everything—the referee denying there is any truth in the charges of Ebbets' three children that executors of their father's will have been negligent; Mungo denying he ever said he wouldn't play under Grimes another year, and Grimes denying that he wants to get rid of the big pitcher.

About all that came from all the conversations over long distance was that Grimes will trade Mungo and Buddy Hassett if he receives the right offer, and that Woody English has asked for his release.

De Paul Faces Western State in Final Game

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Indications of a soggy gridiron for the final game of the year tomorrow with the De Paul university eleven of Chicago may force the Western State Teachers to depend on their star punters, Dale Morris and Ed Husbeck, in their attempt to keep the Blue Demons in their own territory.

De Paul Has Weight.

De Paul will carry a 17 pound per man line advantage into the game. The Demons' line averages 202 pounds and Western State's 185. The back fields are equal in weight.

The Hilltoppers hope for breaks to aid them in winning their sixth victory in eight starts this season. De Paul will depend upon its strong line to open holes for its driving backs, as it seeks to close one of its most brilliant seasons.

Twelve Demons Near End.

A dozen De Paul players face their final competition, with nine slated to start. Western State has seven seniors, with not more than two starting. The lineups:

Hoppe Wins Again; All but Clinches 18.1 Title

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Champion Willie Hoppe all but wrapped up his 18.1 balkline billiard crown tonight when he defeated Challenger Jake Schaefer of Chicago in the ninth and tenth blocks of their twelve block match. At the end of the night's session, Hoppe was leading 2,500 to 1,614 with the concluding two blocks to be played tomorrow. Hoppe won the afternoon session, 250 to 206, and in the night block defeated the challenger, 250 to 84.

Detroit Will Meet Creighton; Dorais Scouts Duquesne

University of Detroit's football team passed through Chicago last night en route to Omaha, where tomorrow it meets Creighton. Coach Charles E. Dorais, who last summer was elected by the fans of the nation to lead the College All-Americans against the Green Bay Packers, remained in Chicago. He will scout the Duquesne-Marquette game today at Milwaukee. Detroit closes its season Thanksgiving day against Duquesne at Pittsburgh.

Gus Dorais.

Andy Farkas, Detroit half back who is regarded as one of the leading back field players of the season, has recovered fully from a leg infection that developed after the game with Boston college and he will be in the starting lineup against Creighton.

CLARK GRIFFITH, SENATOR OWNER, IS 68 YEARS OLD

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Clark Griffith, baseball's "Old Fox," turns 68 tomorrow. The president of the Washington Senators celebrates his anniversary then, but today his friends tossed a luncheon party for him.

panse of tarpaulin he has a firm dry field; his problem is how to get to it. All day today a corps of men labored, sweeping the snow away as fast as it fell, and Mr. Crackel has hopes of being able to remove the cover by rolling it up at game time, if it isn't frozen too hard. Present indications are that he may require an ice pick to loosen it.

While Mr. Crackel was pondering his peculiar problem, Bob Zuppke, Illinois coach, was weighing the problem of how to solve Sollie Sherman. This afternoon Zuppke had the Illinois squad galloping over the tundra which in more pleasant seasons is the golf course of the Champaign Country club, going through dummy scrimmage against freshmen who were using Maroon plays with one especial star giving the customary impersonation of Sherman.

That Zuppke's talk of his respect for the Maroon back field's ability is not pure propaganda is evidenced by the fact that he has decided to start both of his best ends in tomorrow's game. Bill Bennis, who in earlier games has alternated with Bob Castelo at the right wing, has been shifted to the left side of the line in the hope that he and Castelo can smash into the Maroon attack before it gets started.

Another change in Illinois' opening lineup will be the starting of Bill Lenich, a sophomore, at center. Lenich played well as an understudy to Jim McDonald early in the season, but has not seen much action in recent weeks.

Tony Mazeika, who was the star of the Northwestern game, will be at right half back with Jay Wardley, the best of the Illini passers, at left half, Ralph Bennett, another sophomore, at full back, and Jack Berner at quarter. With both Bennis and Castelo in the game at the same time and Wardley throwing, Illinois probably will rely on passes for its ground gaining, Bennis and Castelo being the best pass receivers on the squad.

The Maroon lineup will be very much the same as the one which fought Michigan off its feet for fifty-four minutes. Illinois scouts have reported that the Maroon back field combination of Sherman, Lew Hamity, Morton Goodstein and Ed Valorz is a smooth working outfit that is liable to go places at any time. They fear that they may decide to go somewhere just once tomorrow, and one touchdown has been just about enough to decide most Illinois-Chicago games in recent years.

SHERMAN PRACTICES

Coach Clark Shaughnessy and the Maroons held their final practice of the season on the Midway yesterday afternoon. It was a very light one. The Maroons will leave this morning for Champaign. Sollie Sherman, although not completely recovered from a cold, worked out and is certain to get ample opportunity to perform this afternoon. Whether he will start is uncertain.

PABSTS BOWL IN GARY.

KNOX, MONMOUTH PLAY FIRST 0 TO 0 TIE IN 53 GAMES

Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Knox and Monmouth played to a scoreless tie today in their fifty-third football game. It was the first time that neither team has scored in the series. As a result Knox will retain possession of the bronze turkey won through last year's 6 to 0 victory.

Late in the fourth quarter Christianson, Knox quarter back, attempted to dropkick after the Monmouth line held for three downs on the 5 yard line, but the ball went wide of the posts.

De Paul Freshmen Beat Wilson College Eleven, 6-0

A fifty-eight yard drive, climaxed by a two yard plunge for a touchdown by Carl Peterson in the third quarter enabled the De Paul university freshman football team to score a 6 to 0 victory over Wilson Junior college yesterday at De Paul field.

90,000 TO WATCH CALIFORNIA AND STANFORD CLASH

Bears Seek to Assure Bid to Rose Bowl.

Palo Alto, Cal., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Woven into a football classic through the rivalries of 45 years, California's undefeated Bears and Stanford's Indians fight their annual battle tomorrow in a smashing climax to the Coast conference title race and the scramble for the Rose Bowl bid.

Nearly 90,000—one of the nation's largest football crowds this year—will watch the renewal of a tradition born in 1892.

Invitation Theirs If . . .

California seeks to close its best regular playing season in years with its sixth victory, the championship and the right to march into Pasadena as the western Rose Bowl representative New Year's day. The Bears have one tie game in their record but the title and the Jan. 1 invitation will be theirs through a victory or tie tomorrow.

If Stanford wins, the final conference standings would be five victories, one defeat, and one tie for each. Thus Stanford's Rose Bowl hope, it seems, is to beat California decisively.

Bears 3 to 1 Favorites.

Stanford's chief threat centers in a breakaway game, with passes an important weapon.

A riot developing out of a pep rally near the California campus today led to the arrest of thirty-two persons, injury to five policemen, a fireman, and a woman, and damage amounting to $10,000. Trafic was halted, theaters invaded, bonfires started, and rotten eggs tossed as more than 3,000 students and a goodly number of alumni participated.

POE, HARRISON TIE AT FINISH OF PINEHURST GOLF

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Chicago golfers went into eclipse today as three little known pros came home in front at the finish of the 36 hole Middle-South tournament at Pinehurst Country club.

Henry Clay Poe of Durham, 22 year old former Duke university student who turned pro lately, finished in a tie for first with E. J. [Dutch] Harrison. They had cards reading: Poe, 72—70—142 and Harrison, 71—71—142. Ben Loving, Rumson, N. J., was third with 143.

After this, players with Chicago affiliations cut into the prize money. Harry Cooper and Tony Penna, Chicago professionals, joined with Lawson Little, Jimmy Thomson and Tony Manero in sharing the cash from fourth through eighth place. They had 144s. Tommy Armour of Medinah and Horton Smith, Oak Park pro, were tied with Frank Moore of New York with 145s to divide ninth and tenth.

Poe and Harrison will play off at 18 holes tomorrow.

SUPPORT REPEAL OF LONG-SHORT HAUL RAIL LAW

Trafic League in Favor of Pettengill Bill.

The National Industrial Trafic league, a shippers' organization, yesterday went on record at its annual convention at the Palmer house as favoring continued support of the Pettengill bill, which would repeal the long and short haul provisions of the present interstate commerce law.

In continuing support of the measure, the group voted down a proposal by Rene Stiegler of the New Orleans port commission, that the organization should reverse its stand, taken at previous conventions, and now should oppose the measure.

[The long and short haul rule prohibits railroads from charging less for longer hauls than for shorter ones on the same route. Railroad leaders assert this rule works to the disadvantage of inland cities and to the railroads inasmuch as manufacturers in seaboard cities can ship by water in coast to coast trade, at rates with which the railroads are forbidden to compete.]

Opposes Train Length Bill.

The league also went on record opposing the McCarran train length bill and other "make work" legislation affecting the railroads. Opposition also was expressed to President Roosevelt's governmental reorganization proposal.

A report was adopted calling on the interstate commerce commission for more strict enforcement of the motor carrier act of 1935. Both the letter and spirit of the act are being ignored because the commission is handicapped by insufficient funds, the report said.

A warning also was sounded on alleged failure of rail and truck competition to result in savings to shippers.

Assails Rate Agreements.

"The trucks and railroads assured congress at the time the law was passed that they would give the public the benefit of the inherent advantages and economies of highway transportation," the report said, "but seemingly they have forgotten this assurance, because they are now working with the purpose of restoring the rates, rules, and regulations to the rail bases which prevailed prior to the advent of motor transportation."

W. H. Day of the Boston Chamber of Commerce was reëlected chairman of the league's executive committee. J. W. Bingham, Chicago, vice chairman of the board of directors, also was reëlected.

Woodall Industries.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Woodall Industries, and oblige.—Mrs. R. H. W.

Answer: Woodall Industries, Inc., is engaged in the manufacture, assembly and sale of products used in finishing the interiors of automobile bodies, truck cabs, and automobile trailers. Products are made from a composition board purchased by the company. Woodall and one other concern have exclusive rights to sell to the auto industry products made from this particular type of board.

Principal items made by Woodall include door panels, dash boards and visors. The company also has a line of insulating materials designed specifically for automobiles. After 1929 the company sought to offset lack of demand from the auto industry by making plaques, novelties and radio cabinets, but gave up this activity in 1932. It was formed in 1919 as the Cardboard Cutting and Supply company, and took its present name in 1929.

Moving with the prosperity of the automobile industry, earnings rose sharply after 1934. Except during the first quarter, however, earnings this year have been below those in 1936 and a loss of $22,000 occurred in the third quarter. Net income was $203,000, or 68 cents a share, in the first nine months of 1937, compared with $329,000, or $1.10, in the first nine months last year. The record of recovery years follows:

1935	$5,030,000	344,000	1.14
1934	2,938,000	96,000	.32
1933	1,608,000	123,000	.41

Plants are located in Detroit and Monroe, Mich. Total assets were shown at $2,043,000 on the balance sheet of Dec. 31, 1936. Current assets were $1,305,000, including $390,000 cash and government securities, and current liabilities were $758,000, including $200,000 of bank notes.

Capitalization consists solely of 300,000 shares of $2 par common stock, which was rather closely held until public offering of 50,000 shares in September, 1936. Herbert J. Woodall, president, owns 75,000 shares and R. W. Schupp owns 41,000.

Dividends of 25 cents quarterly have been paid this year. Payments amounted to $1 in 1936, including 30 cents extra; 20 cents in 1935, and 5 cents in 1934. Nothing was paid in 1933. Earlier records are not available.

The stock appears to be somewhat speculative at present.

RAILS COMPLETE PLANS FOR RATE BOOST CAMPAIGN

Pelley to Head Carrier Group in Third Term.

Members of the Association of American Railroads yesterday completed plans for the campaign they will wage before the interstate commerce commission for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates and an upward adjustment in passenger fares. They met in a closed session at the Blackstone hotel.

R. V. Fletcher.

The details of the carriers' program were not divulged, but it was learned that R. V. Fletcher, general counsel for the roads and head of a group of lawyers in charge of the rate drive, explained his case. J. J. Pelley, president of the association, will be the first witness called by the roads when hearings on the rate increases begin before the commission at Washington Nov. 29, it was said.

Pelley Reëlected President.

After the meeting closed it was announced that Pelley had been reëlected president for a third term. The election actually was held by the directors three weeks ago, but no announcement had been made. At the meeting yesterday, Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington Lines, and E. M. Durham Jr., chief executive officer of the Chicago, Rock Island, and Pacific railroad company, were added to the board of directors. They replaced Henry A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, and W. P. Kenney, president of the Great Northern, who resigned.

A resolution was passed increasing the board of directors from fifteen to eighteen members. This increase will allow one additional member to be appointed from each of the eastern, western, and southern districts. The districts will soon select their own members.

Report Decline in Freight.

The car service division submitted a report on the decline in revenue freight trafic in the last half of this year.

"Eliminating less than carload freight," the report said, "which measured in carloadings, does not fluctuate from time to time to the same extent as the strictly carload trafic, the records show that in the first quarter of 1937, carloads were 17.1 per cent above the corresponding period of 1936; in the second quarter, loadings were 15.7 per cent over the corresponding period of 1936, and the loadings for the third quarter showed an increase of 6.7 per cent over the corresponding period in 1936."

The report said that in the first six weeks of the fourth quarter, loadings were 2.6 per cent below those of the same period last year.

COTTON

Cotton futures held within narrow price limits yesterday with the undertone firmer as the result of more favorable news from Washington. The latter more than offset selling induced by the weakness in securities and liquidation by holders of December contracts. Trade interests absorbed the offerings of the latter.

Closing trades on cotton futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were unchanged to .03 cent higher. Other American markets were unchanged to .06 cent a pound higher.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to .10 cent higher with New Orleans, 7.90 cents; New York, 7.85 cents; Galveston, 7.55 cents, and Houston at 7.70 cents a pound. Prices in cents per pound follow:

STOCKS PLUNGE; SELLING WAVE SWEEPS MARKET

Losses Run to $10; News Adverse.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 19.—Stock prices dropped as much as $10 a share on the New York exchange today as a wave of selling, induced by adverse business news and disappointing political and labor events, swept over the market. The selling was orderly until shortly after noon, when a flood of offerings appeared. Final prices were at or near their lowest levels of the day.

Leading shares were uniformly lower at the close. United States Steel finished at $51.62, down $2.62. General Motors closed $2.25 lower at $33.75; New York Central, $1.87 lower at $16.50; Chrysler, $6.12 lower at $55.12; Radio, 50 cents lower at $6.87; Anaconda, $2.50 lower at $25.75, and Bethlehem Steel, $4.37 lower at $46.25.

Other conspicuous losers were J. I. Case, off $10.50; Eastman Kodak, down $8.25; U. S. Gypsum, off $7.50; Allied Chemical, off $7; Santa Fé, off $4; Loew's, off $4.87; Westinghouse, down $6, and du Pont, off $5.62.

Many Stocks at New Lows.

Eighty-five stocks touched new low levels for the year during the day. Of the 937 issues traded only 37 closed above Thursday's finish. A total of 833 declined and 67 were unchanged. The Dow Jones average for 30 industrial stocks slumped 7.35 points net to 118.13, a new low for the year. Declines of 1.94 points to 30.07 for the railroads and 1.40 points to 20.91 for the utilities were about in line, based on the lower prices for these groups.

Volume of trading rose to 1,886,900 shares from 902,820 shares Thursday, but the total was considered small in view of the extent of today's setback.

A more than seasonal decline in today's report of railroad freight for the last week served to emphasize the extent of the current business recession and cooled speculative ardor.

Sitdown Strikes Are Influence.

Sitdown strikes at plants of Goodyear Rubber and General Motors brought selling in these divisions, while indications that a revision of tax laws may not be possible during the special session of congress were definitely disappointing.

Despite an increase in automobile production this week over last week, motor stocks were among the hardest hit. One reason advanced for this was that current output is well below that of last year.

Steels suffered from the low operating rate now prevailing and the gloomy outlook for the immediate future. Merchandising stocks were affected by slackening retail sales, and farm implement shares moved downward. Gold mining issues, still hopeful of a further increase in the official price of the metal, resisted liquidation.

Roosevelt Letter Puzzling.

Traders were puzzled by the disclosure that President Roosevelt had sent a letter to Chairman Ayres of the federal trade commission in which the President said his attention had been called to the high cost of living. The President said he understood the increases were attributable to "monopolistic practices and other unwholesome methods of competition," and asked for an investigation. The note was considered anything but conducive to helping the already jittery business situation.

London Shares Lower.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Stock prices declined here today as traders continued nervous over yesterday's recession in Wall street. Industrials were easier and motors were weak. Trans-Atlantic issues were steady.

In Paris trading was inactive on the bourse, with most issues closing firm. International stocks were slightly irregular.

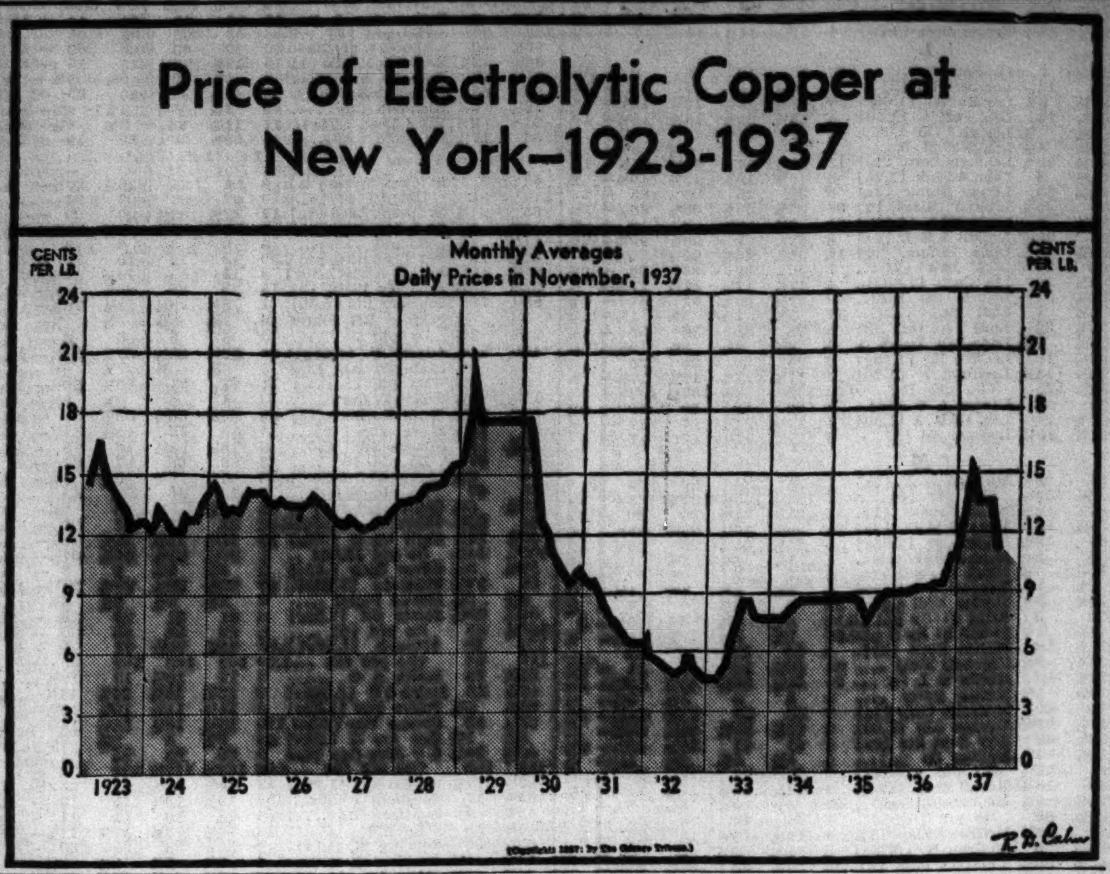
The Securities Exchange Act.

In 1934 congress passed the securities exchange act, which was the first federal legislation regulating trading on securities markets. It also provided for the regulation of over the counter markets operating in interstate and foreign commerce and through the mails, and sought to prevent inequitable and unfair practices on such exchanges and markets. It undertook to curb excessive speculation and unethical practices and to protect investors.

The law established a bipartisan securities and exchange commission, composed of five members who are appointed by the President with the senate's consent, to administer the act and take over from the federal trade commission the administration of the securities act of 1933. Principal features of the act were:

All stock exchanges must be licensed by the SEC and all securities registered with that body. Registration statements must contain 10 separate categories of facts and the companies must supply any additional financial information which the commission may ask. In addition, companies with registered securities are required to file periodical financial reports certified by independent public accountants.

Tomorrow: More on the securities exchange act.



Commodities Decline Again; Selling Heavy

Prices of most leading commodities again declined yesterday to new low levels for the year or longer in heavy liquidation promoted by reports of dwindling trade and weakness in securities. Copper, rubber, cocoa, hides, and wool tops led the slump.

The Associated Press index of 35 cash commodities closed at 76.78, off 0.58, and a new 1937 low mark. The Dow-Jones futures index declined 0.59 to 52.17, also a new low for the year.

Copper futures receded 0.20 to 0.30 cent a pound and export copper sold as low as 9.80 cents, down 0.20 cent. The domestic price of copper was unchanged.

Rubber Futures Tumble.

Rubber futures tumbled 0.23 to 0.30 cent a pound, and crude rubber for immediate delivery sold 0.25 lower at 14.31 cents a pound.

In the most active trading in the history of the New York market, wool top futures declned 1.7 to 3 cents a pound. Sales for the session totaled 850,000 pounds. In the cash market, wool tops fell 2.5 cents to 83.5 cents a pound.

Hide futures sank 0.37 to 0.45 cent a pound to new lows for the last three years. Trading totaled 13,080,000 pounds, exceptionally heavy volume. December contracts closed at 8.25 cents a pound, March contracts at 8.60 cents, and June contracts at 8.93 cents. Cash hides here were unchanged, with buyers showing little interest.

Cocoa Declines Again.

Cocoa futures, heavily liquidated in recent market sessions, declined 0.24 to 0.28 cent a pound. Coffee futures were irregular, and domestic sugar futures closed 0.02 to 0.04 cent a pound higher. World sugar futures were unchanged to a shade higher and raw sugar for immediate delivery rose 0.02 cent to 3.40 cents a pound.

Silk futures receded 1⅛ to 2⅛ cents a pound and raw silk for immediate delivery was 2 or more cents a pound lower for some grades. Cottonseed oil and lard also were lower. Cash lard reached the lowest level since October, 1934.

Eggs made gains up to ½ cent a dozen at the Chicago Mercantile exchange. The improvement was attributed to better demand in the cash market, smaller receipts in midwest primary markets, and forecasts for continued cold in some producing areas. Cash egg prices were unchanged.

Butter futures advanced ⅛ to ¼ cent a pound and cash butter was unchanged to ½ cent higher.

FRANCE SEEKING DUTCH LOAN TO REPAY BRITAIN

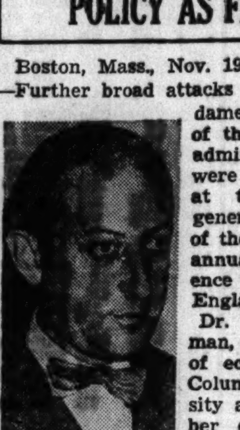
PARIS, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Sources close to Finance Minister Georges Bonnet said today that France was negotiating for a loan of 150,000,000 florins [about $83,000,000] from a group of Amsterdam bankers to be used for payment of the British railroad loan. Negotiations were said to be virtually completed.

[The railroad loan amounts to approximately $200,000,000 and was made by London bankers to French railroads early this year. Bonnet announced last week it would be paid in full when it falls due between December 12-26.]

The Amsterdam loan, it was reported, would be in three sections of 50,000,000 florins [about $27,500,000] each, with interest at approximately five per cent.

LABOR BOARD MEMBER ASSAILS ROOSEVELT'S POLICY AS FAILURE

Boston, Mass., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Further broad attacks on the fundamental policies of the Roosevelt administration were made today at the closing general session of the thirteenth annual conference of the New England Council. Dr. Leo Wolman, professor of economics at Columbia university and a member of the national labor board, warned that the administration's labor policy had so reduced the margin of profit that it may well lead to an "exceptionally high rate of permanent unemployment."



Dr. Leo Wolman.

"Now that the general volume of production and employment is declining," he said, "the formula of raising the price of labor and reducing the hours of work as a means of controling the volume of unemployment and of maintaining business prosperity seems to have failed once more. Fixed prices of labor by organization is an effective barrier to progress."

The Roosevelt régime was described as a "curious mixture of lofty idealism, practical benevolence, and sordid politics on a terrifying scale,' by Ralph E. Flanders, president of the Jones & Lamson Machine company, Springfield, Vt.

"We will give neither our votes nor our assistance to irresponsible sophomoric experimenters who choke the industries from which they demand the products and the taxes essential to the social program," he said.

CATHOLIC BISHOP BUYS SHERIDAN ROAD PROPERTY

The Catholic bishop of Chicago yesterday bought the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Buena avenue from the estate of Lucy O. Eddy for $60,000, subject to a lease with Cyril C. Coombs, undertaker, who now occupies the fourteen room residence and five car garage on the property.

It is understood the house will be used by the Sisters of Charity, who now occupy the old Waller residence at the northeast corner of Kenmore and Buena avenues.

Title to the Eddy property was conveyed by the Northern Trust company and Jerome Orrell Eddy, trustees of the Eddy estate. Rupert Barry was attorney for the Catholic bishop. The property fronts 150 feet on Sheridan road and 233 feet on Buena avenue.

Nominate Rushton as Head of Stock Exchange Firms

Joseph A. Rushton, a partner of Babcock, Rushton & Co., yesterday was nominated for reëlection as chairman of the Chicago Association of Stock Exchange Firms by the nominating committee of the association. He is now finishing his second term. Other nominees were Roy E. Bard, a partner of Sutro Brothers & Co., for vice chairman, and James A. Cathcart, partner of Harris, Upham & Co., for treasurer. The election will be held Dec. 3.

Head of Swift Sees Only Brief Trade Setback

The current recession in business probably will neither last long nor effect the packing industry as much as some other lines of business, John Holmes, who was elected president of Swift and company on Thursday, predicted yesterday as he took over his new job.

The 46 year old executive based his opinion on the relative stability of his own industry on the premise that people have to eat. In regard to the general business outlook, he believed that too large an unsatisfied demand for goods exists to permit a prolonged stagnation of business.

Holmes' first job with Swift & Co. was as a messenger boy in 1906. He worked 60 hours a week and was paid 10 cents an hour. During his 31 years of service he has worked in most important departments.

Comments on Bargaining.

Holmes "sees no reason" why workers should "not engage in some form of organization that provides for collective bargaining in a sound way." Swift employés now have a plant organization which has been operating a number of years. The company dissociated itself from the organization, however, upon passage of the Wagner act.

Holmes believed that the amount of meat produced in the United States during the coming year will be approximately equal to production this year. He would make no attempt, however, to forecast the trend of prices because of "the many factors" involved.

Marketing of live stock should be more orderly during the coming year than in recent years because of more adequate feed supplies, he said.

Sees Earnings Maintained.

The new Swift president said the company probably finished the fiscal year ended Oct. 31 with an earned surplus approximately equal to the $8,229,206 earned surplus at the end of the preceding twelve months. This figure may be changed, he pointed out, when final reports are received from all divisions of the company.

While declining to make a definite estimate of profit for the year, the same earned surplus figure would indicate net income approximately equal to the $9,000,000 paid out in dividends during the year. In the preceding year, profit was $12,103,751, including $3,068,000 in refunded processing taxes.

Typewriter Company Head Paid $50,260 During 1936

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—(AP)—H. W. Smith, president of L. C. Smith and Corona Typewriters, Inc., Syracuse, N. Y., received compensation of $50,260 last year, the company reported today to the securities commission. Harry W. Davies, vice president, received $25,585, and Elwyn L. Smith, assistant to the president, $19,260. J. U. Manischewitz received $30,000 as president of B. Manschewitz company, Jersey City, N. J.

EDISON, PUBLIC SERVICE MAKE REVENUE GAINS

Pneumatic Tool Nets More in Quarter.

The Commonwealth Edison company and the Public Service company of Northern Illinois, controled by Edison, yesterday reported increases in gross revenues and net income for October and the first ten months of 1937 over the corresponding period a year ago.

Gross revenues of Edison in October were $7,345,629 compared with $6,828,901 in October, 1936. Net income was $1,695,786, or 23 cents a share, against $929,912, or 14 cents a share on the basis of present capitalization in the same month last year.

Operating revenues of Edison for the first 10 months of this year totaled $71,882,302, against $68,230,680 in the corresponding 1936 period. Net income was $12,280,996, or $1.87 a share, compared with $7,980,634, or $1.24 a share, in the same period last year.

Public Service Revenues Up.

Public Service had October gross revenues of $3,446,164, against $3,291,895 in October, 1936. Net income was $374,335, equal to 43 cents a share, compared with $288,335, or 31 cents a share, last year.

Gross revenues for 10 months totaled $34,716,527, against $32,344,569 a year ago. Net income was $3,841,751, or $4.46 a share, compared with $2,782,301, or $2.96 a share, last year. Interest charges for 10 months were $290,566, or 43 cents a share less than last year as a result of savings through refinancing operations.

The Chicago Pneumatic Tool company yesterday reported net profit of $420,486 for the September quarter. In the corresponding quarter last year its profit was $307,195. After provision for preferred stock dividends earnings equaled 72 cents a share on the common stock compared with 74 cents on fewer shares outstanding last year.

Illinois Zinc Has Gain.

Illinois Zinc company announced net profit was $111,428 for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, equal to $1.17 a share. The company earned $57,888, or 80 cents a share, in the preceding year. The figures include results of the company's mining subsidiary.

Net loss of $177,412 for the quarter ended Sept. 30 was reported by Italian Superpower corporation, American controled investment company with minority holding in electric utility properties in Italy. The company had a loss of $195,772 in the corresponding 1936 period.

Figures compiled yesterday on the first six railroads reporting October revenues showed net operating income below 1935 and 1936 results. Gross revenues of the six carriers were also below 1936 which, coupled with the rise in operating expenses, cut sharply into the net revenues.

October Gross Is 48 Millions.

October gross was $48,002,000, against $51,101,000 in October, 1936, a decrease of 4.2 per cent. Net operating income was $10,322,000, compared with $14,825,000 last year, a drop of 30 per cent.

Pittsburgh and West Virginia railway, in a petition to the interstate commerce commission, yesterday estimated its 1937 net income at $263,884. The 1936 net income was $276,956.

Power Companies Win Tilt in Court Battle with TVA

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The eighteen private companies attacking the power program of the Tennessee Valley authority as unconstitutional today won a material victory. The three-judge federal court permitted them to introduce as evidence statements made by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, TVA chairman, which they say prove their contention that the electric business is a primary rather than an incidental part of the TVA projects and therefore is unconstitutional.

Dr. A. E. Morgan.

The victory was limited, however, when the court restricted such statements to those made before congressional committees or subcommittees in charge of appropriations for TVA, and excluded a mass of speeches, newspaper articles, circulars, and the like, by Dr. Morgan and the TVA directors—David E. Lilienthal and Dr. Harcourt A. Morgan.

Offsets Earlier Defeat.

In some degree today's ruling offset the defeat met by the companies earlier this week, when the court ruled out their effort to subpena the minutes of all TVA directors' meetings dealing with power, with which they expected to show the directors sought to make power production, distribution, and sale, instead of navigation the main business of TVA.

The companies made other progress today when the court permitted them to introduce excerpts from United States army engineer's reports to congress in 1930 which they represented as recommending the low dam, low cost, non power development for the improvement of navigation on the Tennessee river. This victory was qualified by the court's permission to TVA to introduce other excerpts from the same reports, which, according to TVA, show that the army engineers recommended high and low dam projects as alternatives, and that they characterized the low dam project as inferior from the navigation standpoint and as representing a waste of the water power resources of the river.

Counsel for the companies read into the record various excerpts from a statement made by Chairman Morgan in June, 1933, before a subcommittee of the house of representatives committee on appropriations when testifying on the deficiency appropriations bill, particularly about a $6,000,000 item for construction of a then proposed transmission line between Moris and Wilson dams.

The excerpt chiefly emphasized was a reply made by Dr. Morgan when questioned by Representative Bolton.

"To build power plants but no transmission lines would not do us any good because Cove creek site of Norris dam would develop 100,000 horsepower," Morgan said. "Now horsepower is no good unless it can be disposed of. It is written all through the bill [the TVA act] that the purpose of the bill is to distribute power for the years from now."

FREIGHT TRAFIC SMALLEST SINCE EARLY IN YEAR

Railroad freight loadings during the week ended Nov. 13 totaled 689,614 cars, the Association of American railroads reported yesterday. This was a more than seasonal drop of 42,531 cars, or 5.8 per cent, from the preceding week's total, and was the smallest freight movement since the week ended Feb. 6, when floods in the Ohio valley interrupted trafic.

Part of the decline last week was attributed to the Armistice day holiday. Loadings of all types of commodities except coal and live stock were lower than in the week ended Nov. 6.

Last week's movement was 95,366 cars, or 12.1 per cent below that of the corresponding week of 1936, and was 139,409 cars, or 16.8 per cent, below the same week in 1930.

FRANCE TAKES MORE GOLD FROM U. S. AS DOLLAR VALUE FALLS

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The French stabilization fund has engaged $10,000,000 more gold here for shipment abroad tomorrow, it was learned today. The export, which was arranged through the American stabilization fund, under the terms of the tripartite agreement, follows an export of $10,250,000 to France which was announced by the treasury in Washington on Nov. 8, and one of $5,000,000 to England which was announced a few days later.

These exports have resulted from the recent weakness of the dollar in terms of European exchange which has been the outcome of withdrawal from this market of money previously sent here by Europe.

The dollar continued weak in today's dealings in the foreign exchange market but its losses were smaller than on Thursday. The pound sterling advanced ¼ cent to $5.00½. The franc rose ⅛ point to 3.40 cents.

The loss of $10,000,000 gold to France which will presumably result in a decline in the treasury's inactive gold fund, will be partly offset by a shipment of $5,464,400 gold from Japan which was reported as having reached San Francisco.

COMPANIES PAY DIVIDEND EARLY TO AVOID TAXES

General Electric Co. Votes $1 a Share.

Dividends that would normally be paid in 1938 were ordered distributed during December by the directors of three large corporations yesterday as a means of mitigating the effect of the federal surtax on undistributed earnings. The moving up of the payments may also permit the companies to hold up dividends next year without incurring tax liability if modification of the undistributed earnings law is approved by congress.

The companies advancing their dividends payments were General Electric company, International Business Machines, and Park and Tilford, Inc.

General Electric directors ordered a year end dividend of $1, payable Dec. 20 to stockholders of record Nov. 26, bringing payments for 1937 to $2.20, against $1.50 in 1936. Forty cents a share has been paid by the company in recent quarters. The latest disbursement will give $29,600,000 to about 188,000 stockholders.

"Until last year," the company said, "it was the practice to pay the fourth quarterly dividend in January of the following year. An estimate has been made of the company's income for 1937 and based on this the directors have declared a dividend of $1 as the final dividend for 1937. A year ago the final dividend was 75 cents."

Park and Tilford ordered the distribution of $1 a share to stockholders in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 50 cents. The company explained that the 50 cent quarterly dividends that would normally be paid in March and June, 1938, may be omitted. The total dividend is payable in cash, but stockholders have the option until Dec. 14 of receiving 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock in lieu of cash.

Pays Stock and Cash.

A stock dividend of 5 per cent and a cash distribution of $1.50 were voted by International Bsiness Machines directors. The cash payment is the one usually distributed in January but will be paid Dec. 23 this year to reduce surtax liability, Thomas J. Watson, president, said.

Directors of Crane company voted a dividend of $1 on the common stock, the first payment since Dec. 15, 1931, when 15 cents was paid. They also authorized payment of the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 on the 5 per cent cumulative convertible preferred shares.

Cuban girls caught his eye

I never figured I could afford the luxury of Havana tobacco on my income, but those pretty Cuban girls in the Harvester ads caught my eye and I read where five cents buys a cigar with a Heart of Havana. Now I smoke Harvesters as a steady diet and get just as much pleasure out of my smoke as the boss, who pays up to four bits for an imported label.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Corporate bond issues today received the sharpest setback since the Oct. 18 market break. Closing prices were fractions to three points under yesterday's quotations. United States government bonds moved against the trend, closing substantially higher.

The gains in government issues ranged as high as 27-32 of a point on fairly active trading. The best buying demand appeared in the longer term government issues. Large institutional buyers were reported active.

Railroad issues were the hardest hit of the corporate liens. Word of the sharp fall in carloadings sent a wave of selling over the market shortly before noon. The lower priced railroad bonds were the heaviest losers.

One average price of twenty railroad issues dropped 1.6 points to 71.8, the lowest level since Dec. 7, 1933. Industrial issues fell .8 of a point on the average.

Chicago Stocks.

Another selling wave broke over the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday and final prices for many issues were just above the closing levels on Oct. 19, first recovery day of the mid-October slump in security prices. The volume of trading rose to 57,000 shares from the 26,000 shares traded in the preceding session.

The Tribune average of 20 stocks finished at 10.87, off 0.61. On Oct. 19 the average closed at 10.46, after touching a low of 8.81. Of the 127 shares traded yesterday, 92 declined, 11 advanced and 24 finished unchanged.

Montgomery Ward class A stock lost $7 on a single trade of 10 shares. Commonwealth Edison declined 1⅛, Zenith Radio finished 1¼ lower and Sears Roebuck lost 3¼.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks were sharply lower yesterday. Chicago Title and Trust company shares dropped $12 to $13 as quoted by various dealers. First National fell $8 to $9 a share, and Continental Illinois shares were $4 to $5 lower. Northern Trust shares broke $10. Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank stock was quoted unchanged to $2 lower.

OIL FIRMS BASE BUYING PROGRAM ON CODE OF NRA

Outline Defense in Trial for Price Fixing.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The seventh week of the federal government's gasoline price fixing case ended today with arguments over defense motions for directed verdicts of acquittal as yet unfinished, but with what apparently is to be the position of the defense outlined in argument by Louis Treadwell, counsel for Socony-Vacuum Oil company.

Attracting most attention among the arguments on individual motions to dismiss charges was Treadwell's statement. He said today: "We concede there was a buying program in the midcontinent area, that we participated in it, and that it was right and proper under the law."

Disagree Over Purposes.

The government contends that purchasing by the major oil companies in the midcontinent and East Texas oil fields in 1935 and 1936 constituted buying programs, and that they were part of a conspiracy to raise and fix midwestern gasoline prices.

The defense, which contends the east Texas oil purchasing plan resulted from a selling program by refiners rather than a buying program by the companies, maintains that the companies were justified in their efforts to stabilize industry along the lines pursued by the government during the period of the NRA petroleum code.

Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone, who denied a general motion for a directed verdict for all defendants, has been hearing individual arguments for directed verdicts of acquittal during the present week.

Final Arguments Near.

Final individual arguments, it is believed, will be heard Monday and the court's ruling announced Tuesday, following which the presentation of the case for some or all of the remaining defendants will start.

Judge Stone recessed today's afternoon session after only five minutes during which Attorney Sam Mitchell asked for the dismissal of charges against the Shell Petroleum corporation officials.

LUMBERMEN'S MUTUAL CASUALTY SETS RECORD IN PREMIUM INCOME

Premium income of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1937, exceeded any similar period in the company's history, James S. Kemper, president, said last night at a dinner of agents, directors, and advisory board members at the Casino club in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the company.

James S. Kemper.

Total premiums written during the first nine months were $20,922,351, compared with $17,539,587 in the same period last year, a gain of 19.3 per cent.

Speaking of the current situation in business, Kemper said: "If relieved of some of the tax burdens which are undoubtedly stifling individual enterprises, and assured of a permanently reasonable attitude on the part of government, business could without doubt resume its stride toward recovery."

GRAINS DECLINE WITH SLUMP IN STOCK MARKET

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$ .90	$ .91¾	$1.17
Corn	.53⅛	.53⅜	1.06¼
Oats	.30⅜	.30½	.45¼
Rye	.69¾	.70⅞	.95
Soy beans	.92	.92¾	1.34

Grain and provision prices were on the downgrade yesterday as the result of scattered liquidation by holders of future contracts induced by pronounced weakness in securities. Closing trades were at the bottom with wheat showing a net decline of 1½ to 1⅞ cents a bushel.

Although net losses in corn futures were confined to small fractions of a cent a bushel, the May and July deliveries sold at new low levels for the season and the December contract came within ⅛ cent of equalling the previous low point. Lard futures were 20 to 35 cents per 100 pounds lower, with loose and leaf lard selling at the lowest levels since August, 1934.

Speculative Interest Small.

Speculative interest in the grain markets yesterday was light, and at no time did they show a decided tendency to rally.

Winnipeg wheat futures led the decline and closed as much as 3¼ cents a bushel lower. Foreign wheat markets showed relative steadiness, although English mills were reported to be out of the market for cash wheat. No export sales of North American wheat were reported yesterday.

July wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade showed relative firmness yesterday as reports indicated the snowfall in the west and southwest in the last two days was too light to be of material benefit to the new wheat crop in that territory.

Corn Resists Selling.

Corn showed stubborn resistance to the break in wheat and securities. Reports indicated there would probably be a sharp decline in the movement of corn to terminals, and the basis for sales in the sample market was ¼ to 1 cent a bushel higher relative to the December delivery. Offerings for deferred shipment from the country were limited despite an advance of ½ cent in the price bid for the grain. Outside markets were said to be paying the country relatively higher prices than Chicago.

Export sales of 100,000 bushels of American corn were made yesterday to Holland, and reports late in the day indicated additional business was in sight.

MOTOR OUTPUT RISES, BUT FAR BELOW YEAR AGO

Output of American and Canadian automobile factories this week was estimated yesterday at 85,757 passenger cars and trucks by Ward's Automotive Reports. This compares with a revised figure of 83,325 units last week and 116,125 in the corresponding week last year.

The big decrease from a year ago is accounted for in part by the Ford company's delay in getting into volume production this year, the agency said. It now appears the total output for the 1937 calendar year will fall slightly below 5,000,000 vehicles, compared with estimates earlier this year of 5,200,000 units.
